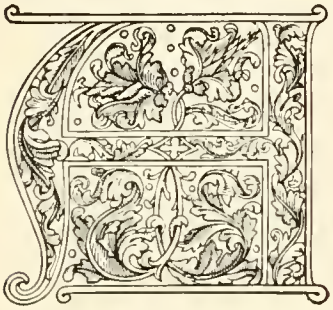
PREFACE



BOUT the year 1825 the late John Redman Carpenter, cashier of the branch of the Bank of the United States at Buffalo, N. Y., with a desire to perpetuate the memory of his ancestors, took upon himself the task of collecting together the records of the Carpenter family, and compiled a biographical notice of Samuel Carpenter (First), together with a genealogical table of his descendants.

This manuscript, though of great value, was incomplete and has never been published. It fell into my hands many years ago, when I availed myself of the opportunity to secure a copy from it, which I have since preserved, adding from time to time such additional matter as seemed appropriate. Since the original was written near two generations have passed away, and the hand that wrote it has long since mouldered into dust.

After the lapse of more than half a century, in compliance with the request of my children to complete as far as possible the record of the births, marriages, and deaths, and incorporate some notice of those members of our branch of the family with whom I have had familiar intercourse, I have undertaken the preparation of the following pages. Inasmuch as my purpose is to compile a genealogical record of the family, I make no claim to originality, but shall make use of all sources of information to which I shall have access.

EDWARD CARPENTER

SUPPLEMENTARY

THE manuscript left by Mr. Edward Carpenter in 1889 pertained principally to the descent in the direct line from Samuel Carpenter, and it has been necessary to make many additions to bring this to date as near as possible. It was also considered advisable to add the descent in the female line through the Fishbourne, Wharton, and Meredith families. In making this compilation, much biographical and genealogical information has been obtained from various works and other sources for which it is necessary to acknowledge indebtedness.

The direct descent in the Carpenter line, the Fishbourne branch, the Wharton branch, and the Meredith branch are placed separately in the order given.

Acknowledgment is made of information taken by permission from the works here named, and to individuals mentioned, as well as to many others who have furnished data concerning their families:

Keith's Councillors, and also manuscript loaned by Charles P. Keith.

The Wharton Family, by Miss Anne Hollingsworth Wharton.

The Lloyd and Carpenter Family, by Charles Perrin Smith.

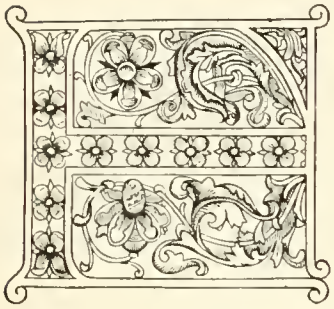
SAMUEL CARPENTER
HIS RELATIVES AND DESCENDANTS

ENGLISH ANCESTRY



OR generations, the descendants of Samuel Carpenter in Philadelphia were ignorant of the locality in England from whence their ancestor came to seek his fortune in the New World. No clue could be found among the letters and papers in the possession of the family, and there were no traditions which had been handed down to help to solve the problem. Samuel Carpenter and his two brothers, Joshua and Abraham, were men of education, rather remarkable for the times, and must have belonged to a family of some consideration, where so much attention had been given to the instruction of its members.

In addition, the brothers all had money on their arrival in Philadelphia, Samuel more than the rest, as he had evidently made profitable investments in sugar during his stay for ten years in the Barbadoes; but Joshua was soon able to build a large mansion house on Chestnut street, and Abraham left several hundred pounds in his will to different relatives.

That no word was left, by either of these, of the home where their childhood was spent is surprising, and can be accounted for most probably by the supposition that such statements were lost and forgotten in the lapse of years. In an inspection of the will of Abraham Carpenter in the records of Philadelphia, it was observed that he states that his brother John, who had lived at Horsham, Sussex County, England, was then deceased, showing that one of his brothers had been established at that place. Lately a statement was found, in the annals of the city, to the effect that the township of Horsham, to the north of Philadelphia, was in the first place principally owned by Samuel Carpenter, and that when the settlers thereon went to Samuel Carpenter, and asked him what name he would like for the township, he replied to call it "Horsham." This story coming to light made some who were interested think that probably Samuel Carpenter had some connection with Horsham; and soon after, in September, 1900, while making some investigations in England, Mr. Thomas Allen Glenn discovered evidence, in the register of the Parish Church of St. Mary's at Horsham, to show that Samuel Carpenter, the first of his name in Philadelphia, was born there, and probably lived there until after his father's death in 1671, when he left with his share of the patrimony to seek his fortunes in the Barbadoes. The register shows that Samuel Carpenter was born November 4, 1649, and christened December 20, 1649, and that he was the son of John Carpenter by Sarah his wife.

John Carpenter appears to have been married three times: (1) to Mary Somervale, January 15, 1631; (2) to Sarah ——, who died September 28, 1650; (3) to Elizabeth ——. The surnames are not given in the last two entries nor the dates of marriage. Mary must have died about 1640.

The following entries show the date of christening of the children of John Carpenter:

[2] 1642, June 12, Samuel, son of John Carpenter and Sarah.
[3] 1643, Oct. 29, Robert, son of John Carpenter and Sarah.
[4 5] 1644, Nov. 14, Sarah and Mary (twins), daughters of John Carpenter.
[6] 1646, Nov. 25, Damaris, daughter of John Carpenter and Sarah.
[7] 1649, Dec. 20, Samuel, son of John Carpenter (born Nov. 4).
[8] 1652, Nov. 18, Abraham, son of John Carpenter and Elizabeth.
[9] 1655, Jan. 3, Debora, daughter of John Carpenter.

The following burials relating to the family are recorded:

[1] 1644, July 8, Robert, son of John Carpenter (born 1643).
[2] 1644, Sep. 3, Samuel, son of John Carpenter (born 1642).
[3] 1650, Sep. 28, Sarah, wife of John Carpenter.
[4] 1671, Aug. 9, John Carpenter, Senior.

A second child named Samuel, born November 4, 1649, was the ancestor of the Carpenter family in Philadelphia.

The above entries show the children of John Carpenter, of Horsham, the father of Samuel Carpenter, agreeing with those named in the will of Abraham Carpenter in Philadelphia, a brother of Samuel, proved April 14, 1708. It is stated therein that his brother John is deceased. The register shows that he died March 5, 1682.

The only missing entry in the list is that of Joshua, who was probably born before John, baptized August 26, 1638, as his father was married (1) to Mary Somervale, January 15, 1631, leaving more than seven years to elapse before John was born. The pages of the register between 1631 and 1638 have become defective through the action of time and other causes, and the writing is illegible. Many of the entries in other periods cannot be made out, and it is therefore impossible to read important records of value in this connection.

The oldest register in St. Mary's is dated from 1540, at which time the churches in England were directed to keep the records of births, marriages, and deaths, by order of Henry VIII. The following entries of the Carpenters are found from 1540 to 1631, the date of the marriage of John Carpenter:

1559 November The same day was christened William Davyson ye sonne of William Davyson The Godfathers, Wm. Tuckeney and Thomas Carpenter and Mary Champion ye wife of John.

1562 June The same day was christened Thomas Howe, the sonne of John Howe The Godfathers Thomas Carpenter and John Sparrows The Godmother, Elizabeth Nolens Virg.

1565 May 20 Thomas Carpenter married Ales Fiste widow.

1610 Sept. 12 John Carpenter married Elizabeth Carpenter.

CHRISTENINGS.

BURIALS.

1581 Nov. 17 Thomas Carpenter.

1598 April 3 John Carpenter.

1604 April 28 Robert Carpenter.

This comprises all the records that can be read.

There seems to be no doubt that Thomas Carpenter was the first of the name to settle at Horsham. He appears there as a bachelor in 1559, marries Ales Fiste, a widow, in 1565, and dies in 1581. From the records, it is most probable that Robert Carpenter was a son of Thomas and the father of John, the dates not conflicting. The few entries concerning him in the register show that he had a wife named Elizabeth and a daughter, Eleanor, and that he died in 1604. There were certainly other records concerning him, but they are not legible. John Carpenter had a son Robert, who died young, and the name seems to be evidence of the descent from the elder Robert.

In examining the register none of the Carpenters concerned are recorded as belonging to any trade or business, which it was customary to do if that had been the case. John Carpenter, Jr., who died in 1682, March 5, is rated as a householder. The Carpenters at Horsham were apparently there for three generations before Samuel went to America, but no trace has been found of a manor or considerable landed property, and it is thought that Thomas Carpenter must have come there from a line more permanently established elsewhere of an earlier date. Researches are now being made to determine this point if possible.

The name of Carpenter as a surname is an ancient one in England, but, being of Latin origin, it does not appear prior to the Conquest. It is noted that the Domesday Book mentions several tenants in chief located in various places under the name of "Carpentarie." At an early date families of the name of consideration were located in the counties in the southwest and south of England. In the reign of Edward I, a representative named John Carpenter was sent to Parliament from Leskard in Cornwall, and others later from various boroughs. In the fifteenth century a branch of the Carpenters were located in the Manor of Homme in Herefordshire, the first of record being William Carpenter, born about 1440, who died in 1520. After several generations the estate was bequeathed, in 1773, by Thomas Carpenter, a descendant, to his cousin George Carpenter, then the Earl of Tyrconnel in Ireland, whose ancestor had been created Baron Carpenter of Killaghy in 1719 for his services as lieutenant-general in the British army commanding the forces who defeated the rebel army in 1715 at Preston, England, in the reign of George I. This line became extinct in 1853.

The most ancient coat of arms of the Carpenters has for the device in the field three cross crosslets, which appear in many pedigrees filed in the Herald office in London. These lines were located chiefly in the counties of Hereford and Gloucester. The arms borne by the Carpenters of Homme in Herefordshire show the three cross crosslets, and the same appears in a lineage of several generations commencing about 1300 with a Maurice Carpenter, or Carpender, Gent., in the County of Gloucester, and reported in the Herald Visitation in that county. These arms were also borne by the Earls of Tyrconnel, whose descent was through the Carpenters of Homme. Burke says that this family was of great antiquity in Herefordshire. It is believed that the arms originated in the Crusades, on account of the cross device.

Many branches of the Carpenters are located in Surrey and Sussex, within a short distance of each other, and the William Carpenter of Wherwell, England, who went to Weymouth, Mass., in 1638 and afterwards to Rehoboth, Mass., and was the ancestor of the New England line, and also the William Carpenter who emigrated to Providence, Rhode Island, at an early date, came from this vicinity, and much has been written by their descendants, claiming a probable connection in England including the Philadelphia line. Up to the present, however, no evidence, that we are aware of, has been discovered to establish this contention, excepting that a Daniel Carpenter, of Rehoboth, died in 1767, and on his grave-stone is engraved the greyhound coat of arms used by the Carpenters of Philadelphia for many generations.

The father of Samuel Carpenter died in Horsham, August 9, 1671; and Samuel must have left England in a year or so, as the records of the Barbadoes show that he was fined there in 1673 for failing to furnish men in arms, and again in 1683 for the same reason. He had apparently become a convert to the doctrines of the Quakers before leaving England, and seems to have been the only one of his family to take that course. There was a persecution of the Quakers in Horsham as early as 1655, but the records do not show the name of Carpenter as in the list of those prosecuted.

His brothers Joshua and Abraham followed him to Philadelphia, whither he went in 1683; but they both belonged to the Church of England, and Joshua was prominent as one of the founders of Christ Church, Philadelphia.

John Carpenter of Horsham must have been a man of means, as Samuel, Joshua, and Abraham came to the Province of Pennsylvania with money. The brothers, especially Samuel and Joshua, were well-educated men, of excellent ability and judgment, and soon made their mark in the colony.

THE CARPENTER ARMS

The coat of arms in possession of the Carpenter family of Philadelphia was granted to William Carpenter, Surrey County and Sussex County, England (showing connections in both Surrey and Sussex), Gentleman of his Majesty's Honorable Privy Chamber Extraordinary, by Sir Edward Byshe Clarenceux, March 4, 1663, in the reign of Charles II.

There is a tradition that these arms were granted especially on account of services rendered to the royal cause during the civil war in England.

THE CARPENTER ARMS

SAMUEL CARPENTER

The religious principles of the early Friends or Quakers caused them to refuse to render military service, to pay tithes for the support of the national church, or to listen to the preaching of its ministers. While they inculcated the doctrine of non-resistance, they at the same time stoutly maintained that in matters of religion every man should be guided by the dictates of his own conscience and worship God after his own fashion.

The promulgation of these and other doctrines peculiar to the sect drew down upon them the indignation of the dignitaries of the English Church, the scoffs and revilings of the populace, and the relentless persecution of the government officials. The blood-hounds of the law were unloosed. The Friends were fined, pilloried, imprisoned, and subjected to all manner of indignities. But the spark lighted by the preaching of George Fox continued to spread, in spite of the obstacles it encountered, until not a few of noble parentage became enrolled among his followers. These persecutions, however, caused many to leave their native country and seek an asylum in foreign lands or distant colonies. Many emigrated to the islands of Jamaica and Barbadoes, although even there followed by fines and penalties for their strict adherence to their religious principles.

Among those who thus sought refuge in the island of Barbadoes appears the name of Samuel Carpenter.

In a work published in London, A.D. 1753, entitled, "A Collection of the Sufferings of the People called Quakers for the Testimony of a Good Conscience," by Joseph Besse, it is stated that, "in 1673 Samuel Carpenter was fined 1110 lbs. of sugar in Barbadoes for not appearing or sending men in arms." This is the first authentic notice of him that I have met with.

By the tradition of the family, corroborated by some circumstantial evidence, it is probable that he emigrated from the County of Sussex, in England, to the island of Barbadoes when a young man, and, being possessed of uncommon talents and enterprise, he there embarked in a lucrative commerce, in which he continued as long as he remained upon the island—viz., about ten or eleven years. In 1683 he was again fined, along with Henry Wheatly, 6673 lbs. sugar for not appearing or sending their servants in arms.

The Charter of Pennsylvania was granted by Charles II to William Penn on January 5, 1681. "His father had held great naval commands. As Admiral under Prince James, the Duke of York, he had gained a victory over the Dutch fleet commanded by Van Updam. He had been Commissioner of the Admiralty, had sat in Parliament, and had received the honor of knighthood. William, the son, had been educated for the profession of arms, but relinquished his prospects in that direction by joining the Quakers." He had been imprisoned in the Tower and in Newgate and was tried in "the Old Bailey" for preaching in defiance of the law. After a time, however, he became reconciled to his family, and eventually obtained such powerful interest in his behalf at court, that he received, in satisfaction of a debt due from the Crown, for his father's services, a grant of upward of forty thousand square miles of territory in North America. A princely estate truly if we could measure its value by the standard of the present day! With great liberality, Penn invited not only those of his own sect but others of different creeds to come and occupy the land, with freedom to each one to worship God according to his own faith.

No wonder that the Quakers pining in exile or smarting with persecution should have hastened to take refuge in Penn's colony on the banks of the Delaware, notwithstanding its broad acres of mountain and plain were still an unbroken wilderness, save only where a few Swedes and Dutch had settled along the shores of that river.

The first ship, "the John and Sarah," with emigrants, arrived in the Delaware in the autumn of 1681. The city of Philadelphia was located in the latter part of 1682. Penn arrived at New Castle on the 27th of October, 1682, and during the same year no less than twenty-three ships loaded with emigrants and supplies arrived in the Delaware.

Samuel Carpenter promptly availed himself of the opportunity which the invitation of Penn offered to leave the island of Barbadoes. Having closed his business, he bade farewell to its inhospitable shores and set sail for Philadelphia, where he arrived about the tenth of July, 1683.

Among the records preserved in the Race Street Friends Meeting of Philadelphia, the following entry appears:

SAMUEL CARPENTER——This certificate was read in the Monthly Meeting in Philadelphia and accepted, which was given him by the Monthly Meeting of Friends at Bridgeton in the Island of Barbadoes the 23rd day of the 6th Month 1683 and subscribed by—Oliver Hovteer, Edward Hunt, John Chase, Thomas Pilgrim, and several others, as also by Henry Cuner as a Friend not belonging to the aforesaid Meeting.

And in the same book it is also recorded as follows, viz.:

HANNAH HARDIMAN——Her certificate was read at the Monthly Meeting at Philadelphia and accepted, which was given her from Haverford West Meeting in Wales the 2d of the 6th Month 1683 and subscribed by—Peregrine Musgrave, Francis Lloyd, John Burge, James Lewis, Abraham Hardiman.

JANE HARDIMAN——Mother of the above having given a certificate of her consent to her daughter's departure for Pennsylvania was read in the Meeting and accepted, also it being subscribed by the said Jane Hardiman in the presence of—Peregrine Musgrave, Abraham Hardiman, Thomas Ellis, George Painter

Whether any acquaintance existed between Samuel Carpenter and Hannah Hardiman previous to their arrival at Philadelphia from such widely separated parts of the world we have no means of knowing; but they were married on the twelfth of December, 1684. He was thirty-five years old, having been born in 1649. The bride was born in 1646 and was thirty-eight.

By the minutes of the Monthy Meeting of Friends preserved in the Arch Street Meeting, to which I have had access, it appears they declared their intention of marriage the first time on the fourth of the Ninth Month, 1684, and the second time on the second of the Tenth Month of the same year. The following is a copy of the marriage certificate:

Whereas, Samuel Carpenter of Philadelphia in the Province of Pennsylvania, and Hannah Hardiman of the same, did declare their intentions of marriage in several public meetings of the people of God called Quakers, and upon inquiry made of their clearness, the said Meetings finding them clear of all others, and that they had the consent of their relations and parties concerned, they were approved by the said meetings—These are therefore to certify all whom it shall or may concern, that for the full determining the intentions aforesaid this 12th day of the 10th month (called December) 1684 in an assembly of the people of God afo esaid at their usual meeting place in Philadelphia aforesaid, the said Samuel Carpenter did then and there in a solemn manner according to the example of the holy men recorded in the Scriptures of Truth and the good practice of the people of God in this age take the said Hannah Hardiman by the hand, and spake as follows, viz, "Friends in the fear of the Lord, and in the presence of this assembly, I take thee my friend Hannah Hardiman to be my wife, and do promise as the Lord shall enable me, to be a faithful constant and loving husband until death shall separate us;" and then the said Hannah Hardiman did also then and there, in like manner, take him the said Samuel Carpenter by the hand and declare as follows viz, "My friends in the presence of the Lord and of this Assembly and in the feeling of his power I take thee my friend Samuel Carpenter to be my husband and do promise to be to him a faithful loving and constant wife until death shall separate us," and for a further continuation thereof the parties above mentioned have hereunto as husband and wife subscribed their names; to which we who were present at the solemnizing of the said marriage and their subscription in manner and form aforesaid have hereunto set our hands as Witnesses to the same the day and year above written.

NOTE.—The original certificate written on parchment is in the possession of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania. It is the earliest marriage certificate in Pennsylvania now known to be in existence.—J. E. C. 1898.

Hannah Hardiman, who married Samuel Carpenter, became a prominent and influential member of the religious Society of Friends or Quakers, and possessed considerable intellectual ability. Some of her writings are still preserved, chiefly upon the proper education of the young. She survived her husband about fourteen years. Of her family but little is known. Her mother, Jane Hardiman, was a widow when she (Hannah) emigrated from Haverford West, in Wales, to Philadelphia.

One brother, Abraham Hardiman, also a much-esteemed member of the Society of Friends, followed his sister to Philadelphia. He married, first, ——. Their children: (1) Mary, who married George Fitzwater (son of Thomas Fitzwater, who married Elizabeth Palmer in 1684). (2) Hannah, who married Gilbert Falconer (son of David Falconer, of Edinburgh, Scotland). (3) Rebecca. Secondly, Abraham Hardiman married Rebecca Willsford, of New Jersey, a noted minister of the Gospel among Friends, by whom he had one child, Deborah, who married George Claypole. The will of Abraham Hardiman, dated August 28, 1699, proved at Philadelphia, September 10, 1702, mentions his three cousins, John and Rebecca Harris and Rebecca Williams.

It would be difficult at this date to form an adequate conception of the arduous circumstances that surrounded those adventurous emigrants—the dangers they encountered and privations they endured. Nor can we sufficiently admire the wisdom that governed their councils and the patient and persevering energy with which their plans were executed.

The route across the broad Atlantic was not yet fully explored. In naval architecture and navigation there was yet much to learn. Nautical instruments were comparatively imperfect. Ships were often badly equipped and inadequately provisioned. Having a wholesome fear of the Sand Banks of Newfoundland, they sailed southwardly along the coasts of Europe until they reached about the latitude of the Azores and then westwardly across the ocean to America. We read of ships sailing for America being wrecked upon the coast of Portugal. The voyage, that in the steam palaces of the present day is made with certainty in nine or ten days or less, was not unfrequently prolonged to four and even six months. Of the three ships which sailed from London for Philadelphia in 1681, the first, the "John and Sarah," arrived at her destination in the Delaware in a little more than two months; the second, the "Factor," made the voyage in four months, and the third, the "Amity," was blown to the West Indies and did not arrive until the following spring.

To the discomforts of a long sea voyage under such adverse circumstances, there also is to be added the fear of pirates which then infested the seas. In the letters of Francis Daniel Pastorius to his father and friends in Germany, published at Frankfort and Leipsic, 1700–4, he thus describes his fare on shipboard. Having set sail from Deal on the 7th of June, 1683, with nine persons related to him, and a large company of German settlers, accompanied by Thomas Lloyd, of Dolobran, Montgomeryshire, Wales, and his three daughters (of whom I shall have more to say hereafter), in the ship "America," Captain Joseph Wasey, he says: "Our allowance of food and drink was very bad. For dinner every noon we had peas, four times a week we had meat, and three times, salt-fish, which we had to dress ourselves with the butter distributed to us. What was left from dinner we had to save for supper. This food being very inadequate, every one must provide himself before entering the ship with provisions." During the voyage they were chased by Turkish pirates, from whom they fortunately escaped, and after many tribulations arrived safely in the Delaware. "On the twentieth of August, 1683, we sailed past New Castle and Upland and arrived towards evening happily at Philadelphia, where I was received by the Governor, William Penn, with love and friendship."

Philadelphia then consisted of three or four little cottages, all the residue being only woods, underwood and timber, in which Pastorius says he several times lost himself in travelling from the water-side to the house of Cornelius Bom, the baker, which stood near the corner of Third and Chestnut Streets. All kinds of temporary expedients had to be resorted to. Pastorius and his companions were obliged to occupy caves in the river bank until the lands assigned to them could be surveyed and houses built for their accommodations. Hannah Hardiman and the daughters of Thomas Lloyd must have found a rude exchange for the refinements of their former homes at Haverford West and Dolobran in Wales.

In this year 1683 the emigration was very great. They came from England, Ireland, Wales, Holland, and Germany. Penn said in his letter to Lord North, "Since last summer we have had about sixty sail great and small shipping, which is a good beginning." All that came wanted a dwelling and hastened to provide one. "As they lovingly helped each other, the women set themselves to work they had not been used to before."

It was at this period and under these circumstances that Samuel Carpenter arrived at Philadelphia. Possessed of considerable means, he lost no time in securing for himself the desirable location which he afterwards occupied as his residence and for business purposes.

"Holmes Portraiture of Philadelphia," done in 1683–4 as a kind of city platform, shows the localities chosen for building at that time. It shows about twenty small cottages upon the river bank. All lots owned on Delaware Front Street are marked as running through to Second Street. About six or eight of such lots fill up a square. Their owners also had one thousand acres or more in the country and received their city lots as appurtenant to their country purchases. Samuel Carpenter's lot extends from Front to Second Street and is the second lot above Walnut Street, No. 16. (On the Second Street front of this lot he subsequently built the historic Slate Roof House.)

William Penn, in a letter written in 1683 describing some of the facts of chief interest in Philadelphia, says, "There is a fair key of about 300 feet square a little above Walnut Street built by Samuel Carpenter to which a ship of five hundred tons may lay her broad side." Gabriel Thomas, who came from England in the ship "John and Sarah" in 1681, in his account printed in 1698 says, "There is also a very convenient Wharf called Carpenter's Wharf which hath a fine necessary Crane belonging to it with suitable granaries and store houses." And Robert Turner in his letter to the Governor says, "Samuel Carpenter has built another house by his, and is our lime burner on his wharf."

The two houses mentioned by Robert Turner were built on the east side of King Street, now Water Street, above Walnut Street, one of which was the mansion house in which he resided, and the other a coffee-house or tavern. The lot extended from Walnut Street to Ton Alley, the dimensions being 270 feet front on King Street or Water Street by 198 feet deep. It was on the east side (Delaware front) of this lot that he built the "fair key" mentioned by William Penn, probably the first wharf built at Philadelphia. It thus appears that his lots extended all the way from the Delaware to Second Street, except the space between King and Front Streets, which last was subsequently added. I add the following notice of this property by John Redman Carpenter (1828), viz.:

The residence of Samuel Carpenter in Philadelphia was on Water Street, at that time the court street of the town. The lot extended from Walnut Street to Ton Alley, the dimensions 270 feet front on the Water Street by 198 feet deep (as before stated). There was on it a long wharf and ten warehouses, together with a mansion house and tavern. The wharf is now in the possession of the heirs of Thomas P. Cope. The warehouses are still standing and used for the storage of merchandise. They form two rows parallel to each other and intersect the lot east and west. They are narrow buildings. In 1828 they belonged to Samuel Wharton, a descendant of Samuel Carpenter. In 1719 the widow of Samuel Carpenter gave to her son Samuel her life interest in the northerly half of this property, on which stood five of the warehouses, and to her son John the southerly half of the same, on which were the other five warehouses and the mansion house. Deborah Logan informed me that she had some recollection of the appearance of the mansion, which was taken down many years since. She described it as a large brick edifice of an antiquated and peculiar style, having its gable and frontings on Water Street, with a portico and high steps.

Robert Turner, a prominent man among the early settlers in Philadelphia, who emigrated from the city of Dublin, wrote to William Penn the following curious description of the progress of the infant city, to be used by him as an advertisement:

Now as to the town of Philadelphia, it goeth on in planting and building to admiration, both in the front and backward, and there are about Six hundred houses in three years time and since. I built my brick house, the foundations of which were laid at thy going, which I did design after a good manner to encourage others, and that from building with wood, it being the first; many take example, and some that built wooden houses are sorry for it. Brick building is said to be as cheap. Bricks are exceedingly good and better than when I built. More makers fallen in, and bricks cheaper. They were before at 16 S. English per M and now many brave brick houses are going up with good cellars. Arthur Cook is building him a brave brick house near William Framptons on the front, for William Frampton hath since built a good brick house by his Brew house and the Bake house and let the other for an ordinary. John Wheeler from New England is building a good brick house by the Blue Anchor, and the two brick makers a double brick house and cellars, beside several others going on. Samuel Carpenter has built another house by his. I am building another by mine which is three large stories high, besides a good brick cellar underneath of two bricks and a half thickness in the wall, and the next story half under ground. The cellar hath an arched door for a vault to go under the Street to the River and so to bring in goods or deliver out. Humphrey Murray from New York has built a large timber house with brick chimnies. John Test has almost finished a good brick house and a bake house of timber. And N. Allen a good house next to Thomas Wynnes front lot. John Day, a good house after the London fashion, most brick, with a large frame of wood in the front for shop windows. All these have balconies. Daniel Pegg and Thomas Smith are partners and set to brick making this year, and they are very good. Also Pastorius the German friend, agent for the company at Frankfort with his Dutch people, is preparing to make brick next year. Samuel Carpenter is our lime burner on his wharf. Brave lime stone found here as the workman say, being proven.

We build most houses with balconies. Lots are much desired in the Town. Great buying one of another. We are now laying the foundation of a large plain brick house for a Meeting House in the centre. Sixty feet long and about forty feet broad, and hope to have it up soon, many hearts and hands at work that will do it. A large Meeting House fifty feet long and thirty-eight feet broad, also going up on the front of the river for an evening meeting, the work going on apace. Many town people selling their liberty houses. I hope the society will cut off the reproaches some have cast upon them. We now begin to gather in something of our many great debts.

On the 27th of December, 1683, I find the name of Samuel Carpenter on the list of grand jurors, probably of the first grand jury that sat in the city of Philadelphia. As an item of ancient history, I extract the following from the Minutes of the Provincial Council:

At a Council held at Philadelphia the seventh of the twelfth month 1683—Present—William Penn Proprietor and Governor, Lasse Cock, William Clayton, John Symcock, Thos. Holmes.

Margaret Mattson and Yestro Henderickson examined and about to be proven witches. Whereupon this Board ordered that Neils Mattson should enter into a Recognizance of fifty pounds for his wife's appearance before this board the 27th instant. Jacob Hendrickson doth the same for his wife.

At a Council held the twenty-seventh of the 12th Mo. 1683, the Grand Jury being attested, the Governor gave them their charge, and the Attorney General attended them with the presentment. [Their names follow—twenty-one—the second in order being Samuel Carpenter.]

Post Meridian.

The Grand Jury made their return and found the Bill. Margaret Mattson, indictment made—She pleads not guilty and will be tryed by the country—Lasse Cock attested Interpreter between the proprietor and the prisoner at the bar. The Petit Jury empanelled [twelve men, whose names are given. Then follows the testimony reported.] The prisoner denyth the things and sayeth that ye witnesses speak only by hear-say. After which the Governor gave the Jury their charge concerning the Prisoner.

The Jury went forth and upon their return brought her in guilty of having the common fame of a Witch but not Guilty in manner and form as she stands indicted.

As showing the high estimation in which Samuel Carpenter was held at this early period by his contemporaries and the respect that was paid to his opinions in matters affecting the welfare of the community in which he lived, I add further extracts from the Minutes of the Colonial Council.

At a Council held at Philadelphia "ye 28th of ye first Month Samuel Carpenter's judgment towards raising of a tax upon liquors, viz, upon Brandy 12 d. ye Gallon, Beer, Ale. Rum, Spanish Wine 5d per Gallon: Madeira each pipe 50s. French Wine 4£ per Tun and give in this way 1000£ by way of customs upon goods, is his best advice."

On the 22d of the Third Month, "It was moved that Samuel Carpenter be sent for to be discussed with all about farming the Excise, but he declined to do it." On the 20th of the same month, Samuel Carpenter with eight others attended the Council "to advise and consult concerning the collection of the revenue." "Who if they accept it, they shall not only be made Savers, if they give in a just account but gayners. They are to give in an account here to-night at 6 o'clock."

Post Meridian. "Samuel Carpenter offers and all of them are willing, that a survey may be made upon their goods, and think they shall raise three hundred pounds more among friends, that may answer the thing intended; also that they will give an account thereof and get the inscriptions to be in lieu of other engagements."

At a Council held at Philadelphia "ye 22nd day of ye Eighth Month 1684—Ordered that James Claypole, Samuel Carpenter and William Frampton be commissioners to dispose of the French ship Hope condemned by order of the Council as a French bottom and no wise free to trade or import any goods into any of his Majestys Plantations in America." Sold by "inch of candle to Barnabas Wilcox for £59 s10 d6."

"On the 9th of 2d Mo. 1685 Samuel Carpenter received a Commission to appoint a Collector in New Castle County."

In May, 1685, the name of Samuel Carpenter appeared in the list of the members of the Legislature of New Jersey returned to represent the Third Tenth. A note appended says, "Robert Turner and Samuel Carpenter appear not."

On the 25th of the Ninth Month of the same year the same body again assembled, at which time Samuel Carpenter appeared and took his seat to represent the Salem Tenth, and was appointed one of the Council. (Vide, Leaming and Spicer.)

At a meeting of Council held at Philadelphia on the 5th of the Fifth Month, 1686, a license was granted to Joshua Carpenter to keep an ordinary in the house erected for that purpose by his brother Samuel Carpenter on the wharf.

At a meeting of Council held at Philadelphia on the 9th of the Seventh Month, 1687, Samuel Carpenter was returned by the sheriff of the county of Philadelphia to serve in Provincial Council in the room of James Claypole for the remaining time he was to serve. "This day signed the attest and took his seat at the Board."

A Friends school was established in Philadelphia in 1685, which upon the petition of Samuel Carpenter and others was duly incorporated. The charter was granted by William Penn with extensive privileges, and names Samuel Carpen er one of fifteen trustees to whom the care of its management was intrusted. It was situated on the east side of Fourth street below Chestnut.

In 1688 William Penn, having received a letter from Thomas Lloyd requesting to be released from public affairs, wrote to his Commissioners of State (of whom Thomas Lloyd was president) as follows:

[Extract.] Holland House, England.

I am sorry that my esteemed friend Thomas Lloyd covets a quietus, who is so young active and ingenuous, but since it is his desire, I do hereby signify his dismissal from office and the trouble he has borne (for some time of rest and quiet at least) and do nominate to be commissioned in my name under the great seal Samuel Carpenter who I hope will accept and industriously serve that Station.

Samuel Carpenter accepted the appointment, and the record of numerous deeds and patents bearing his signature as one of three commissioners representing the Proprietor in his absence may be found in the books of the Office for Recording of Deeds, etc., for the City and County of Philadelphia.

The Proprietor, William Penn, conferred a "Charter of Privileges" on the Province October 28, 1701, and also issued a "Charter for the City of Philadelphia," dated October 25, 1701.

Likewise by letters patent, October 28, 1701, under the Great Seal, he established a Council of State for the Province and Territories (Proud's "History of Pennsylvania," Vol. i) as follows:

William Penn True and absolute proprietary and Governor in Chief of the Province of Pensilvania and Territories thereunto belonging

To all to whom these presents shall come, sendeth Greeting:

Know ye, that I have Nominated appointed and Ordained my Trusty and well beloved friends, Edward Shippen John Guest Samuel Carpenter William Clark Thomas Story Griffith Owen Phineas Pemberton Samuel Finney Caleb Pusey and John Blunston to be my Council of State for ye Government of the said Province of Pensilvania and Counties annexed, of whom any four, shall be a Quorum to consult and assist with the best of their advice and Council, me or my Lieutenant or Deputy Governor for ye time being in all publick affairs and Matters relating to ye said Government & to ye peace, safety and well being of the people thereof, and in the absence of Me and my Lieutenant out of the said Province & Territories or upon my Lieutenants decease or other incapacity I do by these Presents give and grant to the said Edward Shippen John Guest Samuel Carpenter William Clark Thomas Story Griffith Owen Phineas Pemberton Samuel Finney Caleb Pusey and John Blunston or any five of them, to exercise all and Singular ye powers Jurisdictions and Authorities whatsoever to me and my Heirs by virtue of the Royal Charter or Letters Patent of King Charles ye second given and granted that are or shall be necessary for ye we l Governing of ye said Province & Territories and for ye administering Maintaining and Executing of Justice, and providing for ye safety and well being of the said people during such absence, they and each of them, the said Edward Shippen John Guest Samuel Carpenter William Clark Thomas Story Griffith Owen Phineas Pemberton Samuel Finney Caleb Pusey and John Blunston to continue in place till my further order shall be known, and I do further hereby grant to my

Lieut Governor for ye time being full power and authority upon ye decease or removal of any of the said Council to Nominate & appoint others to serve in their place and stead, also to add to the number of Council now appointed, and to appoint a President of ye said Council when and so often as my said Lieutenant shall see cause, and in case he shall not appoint a President, then the First named or ye next to him shall and is hereby empowered to take ye chair.

Given under my hand & Great Seal of this Province at Philadelphia the twenty Eighth of October in the Thirteenth year of the reign of King William ye Third over England &c, and the One and Twentieth of my Government Anno Domini 1701.

Signed. Wm Penn.

Recorded in the Rolls Office at Philadelphia in Patent Book A, Vol. ii, p. 154, 155, 9th Mo., 14, 1701.

The curious picture of Philadelphia which hangs in the Philadelphia Library, painted by Peter Cooper about the year 1714, represents as a conspicuous object the house of Samuel Carpenter as seen from the river near Walnut Street. "Carpenter Stairs," nearly opposite, was a passageway from Front Street to what was at first called King Street, but which since the Revolutionary War has been called Water Street.

"The Globe Tavern" (in which Joshua Carpenter obtained a license from the Council to keep an ordinary) was in later days called "Peg Mullin's Beef Steak House." The late Colonel Morris said it was the fashionable house in his youthful days. Governor Hamilton and others held their clubs there, and there too the Freemasons and most of the public societies and parties held their meetings.

Very little is now known of the foreign commerce that was carried on during the period between the settlement of Philadelphia in 1682 and the death of Samuel Carpenter in 1714, but it is certain that a considerable trade existed with the West India Islands, together with frequent voyages to England. The islands of Jamaica and Barbadoes were points of frequent intercourse. The exports were chiefly agricultural products, grain and tobacco, together with skins and furs; so "Carpenter's Wharf" was a well-known landmark, and all accounts agree that he was the most enterprising and successful merchant of his time.

From the time of his arrival in Pennsylvania, Samuel Carpenter was actively engaged not only in the multifarious transactions of his own private business, but also in the improvements of the town and in the affairs of government. Watson, in his Annals of Philadelphia, says, "The name of Samuel Carpenter is connected with everything of a public nature in the early annals of Philadelphia. I have seen his name at every turn in searching the old records. He was the Stephen Girard of his day for wealth, and the William Sansom in the improvements he made and the edifices he built." His enterprising spirit and desire to promote the growth and improvement of his adopted city led him beyond the increase of the population, so that the depreciation of his real estate, together with heavy losses incurred in trade brought about by the war of 1703, greatly embarrassed him and finally made it necessary for him to sell his property to liquidate his debts.

The following items of real estate are known to have belonged to him, most of which are mentioned in Watson's Annals of Philadelphia:

1. A large estate in and adjacent to the town of Bristol in Bucks County, Pennsylvania with saw- and grist-mills and including most of the site of the present town of Bristol.
2. The slate-roof house at the southeast corner of Second Street and Norris Alley (now Gothic Street).
3. Certain town lots situated on the north side of Market Street, Philadelphia, between Fifth and Sixth Streets, and reaching half-way to Arch Street.
4. He was joint proprietor with William Penn and Caleb Pusey of a grist-mill at Chester.
5. A lot of ground extending from the Delaware River to Second Street and from Walnut Street to Norris Alley.
6. The mansion house on King Street, crane, bakery, ten warehouses, Globe Tavern, and long wharf built on the eastern-most portion of the last-mentioned lot.
7. One-half of a mill at Darby with a large pond.
8. Five thousand acres of land lying on Poquessing Creek fifteen miles from Philadelphia.
9. The Sepviva plantation, containing 380 acres, part of Fair Hill, in the County of Philadelphia.
10. One thousand acres in Piles Grove Township, Salem County, New Jersey.
11. Fifty acres lying between the lands of William Cooper and of John Kaighn in the City of Camden.
12. Six hundred acres on Timber Creek in New Jersey, constituting part of the Howell estate of "Fancy Hill."
13. Eleven hundred acres situated in Elsinborough near the site of the old Swede Fort in Salem County, New Jersey, and including the farm now or formerly owned by Clement Hall.
14. Three-sixtcenths of five thousand acres of land and a mine called Pickering's mine.
15. A coffee-house at the northeast corner of Front and Walnut Streets and scales.

In 1684 Samuel Carpenter purchased from Samuel Jennings six hundred acres of land in New Jersey, lying on the south side of Timber Creek, having a considerable front on the River Delaware. This tract includes much of the land that constitutes and belongs to the valuable fisheries at Howell's cove and which is now held by the heirs at law of the late Col. Joshua Howell.* These lands descended to his son Samuel Carpenter, 2d, whose widow Hannah Carpenter sold them to Samuel Ladd, from whom they descended to his daughter Deborah West, whose daughter Anna married Col. Howell.

In 1689 he also bought from William Royden fifty acres of land situated in New Jersey opposite the city of Philadelphia, having a considerable front on the River Delaware, being part of a survey made to the said Royden extending from the Delaware to Cooper's Creek. This tract lies between the lands of William Cooper on the north and of John Kaighn on the south and includes a large part of the central portion of the city of Camden.

CORRESPONDENCE

COPY OF A LETTER FROM FRANCIS DANIEL PASTORIUS TO SAMUEL CARPENTER

Recently (1910) a manuscript book was found among the effects of the late Mr. Charles J. Wister, of Germantown, containing copies of some letters by Pastorius, in his own handwriting, written to some of his friends on various subjects, which he evidently thought worth preserving. Among others is a letter from Pastorius to Samuel Carpenter, in which he expresses his views on the systems of charity schools, orphanages, etc., in Europe, as set forth in a book loaned by Carpenter to Pastorius for his perusal. It will be noted that there is no date to the letter, but in it Pastorius speaks of an intimacy with Carpenter which had existed 26 years. As they both came to Philadelphia in 1683, this would make the date of the letter 1709. This manuscript book probably came into the possession of the Wister family at an early date, and has remained with them to the present. The following was copied from the original by Mrs. L. Caspar Wister.

On the first page of the book is this:

Some hasty copies of letters written to good friends, which nevertheless in their transcripts are much mended, and so agreeing with these only in substance. Many others I wrote to my old acquaintances in Germany, England, etc., and kept no copies at all, but the few subsequent ones I thought fit to leave unto my two sons J. S. P and H. P. [John Samuel and Henry.]

To Samuel Carpenter

Loving and Respected friend

I cant but acknowledge myself highly indebted to thee, on divers accts, so more especially for thy generosity in communicating many a good book to my perusal; and having returned the most of the former with either a couple of sorry rimes scribbled on any vacant page thereof, or small letter (like this) besides.

I now at present, sending hereby back "the historical relation of the Charity School and Orphan House etc at Glaucha Hall in Saxony" thought it my duty to accompany the same with these few lines, thereby to forward the continuation of this thy favor against the instant long winter nights, if the Lord be pleased to spare life and health. If I do not here, subjoin so large thanks as are suitable to the merit of the treatise, it is, because I know that thou doest not look for a deal of grateful expression, but art obliging thy friend freely in lending and expecting naught for it. However could I but find time to run over my own itinerary, I might, methinks make some requital not altogether disagreeable; first, I could tell thee of many brave and princely Charity Schools, I have seen in the world ex. that near Naumburg, at Heilsbron, at Frankfort, etc.

Item. The several excellent Orphan Houses ex. at Amsterdam one for either sex, where at that time, have been good and fatherless children. Item. The many Hospitals as well for sick as for poor ex. that of the Saint Louis, in one of the Suburbs of Paris where 1000 persons, very conveniently may be lodged; it has an apothecary shop like that at Glaucha, and perhaps more richly stuffed. Another at Ryssel (which City cost ours very dear) founded by Count Balonin in which are indigent and diseased from the whole country, to be fetched on a mule with silver shoes, always kept to this purpose. Item. For Maimed Soldiers decrepit seamen etc at Paris aforesaid. At En Rhuissen, where Sir William Temple gave an alms to one, whom afterwards he celebrates as the only rich man he saw, in all his life.

Secondly. I doubtless could find one or other instances of such Sacred buildings, which by miraculous means were begun and finished ex. that of St. Sophia at Constantinople, which the mighty Emperor Constantinus could never have completed, had he not by an unexampled Providence found the greatest treasure imaginable etc.

However after a considerate perusal of thy above mentioned book I confess, the erecting of the Charity Schools and Orphan House at Glaucha, commenced and hitherto continued upon no visible stock of subscription, but merely upon the admirable and adorable aid of him on whom we are advised to cast our burden and to trust, Job 39-14, is extremely remarkable, and a token or sign for us of lesser faith, but seeing this is a gift of God we ought earnestly to pray for. I mean while it would be well, those several plausible essays of John Bellar, about the poor, manufactures, trade, plantations and immorality, printed in 4th, 1699, as also (where) Tho. Tryon proposed to the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen of the City of London for the building of twenty free schools in the poor parishes, etc. Item. How they might weekly raise at least 1900 pounds, for the support of the needy, and no body be the worse for it, if it were proportionately put in execution here. Yet if all these good counsels be disregarded, as too far fetched from beyond the sea, but the advice of our once beloved friend Thos. Butt, in his good order established in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, printed in 4th, 1684, have place amongst us. Or, finally in case this likewise be rejected, as the product of a whimsical brain, pray then, let the laws and acts of this Province be obeyed; for that public schools are of absolute necessity, to have the children of the poor taught, as well as those of the rich. Thou, thyself art most sensible, otherwise thou wouldst not have taken that care about your Philadelphia seven years school, wherein I was concerned as pedagogue, as thou hast done. To speak true, without flattery which would be madness itself between us, who intimately have been acquainted about 26 years, from the very infancy of this Province.

Thou approvedst thyself unto Philadelphia what that faithful Centurion (Luke 7) was to the Jews of Capernaum, in building a school house, etc. But to pass by all whats past, schools Orphans trophies and Bridewells are still wanting in Pennsylvania, and it lies at the door of you Commonwealth men to erect and establish as many as you can. I who as yet go twice to school every day (the last of the week only excepted) like that old Ludi Magister at Minden, whom a scoffing gentleman asked whither he was going, and upon his answer, to school, replied, Sir. You must needs be a dull and blockish devil, that you go yet thither; for I went only to that tedious place of whipping and weeping, till eleven years old, etc. Can contribute no more to your endeavors than mine earnest prayer for the speedy success thereof,

Wherewith I ever remain, etc.,

DANIEL PASTORIUS.

NOTE.—Francis Daniel Pastorius was an early colonist in Pennsylvania. He was born September 26, 1651, in Sommerhausen Frankenland, Germany, the son of Melchier Adam Pastorius, a judge in Windsheim. In 1668 he entered the University of Altorf. Studied law at Strasburg, Basle, and Jena, and at Ratisbon, international polity. November 23, 1676, he received the degree of Doctor of Laws at Nuremburg, and was well versed in the classical and modern languages.

Pastorius formed the acquaintance of William Penn, and was much interested in the Quaker doctrines. His associates organized the Frankfort Land Company, purchased 25,000 acres, and engaged Pastorius to act as agent and conduct a colony of Dutch and German Mennonites and Quakers to Pennsylvania. Pastorius sailed in the ship "America," and arrived in Philadelphia June 20, 1683, where he had to live at first in a cave on the river bank. The lands were located, and, on October 24, he laid out the town of Germantown on a strip between the Delaware and Schuylkill. November 26, 1686, he married Anneke, daughter of Dr. Johann Klosterman, of Mühlheim, and had two sons,—1, John Samuel, born 1690, 2, Henry, born 1692. He was the first bailiff of the town and a man of influence among the colonists. In 1687 he was elected a member of the Assembly. For many years he taught school in Germantown and Philadelphia. He was a fluent writer, published some works and left many unpublished manuscripts behind him. He remained a Lutheran until about 1692, and then joined the Quakers, and became one of their most able and devoted members. He died in Germantown September 27, 1719, but no stone marks his grave and it is not known where he is buried.

The following is a copy of a letter from Samuel Carpenter to Jonathan Dickinson, dated "Philadelphia, 4th of 5th Mo., 1698."

Kind Friend Jonathan Dickenson

Enclosed is my brother Abrm. Carpenter's bill on Richard Willotts for £81.9.9. York money which I desire thee to receive for me and bring it with thee in weighty money which I think is to most advantage here. If thou hast occasion to use it thou may, and pay me here accordingly. I send by thee R. Willotts [indistinct] lest any misunderstanding should be in the sum which I desire thee bring back with thee. If he insists upon coin for paying the money and will have it, allow him the custom of the place, which I suppose is two or two and a half per ct. So wishing thee a good journey and a safe return to thy family, I remain,

Thy friend

SAMUEL CARPENTER.

P.S. I owe Thomas Wareharn for —— the sum I know not, pray pay him and if he be in the least dissatisfied pay him interest, for I never intended he should be so long cut of his money, but it has been omitted through forgetfulness. He is my friend and Countryman and I would not yt he should be displeased with me about it. My kind respects to him.

The following letter was written by Samuel Carpenter to William Penn:

Philadelphia, 10th of 3d Mo., 1702.

Dear friend and Governor William Penn.

I have written hardly any letters to England since thou went or very few, and therefore hope to be excused for not writing to thyself. We have received but one general letter from thee by Guy and a few lines for myself under cover for Edman. I am truly glad of thy safe arrival with thy dear wife and children, etc. and of thy recovery after thy illness and hope that the Lord will preserve thee for a further service to his truth and people and thy poor country and thy own family, and that thy enemies that seek thy and our hurt, if not ruined may be frustrated, and that God will give thee favour in the eyes and hearts of those that would drive back thy and truth's adversaries, who seek our ruin to gratify their ambition covetousness and enmity, which are the grounds of their evil designs, which they endeavor to effect and carry on by means of lies, false accusations, insinuations and wrong construction, and a wresting of whatever is done or said, to the utmost of their power and interests.

I have often thought that their ambition of Government, enmity of truth and Friends and the advantage that some of them hope to reap by the Spoil with the encouragements and assistance they get from truths abroad hath and will so prompt and animate them that they will never rest until they have effected their desired end, by which means they have and do put thee to a great charge and trouble to defend thy Government from their present complaints. Thou being so sensible thereof by dear experience know the better what is fitted to be done in such a case, whether it be best to hold the Government or to give it up to the King upon the good terms of liberty and privileges to thyself and people, and property secured. Thy trouble and charge of managing this business in the defence of the Government and of our rights and liberties will doubtless be great and for my part I am willing to contribute towards the charge of it; but it is so difficult to get effects from home thither (England) and I have not any there but am in debt, otherwise, I would willingly pay some money in London towards it. And if I had so much Credit with my friends in London that would pay thee £500 Sterling I would pay the same there with interest and would receive the same here of thy Receiver General. I have therefore writ a few lines accordingly and sealed and delivered the same for the use intended in the presence of William Marrott Jr. and John Satcholl desiring it may take effect.

So to thy business here and concerns of Government I refer thee to James Logan who is intelligent and able to inform thee, only I would acquaint thee that I understand thy title to the River Delaware and soil thereof above and below New Castle is questioned by some here and that something to that effect has been written to their agent in England, so that if need be it is well to watch their motions to secure thyself as thou can. If so, not only the Island but our Buildings and authority to build into the River are liable to be questioned, tho' I do not fear as to what I have of thee.

I fear John Guest is not so honest as to pay a penny of Westown's debt, although out of the effects of William Welsh he has received £300 more, and therefore Matthew and John Westown must send the Bonds that he may be sued.

Dr. Edward Pennington was taken away one of the first by the small-pox in this town; since which it has spread in town and Country on both sides of the River, through mercy not hitherto mortal. But I have lost my dear Abraham after he had been ill fourteen days, which has been some trouble to us to part with him; but it was made more easy than I expected, considering his state of innocency and the troubles and many sorrows and afflictions both of mind and body that we pass through here.

Phineas Pemberton died the first of First Month last (19th March) and will be greatly missed, having left few or none in these parts or those adjacent, like him for wisdom and integrity and general service, and he was a true friend to thee and Government. It is a matter of sorrow when I call to mind and consider that the best of our men are taken away. How many are gone and how few remain to supply their place.

The vessel has fallen down the River and John Satcholl the bearer hereof follows in a few hours and I have several letters yet to write. So that I must break off, and conclude with love and respects to thee thy wife and children.

Thy real friend

SAMUEL CARPENTER.

Extract from a letter written by James Logan to William Penn, dated "Philadelphia 2d Sep: 1703."

I know not whether Samuel Carpenter writes to thee by this opportunity He has been much depressed of late in his Spirits about his circumstances which are heavy for he pays no less than —— per annum interest, as I judge from his own information. He has been very plain with me, though with but few others. He begs us take some measures to answer his draft on Joshua Grove for he thinks he cannot himself do it. The great damp on trade and the sale of land discourages him. Of the first he had very little this year. The under taking in Bucks has oppressed him much.

In another letter to the same he writes as follows:

Samuel Carpenter finally recovered . . . has sold the house thou lividest in, to William Trent for £850 and the Coffee house to Captain Finney for £450, towards paying off his debts and so designs to continue to the last foot he has in the Province if nothing less will do. By these two he affirms he has lost about £500.

The following is a copy of a letter from Samuel Carpenter to Jonathan Dickinson, the latter at that time residing at Kingston in the island of Jamaica. The original was given to John Redman Carpenter by Mrs. Deborah Logan.

Philadelphia, 31 Decem: 1705.

Dear Friend:—

I understand by Isaac Norris that thou art inclined to purchase something in this Province for thy children. It being my lot to lay out myself much in this country, so that upon the falling off of trade, losses and disappointments many ways, I have of late used my endeavors to sell what I can, to pay off my debts and if it please God to spare my life, to disencumber myself what I can before I die, which is and has been very burdensome to me, so that although I am possessed of considerable estate, I am very uneasy and look upon myself as very unhappy, and worse than those that are out of debt although mean or having but little of this worlds goods. My exercise and trouble is greater in that I find it a difficult matter to sell though to a loss, here being but few able to buy. Whereas, if I had such an estate in other countries, I might soon sell to pay off my debts and have enough to spare.

The occasion of this is to make thee an offer of somethings I have, viz.

A parcel of Corn Mills and Saw Mills at Bristol, over against Burlington, within a quarter of a mile from the River Delaware upon a Creek where a vessel of good burthen may come to the tail of the Mill to load and unload. There is at present two wheels and four pairs of cutting stones, and I intend another wheel and one or two more pairs of stones. The Corn and Saw Mills on the same are nearly built and the other Corn Mills newly repaired.

The Saw Mill is thirty two feet broad and seventy feet long and stands on a bank somewhat like that of Philadelphia. When the water is at its height, it is about eight or nine feet full, which is between thirteen or fourteen in all to speak in compass. When passed through the Saw Mill, it comes to the Corn Mill an under shot which grinds very well, so that we readily grind and saw with the same water—We have two cranks upon the shaft of the Saw Mill Wheel and two carriages and can cut with one Saw about seven or eight hundred feet of inch boards and more, sometimes when the water is high, timber good and well followed, viz, one thousand or more. With two Saws she will cut twelve or fifteen hundred feet a day, or in twelve hours or somewhat less.

There is belonging to these Mills a pretty supply of water and a constant supply to the Corn Mills at the latter end of Summer. Last summer and the summer and winter before we wanted water all the latter end of the summer, but now we have and are likely to have enough for the Corn Mills. We have a large pond covering two or three hundred acres of ground which is a great benefit to the Mills. Hitherto we have not had full experience of what quantity of water we had yearly for the Saw Mills but suppose we may have enough to saw Six months in the year at least, it may be eight Months or more in which we may saw 150,000 or 200,000 feet as the water may continue. I suppose the profits or earnings from the saw Mill may be £400 per annum and from the Corn Mills, now Corn is low, £250, which is £650 out of which take one third for tending £220 and £30 for charges, beside, their remains £400, the interest of £5000.

Besides which I have a considerable of lands and town lots adjacent and two Islands the whole being about 2000 acres. 350 acres of which may be made meadow. At present there may be twenty or thirty acres beside considerable improvements. A considerable quantity may be watered from the pond and will make good meadow, being below the water to the quantity of fifty or one hundred acres. There is a considerable quantity of white oak timber upon part of the land to accommodate the Saw Mill for which I bought the lands on which it stands and though most of it is three miles from the Mills it may with a reasonable charge by making another pond be floated down two and a half miles through the ponds to the Mills at a small charge for land carriage. I cannot give an account of the quantity, but I have not met a finer parcel in my travels, and may moderately compute it to make several thousand pounds when cut into ships planks and scantlings.

The Mills lie well for both Oak and Pine to be floated to the trail of them, both up and down the river. So that there is no danger but that timber may be had in time to come to employ the Mills. Hitherto I have cut no timber, but had it from Timber Creek New Jersey of my own lands. Pine timber I mean and Oak from my land adjacent to the Mills, but doubt-less it may be bought for the Saw Mill as well as to supply Philadelphia with great quantities as has been and is now the case more than ever.

The next material conveniency to the Mill, is that it stands in a town and is but one and one quarter miles from Burlington and about twenty miles from Philadelphia and the Corn Mills well customed. The said town and country adjacent and Philadelphia, will take the boards and scantling for housework, ships and joiners. We sold one inch cords at the Mill at 8d per hundred at which rate we have 4.s. per hundred for cutting. I believe that if thou wast here thou would like it as well as any thou may find in the country. For good Mills of both sorts with land and meadow situations and all things considered there is not the like in these parts. The Islands front about one and a half miles on the river and lie so that we have off one and off the other and may have a convenient road, and may in a short time raise considerable stock and cattle and sheep thereon. There are three or four houses and orchards thereto belonging for tenaments which will bring some yearly profit. There are also town lots and lands of considerable value, and very little land in and about the town (Bristol), but mine which is in and near the town is valuable and likely to be more so. Lots have been sold there some at £100 and some at about two hundred pounds the acre.

And as for meadow there is none except what I have, so what can be spared may be readily sold at good rates. Because I am, as I said before, much in debt I would sell the whole or one half as thou pleasest. I believe it stands me in about £5000 being beside the yearly income of the Mills a growing estate, with respect to the lands and town lots improvements of meadows, but being under necessity I would sell to loss rather than miss so good a chapman and partner as thyself. I desire thee consider of it and if thou hast any intention thou may write to some friends to view and learn the value of these things which I think may be understood without much difficulty. The largest of the above Islands is about a mile in length and half a mile in breadth. I suppose that it may contain three hundred acres of which there is near one hundred acres of upland; the rest is swamp and cripple that high tides flow over, and may with a moderate charge be made dry and become good meadow. I have thought of stopping a Creek that I suppose will lay dry one hundred acres of it. There is a fine Mulberry walk and Orchard and a tenement upon it. A very pleasant place, just against the High Street of Burlington and hardly half a mile over the River.

I am willing to sell that one half with the rest or without. I have also about 5000 acres of land fourteen or fifteen miles from Philadelphia and the like distance from Bristol, and eleven or twelve miles from the River Delaware at Poquessin Creek—about four miles from North Wales as much from Southampton, and settlements near. The land is good and well situated which should sell also; or I would sell my house and granary on the wharf where I lived last, and the wharf and ware houses adjacent. Also the Globe Tavern and Long Vault, and several other lands. I have two fifteenths of 5000 acres of land and the mine that was called Pickering's Mine which I will sell also—I have sold Elsinborough to Esther Moore, since deceased, and my house and lot over against D. Lloyds to William Trent, and the Scales to Henry Bubcock and some other things, and the Coffee house to Captain Finley. My half of Darby Mills I have sold to John Bethel and his son Henry Morley, and to Caleb Pusey one half of Chester Mills. I shall not trouble thee any further with these things, and conclude with mine and my wife's love to thee and them

Thy real friend,

SAMUEL CARPENTER.

In a subsequent letter to Jonathan Dickinson, dated 3d of 10th Month, 1706, Samuel Carpenter mentions that he had sold four acres of land in Bristol to the Society of Friends for a meeting-house and burial-ground, and that he had granted to the county of Bucks 100 feet square for a court-house agreeable to Act of Assembly.

The house which Samuel Carpenter mentions as sold to William Trent was the ancient building (built about 1698) that formerly stood at the southeast corner of Second Street and Norris Alley (now Gothic Street). I copy the following description of this house from the manuscript of J. R. Carpenter (1828).

It has always been known as the Slate House, from the circumstance of the roof having been covered with slate long before any other building in the infant city of Philadelphia had a similar covering. Its dimensions are about forty-five feet front by fifty-five feet deep. It is of brick, two stories in height, with large projecting eaves and a square turret at each of the front corners; these were subsequently concealed by a wooden front which had been placed between them so as to enlarge the interior of the building by filling up the recess which they formed. Within, but few alterations have been made and these do not conceal the original arrangement of the apartments. In the centre of the front may still be seen the Gothic arched door-way, opening into a narrow entry which is rendered curious by heavy old-fashioned wainscoting and which communicates with the principal rooms below stairs.

From these you pass into the smaller rooms within the turrets, which were perhaps intended for offices or studies. It is not many years since the diamond-shaped sash still remained in some of the windows; at present, however, they are all of modern construction. What renders the original appearance worthy of some attention is the fact that James Logan in one of his letters to Penn speaks of it as the choicest house for a Governor in the Province of Pennsylvania, and strongly urges him to purchase it for that purpose.

It was occupied by William Penn as his residence during the whole of his last visit to Philadelphia, excepting about one month immediately after his arrival, which he passed with his friend Edward Shippen, and in it his eldest son John Penn was born.

Samuel Carpenter sold this house at a considerable loss for £800 to William Trent, the founder of the city of Trenton, New Jersey, who in 1709 offered it for sale asking £900 for it, still deemed the cheapest house in the city. From William Trent it passed to Isaac Norris, and is now (1828) the property of his descendant Sarah Norris Dickinson, daughter of the celebrated Governor Dickinson.

In the year 1764, and for some years subsequently, this building was occupied as a boarding-house by the mother of Alexander Graydon, author of a work called "Memoirs of a Life Chiefly Spent in Pennsylvania." He describes the house and some of its inmates, it being then the most genteel establishment of the kind in Philadelphia. It was occupied by officers of the Forty-second Regiment, as also by those of the Royal Irish. Baron de-Kalb, a German officer in the United States army who fell a major-general at the battle of Camden, and Sir William Draper, the antagonist of the celebrated Junius, with other distinguished gentlemen of that period, are mentioned as having their lodgings there. General Forbes died there.

"The Annals of Philadelphia," by John F. Watson, contains some additional particulars relating to this ancient edifice, together with a plate exhibiting its orig na appearance. It was allowed to remain in the same condition until 1867, when it was taken down and the present Chamber of Commerce erected upon the site where it stood.

For the coffee-house Samuel Carpenter received £450. There is some doubt as to the precise location of this first established Exchange of Philadelphia. There is, however, strong traditional reason to believe that it stood on the northeast corner of Front and Walnut Streets. John R. Carpenter says, "the venerable Samuel Coates assured me that he was so told by his predecessors." The opinion is strengthened by the fact that the ground upon which it stood was once owned by Samuel Carpenter, whose lot extended from the Delaware all the way through to Second Street and from Walnut Street to Norris Alley as before stated. On the west side of Front Street within those limits a row of houses was still standing in 1828 which was erected by him.

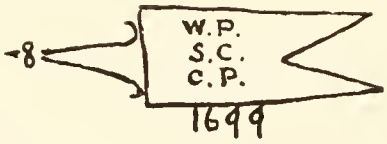
The long vault was probably a store-house formed by excavating the river bank before William Penn permitted any houses to be built upon that portion of the city plot, viz., between the east side of Front Street and the west side of Water Street.

Samuel Carpenter owned lots upon Market Street. The three-storied building that formerly stood at the southeast corner of Front and Market Streets was erected by him.

He gave to the Society of Friends the ground near Second Street on which the old Market Street Meeting House stood. The Darby Mills in all probability occupied the same site on Darby Creek on which the Oakford Mills afterwards stood. John F. Watson visited the site of the Chester Mills many years ago, at which time some of the timbers could still be seen in the water. Its machinery was imported from England by Richard Townsend, a distinguished member of the Society of Friends. After him the mill was owned as joint property by William Penn, Samuel Carpenter, and Caleb Pusey. Watson found among the rubbish in the garret of an old house in the vicinity the original vane of the mill. This vane is now in the possession of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania. It is of iron and bears upon it the initials of the owners' names:



The following extract is from a letter written by Jonathan Dickinson to Samuel Preston, asking his advice and that of his brother-in-law, Isaac Norris, in relation to the estate near Bristol, Pa., offered by Samuel Carpenter to Jonathan Dickinson in his letter of 31st of December, 1705.

Kingston, Jamaica, Mar. 28, 1706.

Samuel and Rachel Preston.

Dear Samuel in my last to thee I mentioned that our very good friend Samuel Carpenter had proposed in regard to one half of his interest at New Bristol. I cannot doubt his sincerity in the least but in buying and selling the case lays wide on each part. Thy opinion of judgment thereon. What improvements are likely to be added upon a new fund? The value, if thou art pleased to favour me with thy judgment, I shall depend upon as well as thy brothers. If in the multitude of councillors there is safety I must rest upon my friends, I am

Thy obliged and affectionate friend

JONATHAN DICKINSON.

Many of the early Friends whose names are mentioned in the history of Philadelphia, prominent in the society and in the affairs of government in those days, emigrated from the West Indies, whither they had fled to avoid the persecutions to which they had been subjected in their own country, as has been before stated. Some of them were men of large means and became the owners of large tracts of land in and adjacent to the city, which by the increase of the population and spread of improvements afterwards became of great value, and secured their descendants in affluence for generations.

Jonathan Dickinson, who is mentioned in this correspondence, resided in the island of Jamaica, where he owned large estates. Being of a cautious and prudent temperament, when he decided to emigrate and to take up his residence in Philadelphia, he very naturally became solicitous about a safe and profitable investment for his money. He eventually, though with many misgivings, purchased a large tract in the Northern Liberties, which descended to his daughter Hannah, the wife of Thomas Masters, known as the Master Estate.

Isaac Norris, in the following letter, gives his opinion of the Bristol property and the proposed purchase of one-half interest in it, viz.:

Philadelphia the 3d June 1706.

Dear Friend Jonathan Dickinson.

In thine of the 15th thou hints somewhat of having written Bro. Preston and self for our advice or opinion concerning Samuel Carpenter's Mills and other Conveniences near Bristol; but that letter never came to hand. It is a thing of considerable importance. You are both my good friends, and if my judgment which is not of the best in this kind of things should fail, I am in danger of Scylla and Charybidis.

Thus much I venture to say: 'Tis well designed—There is foundation and prospect of a growing and noble estate unless any contrary Providence should intervene and tho' there is to keep up and erect improvements a necessity of constant outlay, yet there is some constant income from it; but on the other hand it must be in good hands as to will, skill and ability or it may sink. A man yt has it ought not to want his stock out of it nor too much depend on the immediate advantage.

Upon the whole I cannot think the price set on it by him much too large and think Samuel has not near his cost in it, and considering Samuel's circumstances the thing may be at present somewhat too heavy for him, and an honest cheerful and able partner may cheer and quicken him so it may carry on the estate with vigor and to good advantage having very good grounds to expect a settled and growing interest if anything in these parts is such. So yt everything considered we cannot think of a fitter partner for Samuel nor can we discourage, but encourage any inclination of thine to purchase it.

The price he sets is £2700. I would pursuade him to abate the £200 for the sake of so good a partner, but he thinks his abatement too great already. However you are at such a distance that cannot conveniently bill at price and he says that this consideration made him sell at the lowest. He gives thee his estimate.

I am thy friend

ISAAC NORRIS.

To the exerted influence of Samuel Carpenter, Watson, in his Annals of Philadelphia, imputes the change that was made from the original plan of the city as respects the building up of the bank on the east side of Front Street. It is certain that he was the first person that obtained permission from the Proprietor to build upon the river bank. He agreed to pay a high ground-rent for this privilege, with the reversion of one-third the estate in value after the expiration of fifty years. It is said that Penn yielded a reluctant consent and wrote "my necessities and not my will hath done this thing."

The following correspondence I insert here, although not in chronological order, on account of its relation to this matter. The first letter is from Hannah Carpenter, daughter of Samuel Preston and widow of Samuel Carpenter the Second.

Philadelphia, 12th Mo. 12th 1759.

To the Proprietors:

As my late husband Samuel Carpenter made application to our Proprietors John Penn and Thomas Penn, when they were in this province to acquit him of thirds reserved in that part of his Father's lot which he then and we now possess the Proprietors were then so kind as to promise him that they would willingly grant the thirds in such manner as should be most agreeable to us. Which the Proprietary Thomas Penn was so kind as to repeat to my father Samuel Preston, and told him that he had directed the Secretary to minute the order for the grant to be made in such manner as to suit best from which we apprehended that we could have it done by applying to him.

My family being then too young to be consulted on such an occasion and other delays arising from the manner of conveyancing, it was left unfinished. My Husband and Father since dieing nothing has been done to this day and on applying to the Secretary he says that he does not remember to have received orders from the Proprietary to do it.

As I have no doubt of the Proprietary's readiness to confirm their said promise, and as I presume their intention was to grant the thirds in such manner as should best suit the circumstances of the case, I have now, my family being grown up, consulted them and they have agreed to an Instrument, a Copy of which I take the liberty to enclose, and which if the Proprietaries should approve and should be pleased to order to be executed or otherwise to give directions for confirmation of such grant which they were so generous to offer us, it will confer a lasting favor upon their thankful friend.

HANNAH CARPENTER.

The following is an extract from a letter written by James Logan to Thomas Penn, dated Philadelphia, July 30, 1741.

Yesterday Joseph Wharton calling here requested of me that I would certify to thee what I knew of his wife's Grandfathers' (Samuel Carpenter) merits towards thy father, and whether he had received any gratification for his services.

Though I had for some considerable time past resolved by no means to meddle in any of the Proprietaries business (those of the six nations of Indians alone excepted) yet I justly conceived so honorable an esteem for that worthy good man during his life, and for his memory after his death (though not well used by his successors) that I should think it highly unjust in me who know full as much of that matter I believe as any man living to deny so reasonable a request.

I must remark that thy Father himself acknowledged when here that he owed those high (Ground Rents) quit rents for the Bank lots of Philadelphia and the reversion of the thirds of the value after fifty years entirely to Samuel Carpenter who against his the Proprietaries will had tempted him with these to suffer himself and the other purchasers in the Front to build on the East side of that Street.

And I think I may confidently aver that Samuel Carpenter never since I came into the Country received directly or indirectly any consideration whatever from thy Father, and I believe as little before for any manner of service; for he appeared in flourishing circumstances when thy Father left the Country last subscribing with Jonathan Dickinson to that petition—"To have a price set on the reversion of said thirds which was done at twenty shillings per foot; now nearly forty years ago, very much in view to raise a sum then very much needed."

But alas! by a war which was declared, the ensuing Spring, and by the bolting being carried generally into the Country to the Grist Mills which then first began that year to be generally built in all parts—though before that time there were not above one or two at the most at more than three or four miles from the Delaware River and all these on navigable waters.

By these means I say the profitable trade which he carried on before almost entirely failed and his debts coming upon him and the Mills and other estate sinking in value so that he could by no means clear himself, and from the wealthiest men in the province as he was accounted to be when thy Father left he became very much reduced, and all of his bonds are not discharged until this day.

To the above, Thomas Penn wrote in reply to Hannah Carpenter as follows, dated London, May 27, 1760.

Madam:

I wrote to Mr. Peters intending to send it by the last Packet to inform you I had received your letter and should answer it to yourself at the next opportunity, that I very well remember the promise made to your husband and father, and therefore we should perform it by releasing to you the thirds of your portion of the lot of Samuel Carpenter in such a manner as we should be advised was safe to us from any further demands of the family. I have added in the draft the real consideration for which it was granted, viz. the services done by your father in law to my father, my very good and worthy friend both to him and to us. I have directed Mr. Peters to finish this business as soon as possible and desire you will be assured I have great pleasure in settling it out of regards to the good friends of my family as well as to yourself being with great truth—Your affectionate friend,

THOS. PENN.

Among the papers of the family there has been found a copy of a letter undoubtedly in answer to the last. It is without signature, but must have been written by the Hannah Carpenter mentioned in the correspondence.

Philadelphia 21st 3d Mo. 1761.

May it please the Proprietors.

I was favored some months since with your obliging letter of the Fifth Month last, acquainting me with your kind intention of releasing to myself and children your thirds of the part I now hold of my deceased husband's lot, in consideration of his and my own father's services to our late worthy Proprietor and yourselves, which intention pursuant to instructions for that purpose to the Governor hath been executed in the most authentic manner by a proper instrument under the Provincial Seal. I have therefore no motives for giving the Proprietors this further trouble but those arising from a due sense of the favours received, for which I beg leave on my own and in behalf of others concerned to return the most sincere and respectful acknowledgments.

Their most obliged and affectionate friend.

To the Proprietaries.

The Government of William Penn and his Deputies, as is well known, sustained for many years a violent and able opposition from a numerous party in the Provincial Assembly. The men who composed the Governor's Council were often therefore placed in opposition to the representatives of the people who claimed a more democratic form of government than the executive thought proper to allow.

The following extract from the address of the Council to Lieutenant-Governor Gookin in 1709, in reply to certain reflections and insinuations made against them in the address of the Assembly, exhibits a spirit becoming their official station and character.

Notwithstanding the Proprietor and Lieut. Governor finding themselves under a necessity of having a Council about them to advise with in affairs of Government have thought fit to choose us for that service, in which according to our several solemn engagements we have acquitted ourselves to the best of our judgments and ability, yet not one of us receives or expects any other advantage by it than the satisfaction of having discharged our duties to the Country we live in, and to advance the prosperity and happiness of it as much as may be in our power. We have no salaries or allowances to encourage us. What we do is at our expense of time, trouble and charge and upon the whole of our own estates is our dependence which giving us as full an interest as others can pretend to in the Country, and being without any views of interest different from the good of the whole, no man without a manifest violence to his reason can imagine but that we are as careful to prevent and divert miseries, confusions and diversions that may threaten the Province as any other set of men whatever.

Upon the whole may it please the Governor, though on the one hand we shall be exceedingly unwilling to have any misunderstanding with the representatives of the people knowing it an unhappiness that all reasonable measures should be taken to prevent, yet on the other we shall not by any means be diverted from discharging the trust imposed upon us during our continuance in this station with honor and justice to the best of our abilities; but from time to time shall offer to the Governor such advise as we shall judge both conducive to the general good of the Province-in the welfare of which we are so nearly concerned in our several private interests and in the mean, time hope to be secured from calumny and misrepresentations.

Signed by I. Yates, R. Hill, Joseph Growden, Edward Shippen, Samuel Carpenter, Samuel Finney, William Trent.

James Logan takes exception to the clause which relates to offices of profit, as he received a salary as Secretary of the Commonwealth.

A TRANSACTION BETWEEN JAMES LOGAN AND SAMUEL CARPENTER.

Agreement between James Logan of Philadelphia and Samuel Carpenter merchant.

Whereas James Logan of Philada hath this day sold unto Samuel Carpenter merchant One Half of his shares parts or interest in the Ship "Diligence" of this place Bartholemew Penrose Master now on Cateby Riding in Virginia and bound for London, as also one half of his shares or parts of what Tobacco they have on board on the Owner's account, being in the whole, by estimation about 80 or 90 hhds., as by a memorial thereof under the hand and seal of the said James Logan may more fully appear.

Now this writing witnesseth, and it is agreed by and between the said James Logan and the said Samuel Carpenter, that whether the said Ship and Cargo be or shall be damaged or lost or not damaged or lost at writing hereof (the said James Logan at the same time declaring that he knows nothing directly or indirectly but that the said Ship and Cargo was and are well and free from all damage). The said Carpenter has bought of the said James Logan and takes to the same as it now is all his the said James Logan's one half of the Interest that he hath in the said Ship and Cargo, and to run all risks thereof and to one half of the profits accordingly, and the losses thereof, as if the said Carpenter had been originally concerned in building and carrying on the said Ship, and in purchasing the said Tobacco, in consideration whereof the said Carpenter obliges himself, his heirs, executors and administrators to pay to the said James Logan parts or shares of the said Ship and Cargo as the accounts shall be settled and adjusted between him and the rest of the owners thereof, and further, the said Samuel Carpenter obliges himself, as about to pay interest thereon from this date, but if the said Ship should be lost, James Logan doth freely acquit and discharge the Interest to the time of advised of her being lost.

For the true performance of the Premises on the part of the said Samuel Carpenter, he hath hereunto put his hand and seal, the 12th day of the 1st Mo. 1707–8

NOTE.—The original paper is in the possession of Miss Susan M. Carpenter, of Camden, N. J. The name of Wm. Fishbourn, in his signature as a witness, is spelled without the "e."

The negotiations with Jonathan Dickinson were not consummated. Samuel Carpenter retired from trade and concentrated his attention chiefly upon his Bristol estate. He had a summer residence upon the island opposite the town of Bristol. The house he inhabited there was standing a few years prior to 1828. A bakery that belonged to him was then still to be seen in the town of Bristol, He was a zealous member of the Society of Friends, and, although he became much reduced in his circumstances in the latter years of his life, his integrity was never questioned.

The name of Samuel Carpenter occurs frequently in Proud's History of Pennsylvania, to wit, among others the following:

Samuel Carpenter and four others member of Council wrote a letter to the Proprietaries exculpating Thomas Lloyd, Deputy Governor, from some blame (i, 358). Samuel Carpenter and eight others wrote a letter to William Penn, dated November 10, 1693, concerning affairs of Government (i, 382). Samuel Carpenter, Samuel Preston, and eight others sign a remonstrance to Governor Fletcher (i, 359). William Penn writes to Samuel Carpenter and others concerning the restoration of the government of the Province, in a letter dated 10th of 11th Month, 1693 (i, 401).

Samuel Carpenter with five others join in approving the Charter of Privileges from William Penn, October 25, 1701. Samuel Carpenter a member of the Assembly from Bucks County, 1705 (i, 462). Samuel Carpenter with four others appointed trustees of the mortgage when the Province was mortgaged by William Penn. In 1707 the Assembly bring a charge against Samuel Carpenter for refusing to pay monthly, agreeable to their order, Samuel Carpenter being Treasurer of the Province; vindicated by the Governor as acting according to law (ii, 10 and further).

A memorial signed by Samuel Carpenter and eight others, members of Council, was presented to Council, dated April 8, 1709, vindicating themselves from the charge of giving evil counsel to a former Governor (Evans) as charged by the Assembly, and distinguish what they meant when they said, "The late Governor was too much influenced by evil counsel," by expressly throwing the blame upon James Logan and some others not of the Governor's Council (ii, 12). In 1709 the Assembly consulted Samuel Carpenter and other Quaker members of Council on the Governor's requisition for aid in taking Newfoundland. The quota required was one hundred and fifty men, and four thousand pounds. The Assembly, on advice, refused to answer the requisition, but offer a present of five hundred pounds to the Queen (ii, 25).

EXTRACTS FROM PENN AND LOGAN CORRESPONDENCE.

Logan to Penn (vol. i, p. 301). "But the risk is great through the great number of Martinico privateers. They have this war taken over 150 sail of English, four of ours. Another large sloop belonging to Isaac Norris, Samuel Carpenter etc. The last stick that Samuel was concerned in at sea was taken on her return hither by a large privateer of St. Maloes coming from the Havanna called "the Duke of Orleans" and being bought again for £800 sterling, came a few days ago into Maryland. Capt. Puckle is we believe lost, the vessels that came out in company being arrived in Boston and Maryland some weeks ago." . . .

Logan to Penn (vol. ii, p. 140) . . . "The three ablest that I know of my acquaintance are Samuel Carpenter, Isaac Norris and Richard Hill. The first says, tis a pity, but if thou hold'st it, thou'll be ruined. The second is wholly a trader, and will not advise on the matter, the latter heartily wishes that other means could be found to discharge thy incumbrances."

Logan to Penn (vol. ii, p. 156). . . "I have discoursed very seriously with Samuel Carpenter, whose judgment I take to be the best of any man in the Province, and the sum of what he says, besides what I have mentioned already is, that for him or any other man in his place, to advise thee to part with the Government, would be exceedingly dangerous for the person that did so, were it known. But, were he to whisper in thy ear, he would tell thee his thoughts more fully, which in short, are if thou can get anything for it from the Crown, and good terms for the people with it, tis the only thing advisable at this juncture, for this Province cannot now raise anything, they have it not, nor do I believe there is so much money, as thou mentions, in the whole Government." . . .

Penn to Logan (vol. i, p. 171). Speaking of his son, who was then preparing to embark for Philadelphia, he says: "If Samuel Carpenter, Richard Hill or Isaac Norris could gain his confidence . . . I should rejoice. Pennsylvania has cost me dearer, in my poor child than all other considerations."

Samuel Carpenter died at the house of his son-in-law William Fishbourn, at Sepviva Plantation, in the County of Philadelphia, on the tenth of the Second Month (April), 1714, greatly beloved and lamented.

In a letter to William Penn dated 2d Mo. 11th, 1714, James Logan says, "We have now lost our dear friend Samuel Carpenter, he departed last night about 11, at his daughter Fishbourne's where he lodged when taken ill, for he had no dwelling in town, having removed last Fall to Bristol. He lay about twelve days ill of a violent rheumatism and fever in great pain, but just before his departure he took leave of all his friends about him and went quietly away." And further, of his honor, integrity, and high estimation in which he was held ever since his arrival in this country, he adds, "and how much it was due from all men, sufficiently appears by the heavy melancholly that sits on the faces of all here who had a value for sincere honesty and public spirit, upon his lying a dead corpse and to be laid tomorrow in the grave. He was universally esteemed and beloved here. As I always loved him and his generous disposition, so do I find on his exit few more could have left a greater degree of concern on my thoughts. I need say nothing to thee on the loss of such a man, but the sense of it was seen on the faces of hundreds. I am satisfied that his humble and just soul is now at rest."

Thomas Story, a distinguished preacher among the Friends of that day, in a letter to Hannah Fishbourne writes, "That the Lord has gathered my dear friend to himself from all sorrows, troubles and griefs which were many and various. I have no manner of question, nay I may say I am fully satisfied, he has attained the state of the just and is praising his God and our God in Heaven in joy unspeakable which never changeth."

From a memorial written by his daughter Hannah Fishbourne I also extract the following tribute to his memory.

He was a pattern of humility and self-denial a man fearing God and hating covetousness, much given to hospitality and good works. He was a loving affectionate husband a loving father, a loving and faithful friend and brother. His house and heart were ever open and free to entertain the messengers of God, and he was ever willing to be servicable to truth and friends. He was very ready to help the poor, and such as were in distress, and I doubt not but that he has received a rich reward from the hand of the Lord. His memory is precious among the living and renowned among the just, and though he is dead yet he speaketh and his name shall be remembered among the faithful for generations to come. And although the loss of him be great to us who were nearly related to him, yet we feel the love and presence of him the mighty Lord who in his divine wisdom saw fit to take him to himself out of all sorrow and danger.

To the foregoing I will also add the following notice of him from Proud's History of Pennsylvania.

Samuel Carpenter arrived early in Pennsylvania and was one of the most considerable traders and settlers. He held for many years some of the greatest offices of the Government, and through a great variety of business he preserved the love and esteem of a large number of acquaintances. His great abilities, activity, and benevolent disposition of mind in divers capacities, but more particularly among his friends the Quakers, are said to have rendered him a very useful member not only of that religious society, but of the community in general.

The will of Samuel Carpenter the First, merchant, was signed in Philadelphia, April 6, 1714.

Leaves the mansion he built on King Street (now Water Street), the ten warehouses and the wharf adjoining to his wife Hannah, and his two sons Samuel and John. One half the income therefrom to his wife, and the other half divided between the two sons, under a trust for this purpose to Isaac Norris and Richard Hill. Gives £300 to his daughter Hannah Fishbourne. The residue of his property to be divided into thirds. One third to go to his wife Hannah, and the remaining two thirds to be divided between his three children. Appoints his wife the sole executrix. After her death, his children Samuel Carpenter, John Carpenter, William Fishbourne and Hannah his wife, to be the executors, and his brother Joshua Carpenter, Samuel Preston, Isaac Norris, Richard Hill, and Caleb Pusey of the County of Chester, coadjutors to advise and assist the executrix and executors.

NOTE.—The following offices in the Province of Pennsylvania were held by Samuel Carpenter, 1st. (See Penna. Archives, Second Series, vol. ix.)

Member of the Governor's Provincial Council, September 9, 1687-89, 1695, 1697–1713.

Provincial Treasurer (first Treasurer), June 4, 1704, 1710–1711–1713.

Deputy for Governor (William Penn), November 24, 1694, September 3, 1698.

Member of Assembly, 1693, 1694, 1696.

Member of Assembly (for Bucks County), 1705.

Samuel Carpenter and four others appointed trustees of the mortgage when the Province was mortgaged by William Penn.

NOTE.—Calendar of the Society of Friends.—Soon after the arrival of William Penn the following law was enacted in Pennsylvania. "Past at an Assembly held at Chester, the 7th day of ye 10th Month called December, 1682.

"SECTION 35. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid that the dayes of the week, and ye months of the year, shall be called as in Scripture, and not by heathen names, (as are vulgarly used) as the first, second and third days of ye week, and first, second and third Months of ye year, and beginning with ye day called Sunday, and ye month called March."

On account of the change from Old to New Style and the action of Parliament thereon, in the minutes of the Yearly Meeting held at Philadelphia, Pa., for Pennsylvania and New Jersey, from the 14th to the 18th day of Seventh Month, 1751, it was decided that thereafter the method of computing time among Friends should be changed. January to be called the First Month of the year, instead of computing from the month called March, to commence January 1, 1752. Eleven days were to be omitted in September, 1752.—From the article by Spencer Bonsall in the Pennsylvania Magazine of History and Biography.

THE BROTHERS AND SISTERS OF SAMUEL CARPENTER

Samuel Carpenter had three brothers, John, Abraham, and Joshua, and three sisters, Damaris, Deborah, and Mary, of whom,

I. JOHN CARPENTER (brother of Samuel) remained in Horsham, Sussex Co., England, and left issue.

II. ABRAHAM CARPENTER (brother of Samuel) emigrated to Philadelphia and died there without children. He was buried in the old Friends Burial Ground April 10, 1708, although not a member of the Society of Friends. His wife died about Third Month, 1705. See letter of Isaac Norris to Jonathan Dickinson, Third Month, 11, 1705: "Abraham Carpenter buried his wife in about 24 hours of like distemper." He was a merchant, and the following is an abstract of his will.

The will of Abraham Carpenter, of the City of Philadelphia, merchant, was signed March 26, 1708. Proved April 14, 1708. Leaves the house he lived in on King Street (now Water Street), and the lot pertaining thereto, to his kinsman Thomas Mitchell Cooper, and in case of his death without issue to John Carpenter, son of his brother Samuel, and, should the building be sold, £50 to be paid to Abraham, son of Annie Acton. his houses, land, tenements, personal property, and goods to his brother Samuel Carpenter and his son Samuel: in trust, to pay therefrom all of the legacies hereafter bequeathed.

To Elizabeth, daughter of Enoch and Sarah Story, £50. To Samuel Fishbourne, son of William and Hannah Fishbourne, £50. If he die, to the next surviving child. To his sister Mary ——, of Lambeth, England, widow, £50. In case of her death, to be divided among her children. To his sister Damaris, wife of David Hunt, £50. In case of her death, to be divided among her children. The children of his brother John Carpenter, of Horsham, Sussex, England, deceased, £5 each.

Cousin Susannah, daughter of John and Ann Welch, of Southwark, £25. The children of his sister Deborah Jupp, deceased, £5 each. The children of his sister Mary, £5 each. The children of his sister Damaris £5 each. To his kinsman Thomas Mitchell, £10, to buy working tools. Cousin Robert Story, £25. Cousin Sarah Fishbourne, £25. To Samuel, the son of his brother Joshua Carpenter, £20. To Samuel and John, the sons of his brother Samuel Carpenter, £20 each. Abraham, the son of Annie Acton, to be put to school at the charge of the estate, until he is fit to be bound out as an apprentice, and also gives him £50. Elizabeth Paine, £10. To his brother Joshua Carpenter, moneys due on a bond from Thomas Pryor of Philadelphia, baker. To Mary, the wife of George Fitzwater, £10. Hannah Hardiman, £10. Deborah Hardiman, £10. Sister-in-law Elizabeth, wife of his brother Joshua Carpenter, £50. Sister-in-law Hannah, wife of his brother Samuel Carpenter, £50.

The negro woman Hagar to live with Samuel Carpenter, and her son Ishmael to live with her. Gives the boy Ishmael to Samuel Carpenter.

Appoints Samuel Carpenter and his son Samuel Carpenter, Jr., executors.

Recorded, office Register of Wills, Philadelphia, Book C, page 87.

Abraham Carpenter in his will mentions all of his brothers and sisters, and leaves legacies to most of his nephews and nieces.

III. Joshua Carpenter (brother of Samuel) also emigrated to this country about 1686, settled in Philadelphia, and became a prosperous and influential citizen. He was justice of the peace for Philadelphia County, May 18, 1693; the first alderman appointed under the charter of 1701. Was one of Penn's Commissioners of Property in 1708, and represented the City of Philadelphia in the Provincial Assembly in 1702, 1706, 1707, 1708, and 1721. He built and resided in a large house, afterwards called Graeme Hall, which stood on a part of the lot since occupied by the Arcade, on Chestnut Street between Sixth and Seventh Streets (now removed).

He never joined the Quakers, but retained his connection with the Church of England, and was actively interested in the organization and building of Christ Church, Philadelphia. He purchased the lot on which it stands in his own name, and subsequently executed a declaration that he held it in trust for the sole use and benefit of that corporation, and it so stands unchanged, the legal title remaining in the representative of Joshua Carpenter, trustee.

He died in 1722; buried July 24, 1722 (Christ Church Records). His wife died in 1729; buried October 30, 1729 (Christ Church Records). They were interred in the centre of Washington Square. Mrs Susan Shober informed me that she remembered, and had often seen, the iron railing that enclosed the space where the grave was situated. There is a tradition that this place was selected from the circumstance that a daughter of Joshua Carpenter had committed suicide, and was excluded from burial in the church grounds. If this is true, we have no record of the birth, death or name of this member of the family. I have frequently heard it stated by my grandfather Thomas Carpenter, and others, that the lot of ground now constituting Washington Square was at one time in the possession of Samuel Carpenter, who gave it for a free burial place for strangers. It was called the Potter's field, and was used as a common burial ground until after the yellow fever of 1799.

Thousands of silent dead sleep beneath the greensward and gravel walks which now adorn it.*

The will of Joshua Carpenter, of Philadelphia, brewer, was signed August 7, 1720, with a codicil signed July 23, 1722. He leaves all his property, real and personal, to his wife Elizabeth, who is appointed sole executrix. The following legacies are to be paid six months after his wife's decease by her executors: Robert Story, £25; Patience Story, £75—the children of his daughter Sarah Story. His son-in-law Enoch Story, one shilling. His sisters Mary —— and Damaris Hunt, near London, in Great Britain,

* Washington Square was never owned by Samuel Carpenter. It was one of the squares set out in the original plan for public use and to be reserved for ever. Notwithstanding this, however, on the recommendation of the Mayor and others, William Penn issued a patent January 29, 1706, authorizing its use for burial purposes as a Potter's field. March 30, 1706, Joshua Carpenter leased it for twenty-one years from the corporation, for a small rent, agreeing to fence it. Afterwards it was leased by Jacob Shoemaker, as it afforded good pasturage, and April 14, 1766, Jasper Carpenter leased the ground for seven years at an annual rent of £10.

Many prisoners who died in the old Walnut Street jail during the Revolution were buried in the square opposite, and hundreds who died of yellow fever in the epidemics which ravaged Philadelphia later. The square was not used as a burial place after 1815. L. H. C.

£5 each. Cousin Ann Busfill, £5; her children, William, Mary, Mercy, and Joshua Busfill, £5 to each. Two cousins, Abraham and Thomas Mitchell, £5 each. Recorded, office Register of Wills, Philadelphia, Book D, page 325.

The will of Elizabeth Carpenter, widow of Joshua Carpenter, of Philadelphia, signed July 5, 1729, gives to her son Samuel Carpenter a gold shirt buckle, his father having already settled a very good estate on him. To her granddaughter Patience Annis, the daughter of Sarah, one silver tankard, six silver spoons, six silver forks, new case of drawers, table, large looking-glass, six cane chairs, a feather bed, bolster, and two pillows, a sacking-bottomed bedstead, blankets, quilts, blue curtain, a great copper kettle, one dozen new pewter plates, 3 dishes and a bell-metal skillet. To her friend Peter Evans, for many services rendered, two negro women, named Ambo and Phillis, and also a negro girl named Nanny. The residue of the estate is given in trust to her son Samuel Carpenter and Peter Evans, for the benefit of her daughter Sarah Low, during the time of her natural life. All of the rents, issues, and profits to be for her use and the maintenance of her children. Appoints her daughter Sarah Low sole executrix. Recorded in office Register of Wills, Philadelphia, Book E, page 118.

ELIZABETH CARPENTER, born Aug. 27, 1763; died Sept. 2, 1850; married, Jan. 17, 1790, ABRAM COOKE (2d wife). He was born June 1, 1754, at Brantford, Conn.; died Dec. 3, 1843; had issue. Two children died in infancy (Joshua [1] and Jasper [1]).

It is claimed that William Carpenter, a descendant of Joshua[1], removed to Salem County, New Jersey, from Delaware, and settled in Elsinboro about the year 1750. He belonged to the Church of England and was buried in the cemetery of St. John's Episcopal Church at Salem. He married Mary, daughter of Jeremiah Powell, and left 4 children,—viz., Mary, William, Powell, and Abigail. Mary married Job Ware. William married Elizabeth Ware. Powell married Eliza Slaughter and secondly her sister Ann Slaughter. Abigail married Edward Hancock. Powell was wounded at the massacre by the British and Tories at Hancock's Bridge, Salem County, during the Revolutionary War.

Joshua Carpenter, brother of Samuel Carpenter, 1st, left also a daughter, Sarah, who married Enoch Story, son of Robert Story, and Patience Gardiner. Robert Story died Dec. 29, 1683. Enoch Story was born Feb. 12, 1681; died Dec. 17, 1723. Sarah Story married secondly, June 24, 1727, Dr. William Lowe. From the first marriage descended he Hockley and Walsh families of Philadelphia.

Samuel and Sarah are the only children named in the will of Joshua Carpenter and also in the will of his wife Elizabeth Carpenter.

IV. DAMARIS CARPENTER (sister of Samuel Carpenter, 1st) married DAVID HUNT, of the Borough of Southwark near London, and left issue.

V. DEBORAH CARPENTER (sister of Samuel Carpenter, 1st) married —— JUPP, and left issue.

VI. MARY CARPENTER (sister of Samuel Carpenter, 1st) married and lived at Lambeth, England.

THE DESCENDANTS OF SAMUEL CARPENTER

1. SAMUEL CARPENTER, 1ST, born Nov. 4, 1649; died April 10, 1714; married Dec. 12, 1684, HANNAH HARDIMAN, born in Wales, 1645, died in Philadelphia, July 24, 1728, aged 83 years.

ISSUE (SURNAMED CARPENTER):

2. HANNAH, born March 3, 1686; married Jan. 8, 1701, WILLIAM FISHBOURNE.
3. SAMUEL, born Feb. 9, 1688; married July 2, 1711, HANNAH PRESTON.
4. JOSHUA, born March 28, 1689; d. y. April 16, 1689.
5. JOHN, born May 5, 1690; married Nov. 11, 1710, ANNA HOSKINS.
6. REBECCA, born April 24, 1692; d. y. April 1, 1693.
7. JOSEPH, d. y. April 26, 1695.
8. ABRAHAM, d. y. April 9, 1702.

2. HANNAH CARPENTER[2] (Samuel Carpenter[1]), born March 3, 1686; died July 25, 1728; married in Philadelphia, Jan. 8, 1701, WILLIAM FISHBOURNE, merchant and prominent member of the Society of Friends.

(For descent through the Fishbourne Family vide post.)

3. SAMUEL CARPENTER, 2D[2] (Samuel Carpenter[1]), born Feb. 9, 1688; died November, 1748; buried Nov. 14, 1748; married HANNAH PRESTON, July 2, 1711, daughter of Samuel Preston and Rachel Lloyd his wife, daughter of Thomas Lloyd, of Dolobran, Wales, Deputy Governor of the Province, President of the Provincial Council.

HANNAH PRESTON was born in 1693; died March 6, 1772.

SAMUEL CARPENTER, 2D, was a merchant in Philadelphia, and resided in the house built and occupied by his father, situated on the east side of King Street, now called Water Street, a short distance north of Walnut Street. Justice of the peace for Philadelphia County June 4, 1715, Aug. 19, 1718, June 14, 1722, and May 12, 1725. Member of Common Council Oct. 2, 1716. Member of the Assembly 1720–21–22.

SAMUEL CARPENTER, 2D, became a successful merchant and died possessed of a considerable estate. His will, dated Nov. 11, 1748, is couched in the most affectionate terms. It gives to his wife, after payment of debts and funeral expenses, all of his moneys, goods, chattels, and personal estate absolutely, and all of his messuages, store-houses, lots, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, for and during the term of her natural life, and, after her death, to be equally divided among his five children, and appoints his wife sole executrix thereof.

A large tract of land situated below the mouth of Timber Creek, in Gloucester County, New Jersey, constituting part of the Fancy Hill estate of Colonel Joshua Howell and wife, was derived by purchase from HANNAH CARPENTER.

HANNAH PRESTON, wife of SAMUEL CARPENTER, 2D, died in Philadelphia on the 6th of March, 1772, in the seventy-ninth year of her age, having survived her husband nearly twenty-four years.

The following obituary notice is copied from a newspaper of that day. "On Friday, 6th instant, died Mrs. HANNAH CARPENTER, widow. Her last illness, though very tedious and painful, was supported with a greatness and strength of mind altogether unusual in one of so advanced an age. Far from repining at the dispensation of Providence, or shrinking at the prospect of death, she welcomed its approach as the only means of relief from her sufferings and a happy removal from works to reward. Her remains, attended by a great number of citizens, on the Sunday following were interred in the burial ground of the society called Quakers, on Arch Street, Philadelphia, by whom she was always esteemed an exemplary member." Mary Lloyd, the first wife of her grandfather, was the first person interred in the same ground. William Penn was then present, and addressed the assembled mourners by the side of the grave. The descendants of Lieutenant-Governor Lloyd have since exclusively occupied the southwest corner of the enclosure at Fourth and Arch Streets, and there HANNAH CARPENTER sleeps with the other members of her family.

SAMUEL CARPENTER, 2D, married HANNAH PRESTON.

ISSUE (SURNAMED CARPENTER):

9. SAMUEL, 3D, died Feb. 20, 1747; married in Jamaica, April 28, 1743, ELIZABETH WALLIS, of Kingston, Jamaica, died Dec. 19, 1780.
10. RACHEL, born 1716; died at Carpenter's Landing, N. J., Nov. 16, 1794, unmarried.
11. PRESTON, born Oct. 28, 1721; died Oct. 20, 1785; married (1) Oct. 17, 1742, HANNAH SMITH; married (2) HANNAH MASON, née Cripps.
12. HANNAH, married Feb. 8, 1746, SAMUEL SHOEMAKER; died May 1, 1766. He was born 1725; died Nov. 10, 1800; married (2) Nov. 10, 1767, Rebecca Rawle, née Warner.
13. THOMAS, born 1729; died 1770, unmarried; buried at 4th and Arch Sts., Dec. 9, 1770.

From a letter addressed to SAMUEL CARPENTER, 2D, in 1714 (three years after he was married), by Samuel Preston, his father-in-law, he appears to have indulged too much at one time in irregular habits, although there is no doubt that he "mended his ways" and became an esteemed citizen. The original copy in the handwriting of the author is preserved, with an endorsement that he had delivered the original on the day upon which it was written.

Philadelphia, the 20th of 11th Mo. 1714.

I persuade myself that I need not use arguments to make thee sensible how thou stands interested in my affections. Thou must believe, when I gave thee my daughter, with the manner and circumstances of my doing it, that it was because I loved thee—and if thy reason may be permitted to guide thy judgment, thou will not unkindly resent what I herein say to thee, but understand and accept it, as a further confirmation of my good will towards thee. Believe me Samuel, I have with great sorrow seen in thee that which in affection duty and conscience, I am constrained to take notice of, and observe to thee for thy information, and that is thy constant, frequent and pernicious practise of going to taverns. It is very surprising, and exercising to me, and I take it to be an infallible sign of thy degeneracy from the religious example and discipline which thou hast had, and I do say to thee that unless thou reform thou art in great danger of being utterly ruined and everlastingly unhappy in perpetual woe and misery. I pray thee give me leave to say to thee (I am sure it is in all abundance of love) some injurious effects that flow from that cause and though I mention that, the expense, 'tis what I think the least of, but upon a modest computation that cannot be less than forty or fifty pounds per annum, which spent in thy family would make housekeeping more generous, and thy entertainments at home much more to thy liking, and abundantly more reputable; but if nothing of that sort be wanting, then it would certainly be an addition to thy estate, and an advantage to posterity. But the time thou spendest abroad in public houses is injurious to thy business reputation, relations, friends and family. They that come upon any business are disappointed, and what might have offered for thy interest is turned another way, and that is not all, thy reputation is sullied, which once sunk, the current of trade stops and is hardly ever regained. It is a scandalous imputation, "he is not at home but he certainly may be spoken with at Radleys." Thy absence from thy family makes thee too much a stranger to thy friends, and relations, whose visits and conversations might be instructive, edifying and conducive to thy advantage, not only in preserving affection, but helpful in advice, and experience, if needful; but the worst part is, it need be extremely disagreeable to thy wife who cannot but think herself slighted and ill used, that no endearment of hers, nor the very pledges of her affection, ever afford any agreeable entertainment, diversion or contentment at home but something must be sought for elsewhere—such once kindled are seldom if ever quenched, but all the bonds of conjugal affection, that brings you together are dissolved, and to speak plainly I fear something of the kind has got ground in her already—her disconsolate looks and frequent indispositions denote a depressed spirit (though I must say and it is a comfort to me) I never heard the least repining from her. To enumerate the many disorders that arise from this detestable practice, would carry me too great a length. I must confine myself to brevity, and only say that the too frequent use of strong drink is destructive to the whole fabric of life. It wets and destroys the animal spirit and clouds and affects the brain, breaks the constitution and contexture of the body. It makes man, the emblem of his creator, worse than the inferior or irrational creatures. How contemptible is the drunkard. But thou mayst say is not the case. I confess I have not heard it, and am religiously thankful for it. But let me remind thee, there is "a woe to them that go mightily to drink strong drink." Upon the whole Son Carpenter, that which weighs most within me, is, the concern I have for thy future estate, inasmuch as we did not give ourselves being, but are and must be subject to a being much superior to us, ('though I must grant it ought to be our greatest concern in life to be conformable to the will of that power that made us). I beseech you think seriously, our souls are at stake. If we deceive ourselves on this great point, the loss is irreparable. Most certain it is (the text is plain) "such as we sow such must we reap." Let us therefore I pray thee, as is our indispensable duty and interest, examine what we are sowing. If it be fleshly and corrupt delights and carnal pleasures, we shall assuredly reap corruption. If our works are works of iniquity, it is not our saying Lord, Lord, nor professing what we have done in his name that will save us, our doom Christ himself has declared will be "depart from me ye workers of iniquity I know ye not." Seeing then that our doom is irreversible, that our rewards must be such as our works are, and that the workers of iniquity must depart unknown, thou wilt confess it very much concerns us to take a view of ourselves—The tree is known by its fruits, men do not gather grapes of thorns or figs of thistles. Give me leave therefore son Carpenter to query why art thou grown religiously cold? Thou appearest once or twice a week at the appointed place for visible worship; but so often so far out of time, that in charity I believe thou art ashamed and from a sense of guilt in thyself gets as much out of sight as thou well can. Art thou not become estranged in thy heart from those of the best reputation for sobriety and Christian worth? Is not the time thou spendest in the society of such persons from tavern conversation and company uneasy to thee? Art thou the primogeniture son, heir, and name of thy father, in the possession and inheritance of his virtues? Dost thou love honor and reverence his name? Come up in his place, tread in his footsteps, follow his example precepts and discipline. Art thou not unmindful of thy aged mother, a widow, to give her double honor, who acts the part of a double parent? As to customs, fashions and unprofitable conversation, art thou not therein taking a liberty for which in the end, in the tribunal of thy own conscience thou standest condemned?

Pray Samuel let these things take place with thee. I am well assured thou art gone from the innocency of thy good education, which I take to be the indication of a distempered mind brought on thee through a very ill habit.

Apply thyself to the great Physician of souls. He is able and no other to work thy cure. Take his medicine, follow his prescription; 'tis written in thy own heart, submit to the operation of it and thou wilt be made perfectly whole; but without such application thy disease will prevail. It must be a work of grace and a submission thereto, that will remove the cause, nothing else will do. Self resolutions are ineffectual and 'though they may give some imaginary relief, it will be but a deception, the cause remaining, the effects will not cease. I therefore because I love thee, earnestly beseech thee to take my advice who am in great affection,

Thy affectionate father,

SAMUEL PRESTON.

Samuel Preston, father of HANNAH, wife of SAMUEL CARPENTER, 2D, was a member of the Governor's Council, 1700, 1709, 1735, one of the commissioners appointed by Penn to adjust the boundary between Pennsylvania and Maryland, Master of the Court of Chancery Aug. 25, 1720, treasurer of the Province 1714–1743, and Mayor of the City of Philadelphia Oct. 2, 1711. He was born in 1665, and was an influential member of the Society of Friends, and distinguished for his agreeable manners, pleasant and facetious disposition, good understanding, and integrity. SAMUEL CARPENTER, 1ST, and Samuel Preston were intimate friends, and were appointed by William Penn trustees of all his estates in Pennsylvania.

Samuel Preston was a native of Patuxent, Calvert Co., Maryland. After the settlement of Pennsylvania, he resided in Sussex County, Delaware, which he represented in the Assembly in 1701. He subsequently removed to Philadelphia and filled some of the highest stations in the government of the Province. He was a man of great benevolence, sound sense, and much presence of mind, whose life was instructive to others and his practice a continued series of good offices. In a testimony issued by his Monthly Meeting may be found recorded the following tribute to his memory: "He was an Elder circumspect in his conduct and carefully concerned for the good of the Church, active and serviceable in the maintainence of our Christian discipline, and by his attention to the dictates of Divine Grace became qualified for this service."

He died on the tenth day of September, 1743, in the seventy-ninth year of his age.

He married, first, Rachel, daughter of Thomas Lloyd, of Dolobran, Wales, at the house of Francis Cornwall in Sussex County, Del., July 6, 1688. She was born Jan. 20, 1667; died Aug. 15, 1716. Their children were:

[1] MARGARET, born 1689; married May 27, 1709, to Dr. Richard Moore, of Maryland, and had issue. He died in 1734.

[2] MARY, born 1691; d. y. Sept. 7, 1693.

[4] LLOYD, d. y. May 22, 1695.

Samuel Preston married, secondly, Margaret, widow of Josiah Langdale, from Yorkshire, England. He died on the passage to this country in 1723 Margaret Burton Preston was born in 1674 and died August 23, 1742, in the fifty-eighth year of her age, and left no issue.

Samuel Preston owned one-fourth of the ship "Grey-hound," trading to London, and on the marriage of his daughter HANNAH to SAMUEL CARPENTER, 2D, he ordered his share of the profits of the voyage to be expended in the purchase of articles principally for her use.

The following is a copy of the original invoice:

"What ariseth from the one-fourth of ship Grey-hound voyage to and in England after ship charges. I would have sent me from said ship if she return, otherwise from the first opportunity in the undermentioned goods, viz.

1. Doz. best cane bottomed chairs.
1. Couch, black framed, with a cot suitable thereto.
1. large black framed stand, or coffee table, oval.
2. do not black.
2. large looking glasses without any carved tops.
1. of ym a black frame.

Also ten pounds of good coffee, 1 lb. of Bohea Tea, 1 lb. of green. Chintz of different prints for 2 sets of curtains, with large quilts to match. Some maps, plain and intelligible, to value of 30 or 40 shillings.

SAML. PRESTON."

NOTE.—The glass with black frame descended to my grandfather Thomas Carpenter, of Carpenter's Landing, in whose possession it remained until his death in 1847. It is now in the possession of the family of his grandson, the late Judge Thomas P. Carpenter, of Camden, N. J.

THE PRESTON FAMILY

Richard Preston came from England about 1635, and settled in Upper Norfolk County, Virginia, the earliest record being a grant of land from Governor John West of 150 acres of land to Richard Preston, for the transportation of his wife and two other persons into the colony, dated December 22, 1636. Besides other grants of several hundred acres, there appears in "the Land Grants," "From Sir William Berkely to Richard Preston, Gent.," 500 acres of land in the County of Upper Norfolk, etc. Confirmed Nov. 25, 1644, by an order of Council, for the transportation of five persons into the colony, paying the fee rent of one shilling for each fifty acres. Dated Dec. 18, 1646. Richard Preston was one of the justices of the County Court, in 1646, for Nansemond County, Virginia. A large number of Puritans had settled in this part of Virginia, and Richard Preston sympathized with them, in opposition to the established church. These persons were subjected to many arrests and fines for refusing to attend the services of the Church of England, and finally when Lord Baltimore promised religious freedom, with lands at a small rental, the Independents of Norfolk and Nansemond Counties accepted the offer, and formed colonies on the Severn and Patuxent Rivers and the south side of Preston's Creek in Maryland.

It is recorded that Richard Preston came to Maryland in 1649, with seven in his family, and entered land for 73 persons. The rolls of Calvert County show that 500 acres of land were surveyed to Richard Preston May 28, 1650, 400 acres called "Preston" were surveyed July 21, 1651, on the north side of Patuxent River and south side of Preston's Creek. On this property the dwelling was erected, and the plantation is still known by the name of "Preston."

Troth says, in "Some Colonial Mansions," "This house, without apparent alteration except having a smaller front entrance than in the original, is still standing upon the plantation, yet known and called by the survey name of 'Preston,' given July 21, 1651, and is the oldest building extant in Maryland." Other plantations were acquired by Preston, besides land on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

Upon authority from the Commonwealth of England, then under Cromwell, the existing government in Maryland was deposed, and a commission, including Richard Preston, Edward Lloyd, and other Puritans, was placed in charge March 29, 1652. For two years this portion of the province remained under Puritan rule without question, until Lord Baltimore in England, becoming dissatisfied with this condition in his colony, instructed Governor Stone, his representative, to raise a force and break up the government on the Patuxent. This order was obeyed, and a detachment captured the records at Preston, but the main body finally encountered the Puritan levees at Providence on the Severn, and in the conflict that ensued the party under Stone was defeated by their opponents, with a loss of about fifty killed and wounded, Stone and all his officers being captured. A court martial was held, and Lieutenant William Lewis, the military commander, and two others were executed. Governor Stone escaped with a temporary imprisonment. The Puritan party remained in charge of the government nearly four years longer. Finally a settlement was made satisfactory to both sides, with a general amnesty, and the General Assembly held Feb. 28, 1659, contained representatives from the entire province. Richard Preston was a representative for Calvert County afterwards from year to year until the last session of 1666. At the sessions held April 18, 1661, he was presented as Speaker of the Lower House. Richard Preston, Jr., is recorded as representing Dorchester County, on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, at the April session of 1669, this being the first year of the organization of that county.

Many Quakers came into Maryland soon after 1658, and their missionaries succeeded in converting numbers, in the face of much opposition. Among others Richard Preston and many church members changed their faith, and adopted the new belief. In 1663 Governor Calvert, in a letter to Lord Baltimore, calls Richard Preston "the great Quaker."

When Richard Preston left Virginia, he had with him his wife Margaret and five children,—[1] Richard, Jr., [2] James, [3] Samuel, [4] Naomi, and [5] Margaret. Two children, Rebecca and Sarah, were born in Maryland. Samuel probably died young.

Richard, the eldest son, married and had one child, Samuel, born about 1655, who afterwards removed to Philadelphia. Richard, Jr., died in 1669, but left no will. His widow, Margaret, in January, 1670, married William Berry, son of James Berry, born in Northampton County, Virginia, about 1635. James Preston, second son of Richard, Sr., died in 1673, leaving a widow, Elizabeth, and one child, Rebecca.

Naomi Preston, the eldest daughter of Richard, Sr., married William Berry as his first wife. After her death he married Margaret, the widow of his brother-in-law, Richard Preston, Jr. She died about 1663, leaving three children,—[1] William Berry, Jr., who married Naomi Whalley, of Bucks County, Pa.; [2] James Berry, who married, first, Elizabeth Wilchurch, and, secondly, Elizabeth Pitt; [3] Rebecca Berry, who married James Ridley and moved to Salem, N. J., in 1702. Margaret Preston, daughter of Richard, Sr., probably died young. Rebecca married Lovelace Gorsuch, and Sarah married, first, William Ford, and, secondly, Edward Pindar.

The will of Richard Preston, Sr., is dated September 16, 1669, with a codicil dated December 2, 1669. The will was proved before William Calvert, January 8, 1669.

LLOYDS OF DOLOBRAN

Thomas Lloyd, Lieutenant-Governor of Pennsylvania, was descended from an ancient Welsh family resident for several generations prior to the emigration at Dolobran in Montgomeryshire, some six or eight miles northwest of Welshpool. Owing to the fact that the principle of primogeniture was unknown in Wales (lands descending there among the children of the owner on the principle of gavelkind), the large estates were rapidly distributed in that country, and by the seventeenth century there were comparatively few great estates which had directly descended from the original ancestor. To quote from the works of Walter Davies (vol. 3, page 119, etc.), "The gavelkind tenure, in partitioning an estate between all the sons of a proprietor, had a pauperizing tendency to reduce all the inhabitants of a country where such a custom was observed in an equal state of insignificancy . . . the only preservative against the general wreck of landed property by gavelkind was the chance of an estate descending to an only son and that son marrying an heiress similarly circumstanced."

Dolobran is at the present day (1909) a farm of a few hundred acres. While its extent at the time of Thomas Lloyd's birth is not known, it is probable that it was of considerably greater extent, but even then a small fraction only of the large estates once held by this family.

Quoting again from Walter Davies (vol. 3, page 123): "In the Township of Teirtrev is the mansion of Dolobran (Dolau Bran or Dol Ebran), once the residence of a family named Lloyd, descendants of Celynin of Llwydiarth, and he of Aleth lord of Dyved. Celynin bore sable he-goat argent, attired and unguled or.

"In the reign of Charles II, Charles Lloyd, Esq., of this place, and Thomas Lloyd, his brother, became early converts to the tenets of Richard Davies of Cloddian Cochion, the first Welsh Quaker, and suffered much for conscience' sake in that age of bigoted intolerance. The esquire built a meeting-house for himself and his brethren upon his own estate near Coed Cowryd, which is still standing. Thomas Lloyd was among the emigrants of Pennsylvania under the auspices of the great and good William Penn. At New York he had an interview with the Rev. Morgan Jones, and transmitted his (Jones's) strange narrative of having been some months conversing with and preaching to a colony of Welsh Indians near the source of the River Missouri, to his brother, Charles Lloyd, at Dolobran; which has since been published by the Rev. N. Owen in his British Remains. But this narrative, like several others of late dates, turned out to be a complete fiction. . . . Charles Lloyd, his brother Thomas, and the Morgan Jones above mentioned had been contemporaneous students at Jesus College, Oxford; but the fable of the Welsh Indians in America did not originate with them. Dr. Powell in his History of Wales, Hackluyt in his Voyages, Sir Thomas Herbert in his Travels, had all of them previously given their sanction to the creditability of the tradition that Prince Madog had sailed 'far to the west,' etc.; but we have no authority for supposing that he ever sailed beyond Ireland or the Isle of Man, or even that he ever boarded a skiff save over the Strait of Menai. He met, as is above hinted, with a violent death in his native land; and the perpetrators of the nefarious deed to account for his disappearance spread a report that he had collected a fleet and set sail in quest of a more pacific settlement This invention gained credit; and the lovers of the marvellous are scarcely willing to give up the point even at this day; and on this baseless fabric the present poet laureate erected one of his epics."

An anecdote respecting Thomas Lloyd is given in the works of the Rev. Griffith Edwards, page 74. He states, "In the 'Autobiography of Richard Davies,' of Welshpool, the Quaker, we find the following allusion to Lord Herbert of Llyssyn: 'My friend Thomas Lloyd and I were moved to go and visit most of the justices that had a hand in committing Friends to prison. We began at the furthest justice towards Machynlleth and came down to Edward Lord Herbert, Baron of Chirbury, at Llyssyn aforesaid, who had committed Charles Lloyd and several other Friends. We understood on the way that he was at a Bowling Green, and several with him, near a place called Cann Office, near the highway not far from Llyssyn, where we beheld them bowling. We considered with each other which way to take, there being a peevish priest, the said Lord's chaplain, with them; so I asked Thomas Lloyd whether he would engage the priest in discourse or go to the said Lord, which he chose. He got into the green leisurely towards him where most of them knew Thomas, but he went not in their complimenting posture. He stayed there but a little while and they broke up their game, and while he discoursed with the Lord Herbert, I discoursed a little with the priest. Lord Herbert, coming towards the priest and me, said to the priest: "Mr. Jones, what have you got there?" He answered, "A Quaker and haberdasher of hats from Welshpool." "Oh," said Lord Herbert, "I thought he was such a one: he keeps his hat so fast upon the block." Then, he intending and preparing to come down a great steep ditch, I stepped down to lend him my hand to help him; another priest would have stepped between me and him, but Lord Herbert refused the priest's help, and, stepping a little, said to the priest, "Here is a brother that stands by who will say the blind leads the blind, and both will fall into the ditch." The priest was so drunk that he could not stand by himself. This Lord Herbert, being a very big fat man, took my help to come down, so we went along with him towards his own house at Llyssyn, laying the sufferings of our friends before him and that their sufferings were for their consciences' sake towards God.' "

The parish church at which the Lloyds of Dolobran worshipped is in the village of Meivod, a mile or two distant from Dolobran.

Walter Davies (vol. 3, page 96) says: "The assumption that Meivod, inconsiderable as it must have been as a village, should notwithstanding have three distinct places for religious worship all within the precincts of the present churchyard, rests upon no frail foundation. . . . The first in point of time may be that dedicated to St. Gwyddvarch, the hermit already mentioned-although I am not informed in what century he practised his self-denials. . . . The second church was dedicated to Tyssilio, a saint and writer of the seventh century. . . . History is silent as to the time this church was erected. . . . We may infer that most of the princes of the two races of Mervyn and Convyn, who resided at the neighboring castle of Mathraval, had their sepultures in the fane of this popular saint. . . . The third church, the only one now standing, is dedicated to St. Mary, and, according to Carodoc, was consecrated in the year 1155."

In giving some account of the last-mentioned church and the vicars who have conducted the services there since 1537, Mr. Davies (vol. 3, page 102) says: "The register contains the baptism of thirteen children of Randolph Davies, vicar, and Mary, his wife, from the year 1649 to 1666. According to the above dates, he held the living 47 years. During his incumbency Quakerism, etc., had made a considerable schism in his flock; and, as an endeavor to arrest the progress of dissent, he published, in the year 1675, a tract of 237 pages, 12mo, in excellent Welsh, with a dedication, 5 pages, in the same language, to Edward Vaughan, of Llydiarth, Esquire. The first title-page in English thus: 'Tryall of the Spirits, and of a Discovery of False Prophets, and a Caveat to beware of them; and a short Treatise on 1 John, iv, 1. Wherein is discovered by the light of God's word, expounded by antiquity, that several doctrines of the Papists, Presbyterians, Independents, and Quakers are disagreeable to the holy scripture and carefully to be avoided by every man that oves the salvation of his soul. Pro Ecclesia clamitant et contra Ecclesiam domicant. Cypr.'

"There is a tradition preserved in the parish that this vicar's wife had a sister living at Pentre Gov; and one Sunday morning they met at Pentre Parog to cross each other's path at right angles, one due south towards church, the other due west towards the Friends meeting house at Coed Cowryd, near Dolobran. After a few words of salutation had passed and each preparing to depart, the vicar's wife said, 'If you had grace, my dear sister, you would come with me.' A reply was instantly given, 'If thou hadst grace, thou wouldst come with me.' And so, both orthodox in their own minds, they departed towards their respective places of worship."

The ancestry of the Lloyds of Dolobran is given at length by Charles Perrin Smith, in his book called "The Lloyd and Carpenter Families."

THE LINEAGE OF THE LLOYDS OF DOLOBRAN.

This ancient family was established in Montgomeryshire, Wales, as early as the middle of the sixth century, and was descended from

[1] MEIRIG, the first on record; then his eldest son

[2] SAWL, then in succession to the seventh generation,

[7] COLLWYN, Prince of Demeca or Dimetia, a tract of country around Myvoid, consisting of a part of Merionethshire and Montgomeryshire;

[8] GWYN, Prince of Dyfed; thence in succession, in the time of the Princes of Dyfed, to

[18] JERWETH, Lord of Falgarth, married (A.D. 1112) Ellen, daughter of Uchdryd Edwyn, Prince of Fegengl; thence in successive generations to

[22] RIRID ap Cynddelw, married Gwladys (Claudia), daughter and heiress of Ririd, Lord of Llwydiarth in Powysland;

[23] CELYNYN of Llwydiarth (he bore for arms "Sable a he-goat attired and langued or"). Celynyn of Llwydiarth married Gwenllian, daughter of Meredith ap Rhydderch, descended from Tewdwr Maur (or Theodore the Great), Prince of South Wales.

[24] ENION ap Celynyn, Llwydiarth, married Gwenllian, daughter of Adda ap Meiric of Mochorant, descended from Brochwel, Prince of Powys.

[25] LLEWELLYN ap Enion, of Llwydiarth, married Llenei (Lucy), daughter of Griffith Lloyd of Bromfield in Flintshire, son of Ednyfed Lloyd of Maelor, descended from Earls of Hereford.

Llewellyn divided his estates among his children, giving Llwydiarth and Llanihangel to his eldest son, and his lands in Myvoid and Dolobran to his second son, David, who married Meddefys, daughter of Griffith Deuddur, descended from Brochwel, Prince of Powys, and was father of [26] IVAN TEG (or the handsome) of Dolobran, who married Mawd, daughter of Evan Blaney of Tregynon and Castle Blaney, in the County of Monagham, Ireland, ancestor of the Lords Blaney.

Ivan Teg assumed the name of Lloyd about the year 1476, from Llwydiarth the seat of his grandfather. He had two sons, David, his heir, and Owen. Owen married Katherine, daughter of Meredith Rinault, ap Sir Griffith Vaughn, and was father of Ievan Lloyd, who married Gwenhwfar, daughter of Meredith Lloyd of Nevoid, and had a son, John Lloyd, who married Margaret, sister of Sir Roger Kynaston, and their son Humphrey, who assumed the surname of Wynne of Dyffryn, had a daughter Katherine who married John Lloyd, Esq., of Dolobran.

[27] DAVID (eldest son of Ivan Teg) of Dolobran, born 1523, was in commission of peace for Montgomeryshire. He married, first, Eva, daughter of Edward Price, Esq., of Eglusig, by whom he had no issue; and, secondly, Eva, daughter of David Goch, Esq., by whom he had a son,

[28] DAVID LLOYD of Dolobran, born 1549. He was a magistrate of Montgomeryshire. He married Ales, daughter of David Lloyd, Esq., descended from Rivid Iharrd, Lord of Penllyn, and left a son,

[29] JOHN LLOYD of Dolobran, born 1575. He was in the commission of the peace for Montgomeryshire. He resided in Coedeowrid. "He lived in great state, wainscotted his parlors and halls, and was attended at Mivoid Church by 24 men, his tenants, with halberts, where he placed them in his great pew under the pulpit. He bought Owen John Humphrey's estate, and presented to Myvoid Church most of the communion plate." He married Katherine, daughter of Humphrey Wynn, Esq., of Daffryn, and left

[30] CHARLES LLOYD of Dolobran, in commission of the peace for Montgomeryshire, born 1613; married Elizabeth, daughter of Hon. Thomas Stanley of Knockin, a branch of the Derby family.

[31] CHARLES LLOYD, 2D, eldest son of Charles and Elizabeth Lloyd of Dolobran, born Dec. 9, 1637, succeeded to Dolobran and the family estates on the death of his father in August, 1657. Married Jan. 1, 1661, Elizabeth, daughter of Sampson Lort, Esq. (high sheriff of Pembrokeshire in 1647). They had six children, four of whom died in infancy.

His first wife died in 1685. He married, secondly, in 1686, Ann Lawrence, of Lea, in the County of Hereford.

Charles Lloyd was a graduate of Jesus College, Oxford, well educated and with a high position in the community; but in 1662 he attached himself to George Fox and his followers, the founder of the Society of Friends.

In consequence, acting under his conscience in declining to attend the services of the established church and refusing to take the oath of allegiance and supremacy to Charles II, he was, at the instigation of envious neighbors, subjected, by Edward Lord Herbert of Cherbury, to great persecution and losses. His property was placed under premunire, his cattle sold, and his mansion at Dolobran partially destroyed. He was taken, with seven other gentlemen who had embraced the doctrine of the Friends, to Welch Pool jail and confined there until the order of Charles II was issued releasing all persons detained for religious opinions. They were then set at liberty, after enduring about ten years' imprisonment. Charles Lloyd died November 27, 1698.

Thomas Lloyd, his brother, was born February 17, 1640; was a graduate of Jesus College, Oxford, January 29, 1661, and is represented as possessing superior attainments, talking Latin fluently with Pastorius on shipboard. He is said to have graduated in medicine, and to have had an extensive practice, and appears to have been converted to the Friends' doctrines about 1663, and to have suffered considerable persecution in Wales. He married November 9, 1865, Mary, daughter of Gilbert Jones, of Welch Pool, Wales. She died in Philadelphia about the close of 1683, and was the first person interred in the Friends burial ground. Lloyd married, secondly, December 27, 1684, Patience Story, of New York, a widow, née Gardiner, who survived him. No issue by the second marriage.

ISSUE (SURNAMED LLOYD) BY FIRST MARRIAGE:

[1] HANNAH, born Sept. 21, 1666; married (1) JOHN DELAVAL; (2) RICHARD HILL; died Feb. 25, 1727.

[7] ELIZABETH, born March 1, 1677; married April 9, 1700, DANIEL ZACHARY, who emigrated from England to Boston, Mass. She died July 22, 1704.

[8] MARGARET, born May 5, 1680; d. y. Sept. 13, 1693.

[9] DEBORAH, born March, 1682; married MORDECAI MOORE. Died in 1721.

[10] SAMUEL, born in Pennsylvania 1683; died in infancy.*

Thomas Lloyd with his family embarked for Philadelphia June 10, 1683, on the ship "America," Captain Joseph Wasey, master. Francis Daniel Pastorius was a fellow-passenger, en route to Pennsylvania to take charge of lands purchased by the Frankfort Company. In letters written by him describing the hardships of the journey and the poor fare, he speaks in the highest terms of Thomas Lloyd and his daughters. They arrived in Philadelphia August 20, 1683, and Thomas Lloyd became very prominent in the early years of the colony. He served as president of the Provincial Council, Sept. 18, 1684, Feb. 9, 1688, Jan. 2, 1690, March, 1691; Deputy Governor, March, 1691; April 26, 1693, master of rolls, Oct. 27, 1683; keeper of seals Oct. 30, 1683; justice of peace for Philadelphia County, Jan. 2, 1689.

He died of a fever, after five days' illness, Sept. 10, 1694, having been, out of eleven years, for eight years chief officer of the province.

Of his children, Rachel, the second child, born Jan. 20, 1667, married Samuel Preston, the councillor, July 6, 1688. She died August, 1716. He was mayor of Philadelphia 1711, etc. They had two daughters:

[1] MARGARET, born 1689; married May 27, 1709, RICHARD MOORE, and had issue (See Keith's Councillors, page 74).

[2] HANNAH, born 1693; married SAMUEL, eldest son of Samuel Carpenter, Senior, July 2, 1711. (Vide post.)

THE ARMS OF THE LLOYDS OF DOLOBRAN
With 15 quarterings, impaling the Stanley Coat of Arms. From a panel in Dolobran Hall

1575, connected in relationship the Lloyds of Dolobran with the Kynastons, Greys, Cherletons, and other prominent and noble families of England, through whom they trace a descent from Edward I. In explaining this descent we follow Keith's "Provincial Councillors," as giving the most accurate and satisfactory account that we have seen.

"The grandmother of Thomas Lloyd—i.e., the wife of John Lloyd of Dolobran, gentleman—was descended from King Edward I of England in the following legitimate and, for many generations, illustrious line:

"Edward the First's granddaughter 'the fair maid of Kent,' daughter and heiress of Edmund of Woodstock, Earl of Kent, married (1st) Sir Thomas Holland, who received the title of Earl of Kent; after his death, she married (2d) William Montacute, Earl of Salisbury; and (3d) Edward, Prince of Wales, commonly called 'the Black Prince,' by whom she was mother of Richard II. Her eldest son, Thomas Holland, who succeeded his father as Earl of Kent, was the father of Eleanor, who married (1st) Roger Mortimer, Earl of March, from which marriage descended King Edward IV, and (2d) Edward Cherleton, Lord Powys. Lord Powys by this marriage left coheiresses, one of whom, Joan, married Sir John Grey, who in the year 1418 was created Earl of Tankerville. The Earl of Tankerville, by this marriage, had a son Henry, who succeeded him as Earl of Tankerville, a title which the family lost when Normandy was taken by the French. The male line became extinct with the death of Henry's great-grandson Edward Grey, Lord Powys, in the fifth year of the reign of Edward VI, and an inquisition found that Edward Kynaston, Esq., was Lord Powys's next heir. Edward Kynaston was great-grandson of Henry, the second Earl, whose daughter Elizabeth had married Roger Kynaston, Esq., leaving a son Humphrey who was father of Edward. In 1731, when Edward Kynaston's male heir claimed the barony of Powys, the fact of his descent from the Earl of Tankerville was admitted. In Burke's Landed Gentry, it is stated that Margaret Kynaston, sister of Roger Kynaston, married John Lloyd, or Wyn, father of Humphrey Wyn of Dyffryn; but it now appears, by the better authority of the Hardwick Kynaston pedigree, published in the Montgomeryshire Collections for April, 1882, that Margaret Kynaston, wife of John Wyn, was sister, instead of daughter, of Edward Kynaston above named. She was thus granddaughter of Elizabeth Grey, whose grandmother was descended from King Edward I. Margaret Kynaston's son Humphrey Wyn of Dyffryn was father of Katherine, the wife of John Lloyd of Dolobran, and the grandmother of Thomas Lloyd of Pennsylvania.

Charles Lloyd[1] of Dolobran, the father of Thomas Lloyd, had his coat of arms, with 15 quarterings, impaled with the arms of his wife, emblazoned on a panel at Dolobran. In this appeared the Lloyd arms, az., a chevron between three cocks ar., those of the Princes of Dyfed, ancestors of the Lloyds. These arms were differenced by a crescent, to show that the descent was from a second son. Some of the arms were those borne by the Poles, ancient Lords of Powys, the Cherletons, Greys, and Kynastons. The coat of arms of Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Stanley of Knockin, of five quarterings, were impaled by Charles Lloyd. The shield of the Earls of Derby is differenced with a crescent charged with a crescent, which shows that Thomas Stanley of Knockin descended from the second son of a second son.

5. John Carpenter[2] (Samuel Carpenter, 1st[1]), born May 5, 1690, died in 1724, aged 34 years; married Nov. 11, 1710, Ann Hoskins, daughter of Dr. Richard and Esther Hoskins, who died March 20, 1718.

Dr. Richard Hoskins was an eminent physician and minister of the Gospel. He died in England while on a visit about 1700. His wife died in Philadelphia in 1698. He left several daughters.

John Carpenter entered the office of Isaac Norris to learn the mercantile business. In 1706, when a lad of sixteen years, he accompanied the latter to England. Some years later John Carpenter made another voyage, as we learn from a letter written in 1715 by Jonathan Dickinson, Mayor of Philadelphia 1712 and 1717–18, to Collo Somersall in Jamaica, as follows: "Capt. Richard Smith he will take all the care he can. There goes with the ship a person we have great regard for, one John Carpenter, ye son of old Samuel Carpenter. I cannot but recommend him to thy notice, as well as to some others of my friends. His father was an intimate acquaintance in our family before we left England, a person of great esteem in the Province who died last summer." He was engaged in mercantile pursuits on his own account, and attained success, although comparatively young.

John Carpenter was a member of the Philadelphia Common Council from October 7, 1718, until his death in 1724. His name appears for the last time, among those present at its meetings, in the minutes of Council for 9th Mo. 13, 1723.

John Carpenter married Ann Hoskins.

ISSUE (surnamed Carpenter):

14. Hannah, born Nov. 23, 1711; died July 14, 1751; married Joseph Wharton, March 5, 1729, born Aug. 4, 1707, died July 27, 1776.
15. Martha, died Sept. 26, 1769; married May 23, 1738, Reese Meredith, born 1705, died Nov. 17, 1778.
16. Samuel, d. y. May 8, 1718.

9. Samuel Carpenter, 3d[3] (Samuel Carpenter, 2d[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), died Feb. 20, 1747; married April 28, 1743, Elizabeth Wallis, of Kingston, Jamaica, who died Dec. 19, 1780.

Samuel Carpenter, 3d, was a merchant and removed to Jamaica, residing in Kingston until his death. Elizabeth Wallis, his wife, was the daughter of Thomas Wallis, gentleman, of Jamaica, and Sarah his wife.

His two sons, Samuel Inglesbe and Thomas, were registered as students at Mairischal College, Aberdeen, Scotland. A letter from Thomas describes his visit to London and obtaining from the Herald Office a copy of the family coat of arms.

Letters written by Samuel Carpenter, 3d, to his parents in Philadelphia in 1746–47 speak of his wife and children, and acknowledge the receipt of various articles forwarded to him from America.

Samuel Carpenter, 3d, married Elizabeth Wallis.

ISSUE (surnamed Carpenter):

17. Samuel Inglesbe, born Feb. 6, 1744; died intestate at Kingston, Jamaica. Letters of administration were granted on his estate Feb. 10, 1785.
18. Sarah, born July 5, 1745; d. y. Aug. 8, 1745.
19. Thomas, born Aug. 15, 1746; married (1) Oct. 23, 1769, at Kingston, Jamaica, Ann Lovibond, daughter of Frederick and Ann Lovibond, died Feb. 18, 1786; married (2), Mary Rivers, widow, née DePuy, Aug. 10, 1793.

10. Rachel Carpenter[3] (Samuel Carpenter, 2d[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), born in 1716; died unmarried, at Carpenter's Landing, N. J., on a visit to her nephew, Thomas Carpenter, Nov. 16, 1794.

She lived in Philadelphia until 1785, and must have been there through all the occurrences of the Revolution. She removed to Salem about the time of the death of her brother Preston Carpenter, and afterwards resided with relatives in New Jersey. Letters from Thomas Carpenter, of Jamaica, son of Samuel Carpenter, written to his aunt Rachel, show her address,—now in the possession of Miss Susan M. Carpenter, Camden, N. J.

THE CARPENTER PLACE AT MANNINGTON, NEAR SALEM, N. J.
In possession of the family since 1742

PUBL LIBRA

11. PRESTON CARPENTER[3] (Samuel Carpenter, 2d [2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), born in Philadelphia Oct. 28, 1721; died Oct. 20, 1785, at Salem, N. J.

He removed from Philadelphia to Salem, N. J., and married October 17, 1742, HANNAH SMITH, daughter of Samuel Smith and Hannah Pile, a wealthy man of Salem County, and granddaughter of John Pile who owned the whole township of Pilesgrove. She was born Dec. 21, 1723. He married (secondly) HANNAH MASON, who left no issue. PRESTON CARPENTER settled upon the farm situated in Mannington Township which he acquired by his wife. Samuel Smith, his wife's father, owned and lived upon a large farm near the Salem County almshouse, formerly called the Smith place, on which Thomas Carpenter of Carpenter's Landing resided during the Revolutionary War. He also purchased a tract containing seven hundred acres, a part of which constitutes the present farm owned by the Carpenters of Mannington. Samuel Smith had one son, Pile Smith, to whom he left the home farm called the Smith place, and two daughters, Elizabeth and Hannah. Elizabeth married Isaac Sharp, and received for her portion one half of this tract of seven hundred acres afterwards called the Josiah Miller farm and which belonged to their heirs. PRESTON CARPENTER, in right of his wife Hannah, received the other half, on which he resided during the remainder of his life. After his death it was sold, when his brother-in-law Joseph Reeve purchased one half and lived upon it the remainder of his life. Henry Firth purchased the other half and occupied it for several years, until, being at length obliged to sell it, it was purchased back again into the family by William Carpenter, who lived there the remainder of his days and by will devised it to his son Samuel Preston Carpenter, the present owner.

PRESTON CARPENTER was held in high respect and esteem by all who knew him. With unusual intelligence and judgment he managed his large farm, and at different times held the office of commissioner of the Loan Office, judge, and justice of the peace. His docket containing the original entries is still preserved, in which he entered with great particularity the births of his children. For example, "Thomas Carpenter, sixth child of PRESTON and HANNAH CARPENTER his wife, was born Nov. 2, N. S., on fifth day about 8 minutes after nine in the evening and twenty-seventh day of the moon's age, at Salem, 1752." An original warrant containing his autograph has been preserved, and also several autograph letters.—J. E. C.

HANNAH MASON, the second wife of PRESTON CARPENTER, was the widow of Samuel Mason of Mannington Township, Salem County, N. J., son of Thomas Mason, of the same place, whom she married in 1756. She was a daughter of Ben. Cripps and Mary Hough. Benjamin Cripps was the son of Nathaniel and Grace Cripps, who came to America in 1678 and settled at Burlington N. J. Nathaniel Cripps is said to have been the founder of Mount Holly, N. J.

PRESTON CARPENTER married HANNAH SMITH (FIRST WIFE).

ISSUE (SURNAMED CARPENTER):

20. HANNAH, born Oct. 4, 1743; married (1) 1768, CHARLES ELLET; married (2) JEDIDIAH ALLEN.
21. SAMUEL PRESTON, born Nov. 1, 1745, d. y.
22. ELIZABETH, born Dec. 18, 1748; married Nov. 9, 1768, EZRA FIRTH, of Salem, N. J.
23. RACHEL, born Aug. 26, 1749; d. y. Nov. 26, 1749.

25. THOMAS, born Nov. 2, 1752; married April 13, 1774, MARY TONKIN.
26. WILLIAM, born Nov. 1, 1754; married (1) ELIZABETH WYATT and (2) MARY REDMAN.
27. MARGARET, born Aug. 26, 1756; married Dec. 30, 1776, JAMES MASON WOODNUTT.
28. JOHN, born Feb. 28, 1758; d. y. Nov. 2, 1773.
29. RACHEL, born June 25, 1759, d. y.
30. MARTHA, born Aug. 19, 1760; married JOSEPH REEVE, of Salem Co., N. J.
31. SAMUEL, born Feb. 17, 1765; d. y. July 12, 1769.

12. HANNAH CARPENTER[3] (Samuel Carpenter, 2d[2], Samuel Carpenter [1]), married Feb. 8, 1746, SAMUEL SHOEMAKER, son of Benjamin Shoemaker, the councillor, a member of the Provincial Assembly, a prominent man and successful merchant of Philadelphia. HANNAH SHOEMAKER died May 1, 1766, and was buried in Friends burial ground.

SAMUEL SHOEMAKER was born in 1725; died Nov. 10, 1800. He was a member of the Common Council 1755, treasurer of the city 1767–76, mayor 1769–71–73, justice for the county from 1761 to the Revolution, attorney for the Pennsylvania Land Company of London, director of the Philadelphia Contributionship, member of the American Philosophical Society. He was opposed to the war not only from principle, but from a desire to remain under the king. When the British army left Philadelphia he went with them to New York, taking his younger son Edward with him. Being known as a confirmed Tory, a part of his estate was confiscated. Just before the British evacuation of New York, he sailed for England with his son. In England he spent a few days at Windsor, with his friend Benjamin West, who had his studio there. On one occasion he had an opportunity of meeting the king, queen, and some of the princesses, who visited West's studio to see his painting of "The Lord's Supper," which was just completed. They treated MR. SHOEMAKER very kindly, and the king asked him many questions about the colonies and particularly concerning Pennsylvania. SAMUEL SHOEMAKER returned to America in the spring of 1786, and for some time lived at Burlington, N. J. He afterwards removed to Philadelphia, where he died Oct. 10, 1800. After the death of his first wife in 1766, he married (2) Nov. 10, 1767, REBECCA RAWLE, née WARNER, daughter of Edward Warner and his wife Anna Coleman. She died Dec. 21, 1819. Issue, one son, EDWARD SHOEMAKER.

It is remarkable that of the eleven children he had by HANNAH CARPENTER, his first wife, all died young, unmarried or without issue, excepting BENJAMIN, who married Elizabeth Warner. Of the four children of BENJAMIN, ANNA alone left issue. The Shoemakers came to America from Krisheim in the Palatinate, where the original name was Schumacher. After a number in this vicinity had joined the Society of Friends, "The Frankfort Company" was organized, Francis Daniel Pastorius being a leader, and the first party came over in 1683. Several members of the Schumacher family emigrated in this movement, Jacob, Peter and the widow Sarah Schumacher, with seven children, the latter arriving in Philadelphia January 20, 1686, in the ship "Jeffries," from London; Thomas Arnold master. The fourth of these seven children was Isaac, who became a tanner and lived in Germantown. He married Sarah Hendricks, born in Krisheim, Germany, Oct. 2, 1678; died in Pennsylvania June 15, 1742; daughter of Gerhard Hendricks. Isaac and Sarah were the parents of Benjamin Shoemaker, the councillor, who was born in Germantown Aug. 3, 1704, and died about June 25, 1767.

SAMUEL SHOEMAKER married HANNAH CARPENTER (FIRST WIFE).

ISSUE (SURNAMED SHOEMAKER):

THOMAS CARPENTER, OF JAMAICA
From a miniature in possession of F. Carpenter Smith

13. THOMAS CARPENTER[3] (Samuel Carpenter, 2d[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), born 1729, was a merchant in Philadelphia, where he died unmarried in 1770. Buried at 4th and Arch Streets, Dec. 9, 1770.

His will, dated Dec. 21, 1767, gives his property to his mother, his maiden sister Rachel, Samuel and Thomas Carpenter of Jamaica, sons of his deceased brother Samuel, and the children of his brother Preston of Salem, N. J. (Will proved March 26, 1772.) THOMAS CARPENTER signed the Non-importation Resolutions. A receipt indicates that he contributed £6 to the Pennsylvania Hospital. From some invoices and letters it appears that THOMAS CARPENTER was in partnership for some time with Samuel Preston Moore under the name of Carpenter & Moore.

14. HANNAH CARPENTER[3] (John Carpenter[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), born Nov. 23, 1711; married JOSEPH WHARTON March 5, 1729, born Aug. 4, 1707, died July 27, 1776. She died July 14, 1751.

15. MARTHA CARPENTER[3] (John Carpenter[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]) married May 23, 1738, REESE MEREDITH, son of Reese of Radnorshire, Wales, born in 1705, died Nov. 17, 1778. His wife died Sept. 26, 1769.

(For the descent through the Meredith Family vide post.)

17. SAMUEL INGLESBE CARPENTER[4] (Samuel Carpenter[3], Samuel[2], Samuel[1]), born Feb. 6, 1744, in Jamaica; died intestate at Kingston, Jamaica, and letters of administration were granted on his estate Feb. 10, 1785. He was registered as a student at Marischal College, Aberdeen, Scotland, from 1759 to 1763; died unmarried.

19. THOMAS CARPENTER[4] (Samuel Carpenter[3], Samuel[2], Samuel[1]), born Aug. 15, 1746, in Jamaica; died Feb. 5, 1801; was, with his brother, educated in Scotland, funds having been left for this purpose by their great-uncle John Flenn Barnett. He married (1) Oct. 23, 1769, at Kingston, Jamaica, ANN LOVIBOND, daughter of Frederick Lovibond and Ann his wife, and by her had 13 children. In 1772 he bought a property of about 460 acres in St. Andrews Parish, which he called "Fair Hill," where he lived and where several of his children were married and some of them are buried. His wife ANN died Feb. 18, 1786, and he married (2) MARY RIVERS, a widow, née DE PUY, Aug. 10, 1793. She died April 23, 1801, without issue.

THOMAS CARPENTER conducted for many years a successful operation in growing and exporting coffee at his plantation at "Fair Hill." During the years 1778–1788, he held commissions in the St. Andrews regiment of foot (militia) of lieutenant, captain, and major. In 1799 he was appointed one of the vestrymen of St. Andrews, and in 1800 one of the judges of the Court of Common Pleas.

Ann Lovibond, wife of Thomas Carpenter, was the daughter of Frederick Lovibond. He was an attorney at law and writer to the signet. He is said to have been a tutor in the family of the Earl of Stair, and to have eloped with Ann, one of the Earl's daughters.* He came to Jamaica, probably from England, died Sept. 17, 1767, and his wife Ann was buried Dec. 2, 1786; both lie in the Kingston Parish churchyard.

The following is an abstract of the will of Thomas Carpenter, dated May 19, 1800; proved March 2, 1801; recorded in Liber 69, vol. 94, Jamaica.

Bequeaths to his wife, Mary, the Fair Hill estate and everything pertaining thereto, and two slaves named Frederick Lovibond and Grace, and other slaves belonging to Fair Hill, for the term of her natural life, with all of the furniture, plate, stock of wines, carriages, and a pair of horses she may select. To his son Frederick Lovibond Carpenter, the messuage, tenement, and premises with the shore adjoining situated in Peters Lane in the town of Kingston. To Rachel O'Brien Carpenter, his daughter, £300, a legacy left to her by Talbot O'Brien, Esq., and his mother, retained for her as the natural guardian of his daughter, also a negro girl named Rachel Shaw. To his daughter Sarah Mary McLean, the widow of Kenneth McLean, £500. To his granddaughter Mary Ann McLean, a negro girl slave named "Venus," also £200 upon attaining the age of 21 or upon the day of marriage. To his daughter Mancy (Nancy) Ann Clark, a negro woman slave named "Betty," after her death to his grandson Thomas Milbourne Clark, also to the latter £500 when he attains the age of 21, and directs that the said Thomas Milbourne Clark be sent to Great Britain at the age of 8 years to such school or schools as may be selected, until he is 14 years old, when he is to be put to such trade or profession as may be chosen. To his son-in-law Robert Smith, £100. To Sarah Guilbourne, £50. To an old negro slave named Tom, a watchman at Fair Hill plantation, £5. To manumit and set free a slave called Cæsar, now called Andrew Barnett, and leaves an annuity to him of £10, and an additional £5 annuity as long as he remains with the family.

The residue of his estate he leaves to his wife Mary and his three sons, Frederick Lovibond Carpenter, Samuel William Carpenter, Thomas Carpenter, Jr., and son-in-law Robert Smith, in trust to carry on the Fair Hill plantation, and to take the rents, profits of Fair Hill plantation, and other properties, and remainders not otherwise bequeathed, until the youngest daughter, Eleanor Jane Carpenter, shall attain the age of 21 years. To pay £300 a year to his son Samuel William Carpenter as long as he may manage and direct the Fair Hill plantation, or if he gives this up to pay him £100 a year thereafter. Also £100 per annum to each of his six children, Sarah Mary MacLean, Thomas Carpenter, Jr., Rachel O'Brien Carpenter, Nancy Ann Clark, Hannah Moore Smith, Ann Carpenter, and Eleanor Jane Carpenter. When Eleanor Jane arrives at 21, the Fair Hill estate to be sold, and the several slaves thereon, and the rest of the property held in trust, and the money divided equally among his children.

Appoints his wife Mary and his three sons, Frederick Lovibond Carpenter, Samuel William Carpenter, and Thomas Carpenter, Jr., and his son-in-law Robert Smith, executrix and executors.

The inventory shows that the estate was valued at £37,484.

ISSUE (surnamed Carpenter)—First Marriage:

54. Martha, born Feb. 17, 1786; d. y., buried June 22, 1786.

Note.—Thomas Carpenter and Ann Lovibond had thirteen children, but one of them, died in infancy, and neither the name nor date of birth is known.

In a letter to his Aunt Rachel in Philadelphia, now in the possession of Susan M. Carpenter, Thomas Carpenter speaks of Rachel as his fourth child. The unrecorded child must have been the oldest. The following is an extract:

"Dear Aunt

"By Capt. Hause, I had the pleasure of hearing of your good health, which gave me no small satisfaction, as it is the first I heard of any of our relations, since my brother came from Philadelphia, who is still in a poor way. My wife was safely delivered of a girl, the 9th Inst. being our fourth child. We intend calling her Rachel after you. My Grandmother and Mother desire their love and Sam his duty. My wife and children join me in duty to you and love to all our relations, and in hopes of hearing from you I remain

"Dear Aunt Your dutiful nephew.

Thomas Carpenter."

20. Hannah Carpenter[4] (Preston Carpenter[3], Samuel Carpenter, 2d[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), born Oct. 4, 1743; died Aug. 31, 1820; married (1) in 1768 Charles Ellett, of New Jersey; (2) Jedediah Allen.

Charles Ellett was a widower when he married Hannah Carpenter. His first wife was Sarah Austin, who left one child, Elizabeth, who married Brazilla Lippincott and removed with him to Alton, Ill. Their son, Brig.-Genl. Charles Lippincott, distinguished himself in the Union army during the war. Subsequently he was auditor of the State of Illinois, member of Congress.

ISSUE by First Marriage (surnamed Ellett):

63. Rachel Carpenter, born Sept. 12, 1780; died 1855; married James Wainwright, of Maryland.
64. Mary, born Oct. 23, 1782; died 1821, unmarried.

ISSUE by Second Marriage (surnamed Allen):

65. Hannah, married James Smith of Mannington.

22. Elizabeth Carpenter[4] (Preston Carpenter[3], Samuel Carpenter, 2d[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), born Dec. 18, 1748; died Nov. 16, 1779; married Nov. 9, 1768, Ezra Firth, of Salem, N. J., born March 28, 1744, died April 7, 1779. She survived her husband only seven months—broken hearted.

John Firth, the elder, was born in England, in the latter part of the seventeenth century. He emigrated to America, settled in Salem, N. J., and married the widow of Samuel Stubbins, 1715. Clerk of the monthly meeting of Friends. Their children were:

[1] John Firth, 2d, born 1718; died March 6, 1776; married Judith Vickery, of Salem Co., N. J. His wife died Jan. 6, 1780.

[2] Ezra Firth, born March 28, O. S., 1744; died April 7, 1779; married Nov. 9, 1768, Elizabeth Carpenter.

[3] Elizabeth Firth, born July 2, 1751, O. S.; married Rev. John McCloskey, minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, who died Sept. 2, 1814.

Ezra Firth married Elizabeth Carpenter.

ISSUE (surnamed Firth):

66. Preston Carpenter, born Oct. 25, 1769; married Hannah Gibbs.
67. John, born Oct. 28, 1771; married Ann Thompson, daughter of Thomas Thompson, of Salem, N. J.
68. Samuel, born Oct. 14, 1773; married Mary Givins, of South Carolina.
69. Thomas, born Feb. 14, 1776; died unmarried, April 13, 1861.
70. Hannah, born Sept. 26, 1778; died Jan. 24, 1854; married April 20, 1797, Isaac Cooper Jones, born Dec. 4, 1769, died Jan. 26, 1865, son of Aquila Jones and Elizabeth Cooper his wife.

24. Mary Carpenter[4] (Preston Carpenter[3], Samuel Carpenter, 2d[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), born Nov. 18, 1750; died Oct. 30, 1821; married, 1777, Samuel Tonkin, son of Edward Tonkin and Mary Cole, of Burlington Co., N. J. (his second wife).

Samuel Tonkin was a lieutenant-colonel in the War of the Revolution; resided on a farm near the mouth of Oldman's Creek, Clossmell, Gloucester Co., N. J., the same occupied by Thomas Darrach in 1837. This farm was the scene of an execution in colonial times under the provincial laws then in force. A young man convicted of stealing was hanged upon a tree still standing in 1837. Samuel Tonkin removed to a farm in Upper Greenwich, Gloucester Co., where both he and his wife continued to reside the remainder of their lives. He was an enterprising and successful farmer, and was held in great respect by the community in which he lived.

Edward Tonkin, the elder, was born in England about the middle of the seventeenth century. He emigrated to America and settled in Burlington Co., N. J., prior to 1685. He was accompanied by his son John Tonkin, and appears to have been in easy and thriving circumstances. He purchased sundry tracts of land in Springfield Township, about two miles north of the city of Burlington, which descended to his son John as heir-at-law. Will proved March 12, 1690–91.

John Tonkin, 1st, succeeded to the possession of his father's estate in Burlington County, which he greatly enlarged by subsequent purchases. He married Susannah ——; their children were [1] Edward, [2] John, [3] Charles, [4] Joshua, [5] Jacob, [6] Elizabeth.

Edward Tonkin, 2d, son of John Tonkin, 1st, and Susannah, married Mary Cole, of Colestown; Mary Cole was daughter of Samuel Cole, 2d, and Mary, daughter of Thomas Kendall. Samuel Cole, 2d, was the son of Samuel and Elizabeth Cole (see Clement's "First Settlers in Newtown Township, N. J.)."

Edward Tonkin was a prominent and influential member of the Episcopal Church and of the vestry of St. Mary's Church, Burlington. An original certificate of re-survey of the home shows it contained 558 acres, while his will says, "It was divided from his other land." An act of the legislature was passed in the fifth year of King George the Third, authorizing the vestry of St. Mary's Church to sell certain lands held in trust, and re-invest the proceeds for the same uses, etc., and names and appoints Rev. Colin Campbell, minister in charge, John Lawrence, father of Captain Lawrence, U. S. Navy, and Edward Tonkin trustees to sell the land, re-invest the proceeds, etc.

The children of Edward Tonkin, 2d, and Mary Cole were [1] Samuel, [2] John, [3] Edward, [4] Israel, [5] Bathsheba, [6] Susannah, [7] Mary, [8] Martha.

Bathsheba Clayton, the daughter, married Col. Thomas Heston, partner of Thomas Carpenter of Carpenter's Landing. Their daughter Bathsheba married Capt. Eben Whitney of Glassborough, and left three sons and two daughters,—viz., [1] Thomas, [2] Samuel, [3] Eben, [4] Harriet, [5] Abigail. Mary, another daughter, married William Paul and left one son, [1] Thomas H.

[6] Susannah married Robert Taylor. Robert Taylor was an officer in Maxwell's regiment of militia and became colonel in the Revolution. He was a son of Robert and Ann Taylor and grandson of Samuel Taylor and Susannah Hartman, who came together in "the Martha," arriving in the Delaware Oct. 15, 1677. Issue, five children. Of these Susannah married Robert Turner. Issue, Sarah and Jane. Sarah married Hawley. Jane Turner died unmarried in Philadelphia.

William C. Tonkin, son of John Tonkin and Mary Curtis, born April 23, 1790; died Feb. 4, 1855 married his cousin Elizabeth Ann Taylor, the granddaughter of Col. Robert Taylor, and had ten children.

William C. Tonkin and his brother John purchased, from Thomas Carpenter, the large dwelling and triangular lot of ground comprised between the roads leading to Mullica's Hill, Barnsboro, and Bethel, in Carpenter's Landing. They conducted a large business with much success here for many years. John Tonkin died Feb. 27, 1834, unmarried.

[7] Mary Tonkin, daughter of Edward Tonkin, 2d, and Mary Cole, born Sept. 8, 1748; died Aug. 5, 1822; married April 13, 1774, Thomas Carpenter of Carpenter's Landing.

[8] Martha married Captain Thomas Talman, a mariner. It is related by his descendants that Captain Talman, while in command of a large ship homeward bound, was captured by an armed piratical schooner. The pirates loaded their vessel from the valuable cargo, unhung the rudder of the ship to disable her, and, taking with them all of the ship's crew except Captain Talman and his cabin boy, sailed away to their rendezvous, intending to return for another load; but the captain and his boy by great efforts succeeded in re-hanging the rudder, made sail on the ship, and brought her safely into port.

25. THOMAS CARPENTER[4] (of Carpenter's Landing) (Preston Carpenter[3], Samuel Carpenter, 2d[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), born Nov. 2, 1752; died July 7, 1847; married April 13, 1774, by Rev. Jonathan Odell, rector of St. Mary's Church, Burlington, N. J., MARY TONKIN, daughter of Edward Tonkin, 2d, and Mary Cole. Before the ceremony, he was required, under the colonial law then in force, to execute a bond with security that no impediment existed, which bond still remains on file in the office of the Secretary of State at Trenton.

THOMAS CARPENTER served an apprenticeship in an auction store at the corner of Front and South Streets, Philadelphia. Auctions, being prohibited within the jurisdiction of the City Councils, were conducted outside the southern boundary of the city. He formed an early attachment to MARY TONKIN and was but twenty-one years and five months old when they were married. He commenced life upon a farm belonging to his grandfather, called the Smith farm, near the Salem County almshouse, in Salem County.

In the early stages of the War of the Revolution he was commissioned paymaster of the militia of the counties of Salem and Gloucester. His commission bears date March 19, 1777. He was also quartermaster of the first battalion of Salem troops, commanded by his friend Col. Samuel Dick, M.D., a prominent and patriotic citizen of Salem, where he had a large and lucrative practice as a physician. Being one of the staff of Colonel Dick, THOMAS CARPENTER was present at the successful retreat of the American army from the banks of the Assanpink around the flank of the British army, on the night of January 3, 1777. This movement so successfully accomplished, whereby General Washington withdrew his undisciplined troops from the front of a powerful British army, to a position in the rear, where he threatened its communications and stores, and finally placed them in secure winter quarters near Morristown, without serious loss, has received the commendation of the best historians and military critics. The chagrin of the enterprising British general, upon finding he had been outgeneraled by the enemy he professed to despise, may be imagined.

The personal recollections of these events by THOMAS CARPENTER, as he used to relate them, were substantially as follows:

The American army, commanded by General Washington, was encamped on the south side of the Assanpink Creek, a narrow stream fordable in many places within the limits of the City of Trenton. Lord Cornwallis, intent upon the destruction of his adversary, arrived and encamped on the opposite bank late in the afternoon prepared to give battle the next morning. All the available detachments in South Jersey had been hurried up to reinforce General Washington. The weather was warm and rainy, and the roads almost impassable. Colonel Dick's battalion marched from Salem through Woodbury, Haddonfield, Mount Holly, and Recklestown to join the army; but, delayed by the bad roads and the breaking of an axle of a field gun, did not arrive in camp until late in the evening. About the time of their arrival, the wind changed and it soon became intensely cold. Having secured comfortable quarters with other officers in a neighboring house, CARPENTER loaned his overcoat to one of his less fortunate companions who had left his own with the baggage in the rear. At midnight an officer detailed to look up stragglers entered the apartments and informed them that the army was no longer there, had been gone an hour, and they must immediately mount and follow. Washington, afraid to risk a battle with his army, composed largely of raw, undisciplined troops, had taken advantage of the darkness and frozen roads to break up his encampment, leaving his camp fires burning to deceive the enemy, and marched, by a by-road called the "Old Quaker Road," around the flank of the British army, on Princeton. In this emergency THOMAS CARPENTER had nothing but a blanket which he tied around his neck and waist with handkerchiefs,—a poor defence against the piercing cold, from which he suffered greatly. His party overtook the army near Princeton, where a sharp engagement took place between the head of the column and two regiments of Hessians that were marching to reinforce the British army at Trenton. The noise of the firing was the first notice to Lord Cornwallis that the Revolutionary army had left its position on the Assanpink, and was then twelve miles in his rear directly on the line of his communications. After the action was over Mr. CARPENTER, in company with Colonel Dick, called upon General Mercer, who had received a mortal wound and was lying pale and suffering in his tent. It was the intention of General Washington to seize the stores of the British army at New Brunswick, but the accidental encounter at Princeton disconcerted his plans. Unable to cope with the British forces in hot pursuit, he continued his retreat and established himself in secure winter quarters in the vicinity of Morristown.

The detachment commanded by Colonel Dick was discharged on the completion of its term of service. Dr. Dick became a member of the New Jersey Assembly. THOMAS CARPENTER, detailed for the duty, was actively engaged in purchasing and forwarding supplies for the use of the army. The winter of 1777 was exceptionally severe. The snow fell at frequent intervals, enabling him to dispatch long trains of sleds laden with provisions and forage from time to time from the lower counties of the State to the encampment at Morristown. Whenever the roads would begin to wear out, a providential fall of snow would make them good.

Burlington, Jan. 17, 1780.

Sir:—

I have written to the Magistrates of Salem County begging them to aid you in the immediate conveyance of the flour to camp.

Send on what is already manufactured with hurry, expedite the manufacture of the remainder and then convey it to Mr. Thomas at the "Black Horse." If the river should open send it to Trenton. You must procure drivers to go to camp with your cattle, or at any rate to the "Black Horse" where Mr. Thomas will take charge of them. For God's sake perform this business with all possible despatch.

I am Sir,
Your obedient
(Title indistinct)

THOMAS CARPENTER visited Red Bank on the next morning after the battle in which Count Donop and his Hessians were so signally defeated by Colonel Greene, and saw the wounded commander and the dead and wounded Hessians that encumbered the Whitall House, the lawn, and the ground about the fort. The house is still standing and plainly shows the mark of a cannon-ball which pierced its wall during the action. Many of the dead and wounded were shot in the back in their efforts to escape from the trap in which they had been caught.

In the year 1785 he removed to Cooper's Point and engaged in mercantile business. A curious set of bullet-moulds for casting musket-balls and buckshot has been preserved, which he made use of at that time to supply his customers with buckshot to shoot the deer which were then plenty in the forests of New Jersey. It is now in the possession of General L. H. Carpenter, is in excellent preservation, and bears upon the handles the initials T. C. 1786 E. C. 1834. He remained at Cooper's Point about two years. From thence, having formed a partnership with Colonel Thomas Heston, his wife's nephew by marriage, he removed to Carpenter's Landing (now called Mantua). Heston and Carpenter built and established a large glass manufactory at Glassborough, where they acquired a large landed property. A store and lumber business were also maintained and carried on at Carpenter's Landing. The business was successfully prosecuted until the death of Colonel Heston. The property was then divided, THOMAS CARPENTER retired, and was succeeded by his son Edward, by whom it was continued until his death in 1813. Glassborough is still distinguished for its glass factories, and has become a large and flourishing village under the auspices of the descendants of Colonel Heston.

* The original is in the possession of Miss Susan M. Carpenter, 38 N. 2d Street, Camden, N. J.

THOMAS CARPENTER continued to reside at Carpenter's Landing the remainder of his life. He was about five feet ten inches high, with large frame but not corpulent, erect, well-formed, with a fine ruddy complexion. His eyes were blue, hair thin, but not bald, originally brown, and, though tinged with gray, never became white. He was fond of reading, intelligent, and self-possessed. His affable and genial manners, anecdotes, and reminiscences made his society very attractive. He wore a brown cloth coat of Quaker pattern, velvet small clothes (breeches) with silver knee-buckles, black silk stockings gartered above the knees, short quartered shoes with large silver buckles, or fair top-boots, vest with lapels and pockets reaching to the hips, and the Quaker broad-rimmed hat. The buckles, silk stockings, and fair top-boots in later years gave place to plain trousers and boots.

MARY CARPENTER, wife of THOMAS CARPENTER, was a little below medium height, with dark hazel eyes, brown hair, and a fine clear brunette complexion. Her figure was good, erect, well-proportioned, inclined to embonpoint, and she was reputed to have been very handsome. Her father's family were Episcopalians, but she with her husband joined the Friends. She was remarkably neat in her personal appearance—wore the Quaker cap and silk bonnet, brown silk dress, and a light silk neckerchief crossed upon the bosom. She had a handsome wedding outfit. The white satin slippers, with pointed toes and heels more than two inches high, worn at her wedding were long preserved as mementos.

Both THOMAS and MARY CARPENTER lie buried in the cemetery adjoining the Friends meeting house at Woodbury, N. J. Their graves adjoin each other on the north side of the enclosure, about midway, and near the boundary fence, each designated by a small marble, with name on its top. Lately a stone retaining wall has been placed there for their protection.

THOMAS CARPENTER left no will. The farm at Carpenter's Landing was divided and sold in parcels after his death. The mansion, garden, orchard, and adjacent grounds, with the buildings, were purchased by Charles Martel, whose family still own and occupy them.

NOTE.—Thomas Carpenter was adjutant of Colonel Dick's battalion in the Princeton and Trenton campaign from November, 1776, to the latter part of January, 1777; afterwards quartermaster. He was for a time ensign of Captain Roanes' company of Dick's battalion. (See petition of THOMAS CARPENTER for a pension.)

THOMAS CARPENTER married MARY TONKIN.

72. EDWARD CARPENTER[5] (Thomas Carpenter[4], Preston Carpenter[3], Samuel Carpenter, 2d[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), born June 4, 1777, on the Josiah Miller farm belonging to his grandfather, situated near the Salem County almshouse, in Salem County, N. J. He received a good English education and with excellent business qualifications possessed a taste for reading and books. He married Sept. 5, 1799, SARAH STRATTON, daughter of Dr. James Stratton and his wife Anna Harris, of Swedesboro, Gloucester Co., N. J., and commenced housekeeping in the house now belonging to George Tonkin, one of the children and heirs at law of William C. Tonkin, at Carpenter's Landing. This house was built by his father for the newly married couple. It stands in the forks of the roads leading to Barnesborough and Mullica Hill, directly in front of the old Carpenter mansion.

His father was then engaged in active business with Colonel Thomas Heston, in partnership under the firm name of Heston & Carpenter, Colonel Heston residing at Glassborough and Thomas Carpenter at Carpenter's Landing. The death of Colonel Heston dissolved the firm. Thomas Carpenter retired from business and was succeeded by his son. The new house, store, and adjacent land were sold to John and William C. Tonkin.

Edward Carpenter removed to Glassborough, where he devoted himself with energy and intelligence to the prosecution of the business of manufacturing glassware. He was taken ill of typhus fever on his way home from Philadelphia, and died at his father's house in Carpenter's Landing, in the midst of his successful career, on the 13th of March, 1813.

He was about five feet ten inches high, erect, active, vigorous, with dark complexion, dark hazel eyes, brown hair, and handsome presence. A miniature painted while a very young man, the only portrait extant, is in the possession of Mrs. Malcolm Lloyd, of Philadelphia, a granddaughter.

Sarah Stratton Carpenter, wife of Edward Carpenter, was born Sept. 30, 1781, in the brick house now occupied by the family of John Welsh in South Swedesboro. She was educated under the care and instruction of Rev. John Croes, afterwards Bishop of the Diocese of New Jersey, who was rector of Trinity Church, Swedesboro, for twelve years. To finish her education, she was sent to Philadelphia and lived in the family of Mr. Charles French, half brother to her stepmother, who resided on Front Street above Arch. She married Edward Carpenter on Sept. 5, 1799, and survived her husband many years. After the death of her husband she removed to the village of Woodbury, and resided there about eight years. On the death of her mother-in-law, Mary Carpenter, August 5, 1822, she broke up her establishment and removed with her children to the home of her father-in-law at Carpenter's Landing, where she remained until his death in 1847. The remaining years of her life were passed with her children. Her eyes were blue; hair brown, very luxuriant, and never turned gray. A good figure, tall, erect, graceful, quiet, dignified, with a captivating manner and possessing extraordinary powers of conversation. She died at the residence of her son Edward Carpenter, 2d, 317 South 15th Street, Philadelphia, on the 12th day of February, 1852.

Both Edward and Sarah Carpenter lie in the old grave-yard of Trinity Church, Swedesboro, where a handsome monument marks the spot.

Edward Carpenter was in 1797 commissioned a captain of the 1st Battalion, 1st Regiment, Gloucester Co. militia. The commission is signed by Richard Howell, Governor of New Jersey, who came originally from Delaware.

EDWARD CARPENTER, 1ST
(1777–1813)
From a miniature in the possession of the family

THE STRATTON FAMILY.

The Stratton Family, to which SARAH STRATTON, who married EDWARD CARPENTER, belonged, is derived from Puritan ancestors who emigrated from Maidstone in the County of Kent, on the east bank of the River Medway, about thirty miles southeast of the City of London, although there is reason to believe that the family was originally located in Suffolk County, England They settled at East Hampton, Long Island, upon lands purchased from the Indians for their benefit, in 1648, by Theophilus Eaton, Governor of the Colony of New Haven, and Edward Hopkins, Governor of the Colony of Connecticut, who assigned the same to them, in 1651, for £30 8s. 4d.

Nine original settlers arrived in 1648. Of these the first six came from Lynn, Mass., and the name of John Stretton (from whose brother Richard this branch of the family is descended) is the fifth on the list. These nine soon were joined by twenty-four others, among whom was Richard, and the settlement grew and prospered. Both Richard and John Stretton lived on the west side of the main street, and John was the most wealthy man of the colonists, except three, being rated at £270 6s. 8d., his family consisting of three persons.

Richard Stratton left four sons and one daughter, Richard, Jr., Thomas. Isaac, Benjamin, and Elizabeth. The descent is through Benjamin. His son Benjamin Stratton, 2d, born Sept. 19, 1701, died July 20, 1751, married Nov. 26, 1723, Abigail Preston, daughter of Levi Preston. of Salem, Mass. Benjamin and Abigail Stratton removed in 1723 to Fairfield, Cumberland Co., New Jersey. They had eleven children. Of these only four married and left descendants,—viz., Jonathan, Levi, John, and Benjamin, 3d.

[2] SARAH, born Oct. 3, 1753; died in infancy.

JAMES STRATTON, born Aug. 20, 1755, studied with Dr. Isaac Watts Harris, of Pittsgrove, graduated, M.D. at the University of Pennsylvania, and became a distinguished and successful physician, president of the Medical Society of New Jersey, surgeon in the 1st Regiment Gloucester County militia, etc. He rented from Thomas Clarke, and resided upon, a farm near Clarksboro (afterwards owned and occupied by the family of Joseph V. Clarke), which he managed at the same time while engaged in the practice of his profession. After a few years, he removed from this farm to the more eligible location at Swedesboro, and established himself upon the property which he purchased, situated on the north side of Raccoon Creek, where he built a large brick mansion, afterwards called "Stratton Hall," in which he continued to reside until his death, March 29, 1812. This last-mentioned property remained in the possession and occupancy of the family until after the death of Governor Stratton in 1859. Dr. STRATTON was active, enterprising, intelligent, dignified, with polished manners and a handsome presence. He was a skilful physician, a member of the Episcopal Church, and, although his practice extended over a circuit of many miles, was rarely absent from church on Sunday. He was several times a delegate from Trinity Church, Swedesboro, to the Diocesan Convention (see records of Trinity Church).

He married, first, July 15, 1779, ANNA HARRIS, daughter of Benjamin Harris, of Bound Brook, Somerset County, N. J., died Feb. 19, 1783, and buried in Pittsgrove, N. J., church-yard. It is stated that Benjamin Harris had three daughters, and that upon the beginning of the Revolutionary War, fortheir better protection, he sent them to Pittsgrove, in Cumberland County, to reside with their uncle Dr. Isaac Watts Harris, the preceptor of DR. JAMES STRATTON, who subsequently married ANNA HARRIS. Mercy Harris married, first, Amos Westcott; married, secondly, Dr. John Thomas Hampton; and Mr. Loudenslager married the remaining sister.

A daughter of Dr. John T. Hampton and his wife Mercy, Maria Harris Hampton, born Aug. 9, 1792, in New Jersey, married Francis Enoch Brewster, in New Jersey, Sept. 1, 1814. She died in Philadelphia, Jan. 17, 1853, buried in Woodlands Cemetery, Philadelphia.

STRATTON HALL, SWEDESBORO, N. J. BUILT ABOUT 1790

Issue (surnamed Brewster):

[1] Benjamin Harris, born Oct. 14, 1816; died April 4, 1888; graduated A.B., College of New Jersey, LL.D., afterwards Attorney-General of the United States; married, first, Elizabeth von Myrbache de Reinfeldts, Prussia; married, second, Mary, daughter of Robert J. Walker; he is buried in Woodlands Cemetery, Philadelphia.

Beatty Fithian, M.D., who died May 26, 1816, and left one daughter, Mary Elizabeth, born Feb. 10, 1813, died Oct. 2, 1822; married, secondly, Dec. 31, 1817, Daniel Powell Stratton, son of Levi Stratton and Abigail Harris, born Dec. 6, 1784, died June 6, 1840 (vide supra).

[2] James Creighton, born Nov. 16, 1792; d. y. July 26, 1793.

[3] Samuel Creighton, born May 10, 1794; died Oct. 25, 1860; educated at Rutgers College, New Brunswick; studied for the ministry; ordained deacon and priest by Bishop Croes, of the Diocese of New Jersey; rector of the Episcopal Church at Newtown, Conn., Clarksboro, N. J., and other parishes. He married, first, Nov. 17, 1824, Margaret Shepard Kerr, born March 27, 1797, died Jan. 10, 1832, daughter of George Kerr and Sarah Parker, of Accomac County, Va. Rev. Samuel C. Stratton married, secondly, April 28, 1834, Elizabeth Hood, born Sept. 1792, daughter of John Hood and Sarah Price, of Philadelphia, died Nov. 29, 1873; no children by second marriage.

Issue by First Marriage (surnamed Stratton):

[2] Sarah, born Oct. 9, 1827; d. y. July 25, 1829.

[3] James, born Nov. 21, 1829; died March 23, 1883; married June 17, 1869, Sarah B. Almy, born Sept. 17, 1829, died Feb. 13, 1906; left no heirs; buried at Swedesboro, N. J.

[4] Charles Creighton, born March 6, 1796; died March 30, 1859, married Feb. 1, 1854, Sarah Taggert, daughter of Joseph Taggert, of Philadelphia, born 1804, died Sept. 4, 1890.

Charles C. Stratton graduated at Rutgers College, New Brunswick, was a manufacturer, and owned large woollen and flour mills at Swedesboro. Several times elected a member of the State Legislature (four terms), twice a representative in the National Congress (25th and 27th), and was Governor of the State of New Jersey (1844 to 1848), being the first Governor chosen by the people under the new Constitution. He was also a captain and lieutenant-colonel in the militia of New Jersey and aide-de-camp on the staff of the Governor. He was prominent in the politics of his State for many years, and respected for his good judgment and unwavering integrity and as a consistent member of the Episcopal Church. His house was the resort of many friends and famed for its cordial hospitality. He was interred in the cemetery of Trinity Church, Swedesboro, and left no children. His widow, Sarah Stratton, died Sept. 4, 1890, and was interred beside her husband.

[5] Harriet, born Jan. 4, 1798; died May 20, 1850; married Nov. 12, 1817, Dr. Joseph Fithian, son of Amos Fithian and Rachel Leake, of Cedarville, N. J. No children by first marriage. Dr. Fithian married, secondly, Hester Cattell and had issue.

[6] Isabella, born July 10, 1799; died July 1, 1847; married Feb. 20, 1817, Benjamin Matlack Howey, son of Isaac Howey and Abigail Matlack, born Jan. 18, 1792; died July 4, 1840. (Vide post.)

[8] Abigail, born Jan. 9, 1804; died April 27, 1805; buried at Swedesboro, N. J.

Benjamin M. Howey, who married Isabella Stratton (vide supra), in his early youth served an apprenticeship in a wholesale grocery store in Philadelphia. He possessed good business qualifications, but, his tastes being in favor of agricultural pursuits, he abandoned his mercantile prospects, and purchased from his brothers and sisters their respective interests in the home farm upon which his father and grandfather had resided and where he was born, situated on the north bank of Oldman's Creek, in Gloucester County, N. J., subsequently known by the name of "Pleasant Meadows." This farm, enlarged by subsequent purchases to more than four hundred acres, he managed, cultivated, and beautified with great success until his death, and was widely famed for his magnificent horses. He was about five feet ten inches in height, with a clear gray eye, light complexion, and chestnut-colored hair, a genial outspoken address, handsome person, and masterful mind.

Both Benjamin M. Howey and Isabella Stratton lie in the new cemetery of Trinity Church, Swedesboro. (For the issue vide post.)

HON. CHARLES CREIGHTON STRATTON, OF SWEDESBORO, N.J.
(1796–1859)
Governor of New Jersey, 1844–48

THE HOWE FAMILY.

About the middle of the eighteenth century two brothers, Robert Howe and John Howe, emigrated from England to this country. They came from Suffolk, where the name was pronounced as if it were accented on the final letter, and it was spelled later "Howey" in New Jersey for this reason. They were the younger of three brothers, and went to America to improve their fortunes. The eldest remained in England. John Howe settled in Pennsylvania and probably resided in Philadelphia. Robert, his brother, purchased a large tract of land situated on the north bank of Oldman's Creek about one mile east of the point where it ceases to be navigable, in Gloucester County, N. J., on which he built a dwelling, cleared and cultivated a farm, and resided during the remainder of his life. He was living in 1797. A ledger of Dr. James Stratton has a charge against him, for professional services, of that date. He married Mary Troth, of Haddonfield, N. J., born May, 1731. Both were respected members of the religious Society of Friends. She died March 7, 1819, eighty-seven years and ten months old.

The children of Robert Howe and Mary Troth were seven in number. The descent is through Isaac, the fourth child. Of the other children we have found but few records and but little definite information.

Isaac Howey, son of Robert Howe and Mary Troth, born Sept. 8, 1766, died Sept. 24, 1806; married, 1789, Abigail Matlack, born Nov. 1, 1771, died July 13, 1826, daughter of Thomas and Abigail Matlack.

Their children were:

[1] MARY, born Feb. 8, 1790; died Aug. 4, 1858, unmarried.

[II] BENJAMIN MATLACK, born Jan. 18, 1792; died July 4, 1840; married Feb. 20, 1817, ISABELLA STRATTON, daughter of Dr. James Stratton and Mary Creighton, of Swedesboro, born July 10, 1799, died July 11, 1847 (vide supra).

ISSUE (SURNAMED HOWEY):

[1] ANNA MARIA, born Jan. 1, 1818; died May 16, 1883; married Nov. 16, 1837, EDWARD CARPENTER, 2D, son of Edward Carpenter, 1st, and Sarah Stratton (vide post).

[2] REBECCA FRENCH, born Feb. 1, 1819; died March 6, 1883; married Feb. 3, 1841, WILLIAM COOPER CHAMPION, born April 7, 1812, died Jan. 3, 1880.

Upon the death of his mother, the farm of "Pleasant Meadows" was sold out of the family. BENJAMIN F. HOWEY entered a grain and flour commission house in Philadelphia, but subsequently relinquished his mercantile pursuits to engage in quarrying and manufacturing slate in the vicinity of the Delaware Water Gap, in Warren County, N. J. His genial manners and personal integrity won the confidence of his fellow citizens, and he became prominent in the politics of the State. He was a captain in the 31st Regiment N. J. Vol. in the Civil War. Fought at Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, etc., and was elected high sheriff of Warren County in 1878, member of Congress in 1883, and was chosen by the Republican Convention in 1886 to be candidate for Governor, but was not elected.

THE HOPKINS FAMILY.

Towards the latter part of the seventeenth century, John Haddon, a wealthy iron-worker or anchorsmith, lived in Rotherhithe, Southwark, a suburb of the city of London on the east side of the River Thames He was a member of the Society of Friends, and had suffered in the general persecution of those who had adopted the doctrines of Fox. In 1698, having become interested in the movement to America, he purchased some land in New Jersey, followed by another purchase in the same year of about 500 acres in Newton Township. John Haddon and his wife Elizabeth had two children, Sarah, who married Benjamin Hopkins, a wine merchant of the city of London, and Elizabeth, who was born in 1682.

In 1701, at the age of 18, Elizabeth Haddon, being moved by the Spirit to endeavor to evangelize the Indians, left her home and came to New Jersey, where her father's possessions were located. This step taken by a girl so young was extraordinary, and showed an unusual self-reliance, resolution, and courage, although it is hinted that she may have been induced in no small degree by other reasons which were more clearly developed later.

John Estaugh, born in Kelvedon, Essex County, England, Second Month 23, 1676, came to live at Rotherhithe and was a frequent visitor at John Haddon's house, where he met Elizabeth. He was a young man of great promise and ability, an accepted minister among the Friends at that early age, an unusually effective preacher, and, under the auspices of the Meeting, went to America on a religious visit Seventh Month 28, 1700. On her arrival in New Jersey, Elizabeth Haddon established her residence temporarily on the site of the present town of Haddonfield, named after her, and later built a commodious house of brick, which after being occupied by several generations was unfortunately destroyed by fire in 1842. On Eighth Month 1, 1702, John Estaugh and Elizabeth Haddon were married, and Samuel Carpenter was one of the witnesses signing the marriage certificate. They lived here for forty years, managed their property with great judgment, occupied an enviable position and influence in the community, and their union seemed to be a perfectly harmonious and congenial one. Estaugh felt called upon to make many religious visits to England, Ireland, New England, and the West Indies. In one of these he died at Tortola, in the West Indies, Tenth Month 6, 1742. Elizabeth Estaugh also made several journeys to England to visit her aged parents, when crossing the ocean was a trying ordeal.

John Haddon died in 1723, and with his wife Elizabeth was buried at Long Lane Burying-Ground near London. Elizabeth Estaugh survived her husband nearly twenty years, dying March 30, 1762, in the eightieth year of her age. Having no children, she had adopted her nephew Ebenezer Hopkins, born Fourth Month, 1718, married Second Month, 1737, Sarah, daughter of James Lord, of Woodbury Creek, died intestate Fourth Month, 1757. Elizabeth Estaugh left the most of her real estate to the children of Ebenezer Hopkins. They were: John Estaugh Hopkins, born 1738, died 1812, married Sarah Mickle, Elizabeth Estaugh Hopkins, born 1739, died 1790, married 1762 John Mickle, Haddon Hopkins, born 1743, died 1768, married 1766, out of meeting, Hannah Stokes, Ebenezer Hopkins, born 1745, died 1796, married 1764 Ann Albertson, Sarah Hopkins, born 1748, died 1769, married 1767 Caleb Cresson, Mary Hopkins, born 1750, married Joshua Cresson, and Ann Hopkins, born 1757, died 1833, married 1793 Marmaduke Burr. It is said that the will of Elizabeth Estaugh shows her fine business ability. It exhibits a thorough knowledge of her estate, and in the disposition of it great judgment and discretion.

The descent is through John Estaugh Hopkins, who married Sarah Mickle 1762. They had seven children, among whom was James Hopkins, born 1763, died 1826, married 1784 Rebecca Clements, daughter of Sarah and Beulah Clements. The Clements family trace their descent from Gregory Clements, a citizen of London, merchant and trader with Spain, member of Parliament in 1646, one of the judges by whom Charles I was sentenced to death. He was convicted of treason, after the Restoration, and executed at Charing Cross, London, Oct. 17, 1660. A son of James Hopkins and Rebecca Clement—viz., Samuel Clement Hopkins, M.D., born 1786, died 1818—married 1812 (out of meeting), in Lancaster, Pa., Susan Barton, born Sept., 1788, died Jan., 1869, daughter of William Barton and Elizabeth Rhea Barton.

The grandfather of Susan Barton, the Rev. Thomas Barton, was a native of Ireland, born in 1730 in the County Monaghan, descended from an English family, who in the time of Charles I obtained considerable grants of land in Ireland, being possessed thereby of an ample estate. Later, through the vicissitudes of the times, they suffered heavy losses and their prospects were ruined, nevertheless Thomas Barton acquired an excellent education and graduated at the University of Dublin. Soon after he came to Philadelphia, where he became a tutor in the Academy of Philadelphia connected with the College of Philadelphia, which afterwards became the University of Pennsylvania. December 8, 1753, at the old Swedes Church he married Esther Rittenhouse, the sister of the celebrated astronomer David Rittenhouse, of Philadelphia, born 1731, died June 18, 1774. He married (2) 1776 the widow of Dr. DeNormandy, née Bard. Barton was very intimate and much interested with Rittenhouse, and gave him assistance and encouragement in the early part of his career, when it was most needed. In 1754 he went to England to be ordained, as there was no bishop in this country, and returned to America as a missionary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, and remained connected with it until 1759. He carried on his missionary work in the Counties of York and Lancaster, Pa., with great success, and in 1758 accompanied, as chaplain, the expedition against Fort du Quesne (now Pittsburgh), under General Archibald Forbes. At this time he became personally acquainted with Washington, Forbes, Mercer, and many other officers. In 1759 Barton removed to Lancaster and became rector of St. James, and remained there for nearly twenty years, gaining a great reputation as a teacher and preacher of the Gospel, going often to York and Carlisle as part of his care. People are said to have come fifty or sixty miles to hear him preach, and he awakened great enthusiasm and zeal, and "was unusually beloved by the community." The hard work injured his health. In revolutionary times his adherence to the royalist party and refusal to take the oath of allegiance to the colonial cause compelled him to quit his post and remove to New York, where he died 25 May, 1780, aged fifty, and was buried in the chancel of St. George's Chapel, New York. His wife survived him a long time. He had eight children.

[1] William Barton, the eldest son of Rev. Thomas Barton, born 1754–5, died Oct. 2, 1817; married June 14, 1781, Elizabeth Rhea, born Aug. 16, 1759, daughter of John Rhea and Mary Smith, of Portsmouth, N. H. Mary Smith's brother, Jonathan Bayard Smith, was signer of the Declaration of Independence. In Sept., 1775, at the desire of his father, William Barton went to England to complete his education. He left England in 1778 and returned to America by way of Holland and the West Indies. Landing at Baltimore Jan. 8, 1779, he actively espoused the cause of the colonists, taking the oath of allegiance. Soon after he was admitted to the bar in Lancaster, was a member of Captain Shelter's Company of Associators in 1782, and soon acquired a reputation as a man of ability and energy. Aug. 18, 1789, he was nominated by President Washington one of the judges of the Western Territory; appointed in 1800 prothonotary of Lancaster County and held this with clerk of the Orphans' Court until 1809. Removed to Philadelphia and was chosen secretary of the American Philosophical Society. The honorary degree of A.M. was conferred on him by the University of Pennsylvania. He was an accomplished scholar and good writer, the author of a biography of David Rittenhouse and other works.

[2] Esther Barton, daughter of Thomas Barton, born April 17, 1756; married March 3, 1774, Paul Zantzinger, born in 1744, had 16 children.

[3] Benjamin Smith Barton, son of Thomas Barton, born Feb. 10, 1766; married Mary Pennington, born March 17, 1771. In 1782 removed to Philadelphia, where he was educated and studied medicine. In 1786 he continued his medical studies in Edinburgh and London, and afterwards obtained his degree of Doctor of Medicine at Göttingen. On his return to Philadelphia in 1789, he commenced the practice of medicine. In 1789 he was appointed professor of natural history and botany in the College of Philadelphia, and remained until the establishment of the University of Pennsylvania in 1791. Appointed professor of materia medica and succeeded Dr. Rush in the department of the theory and practice of medicine. In 1803 he published the first work on botany in this country, and also published works on materia medica, etc. He had one son and one daughter, Thomas Pennant Barton and Hettie Barton.

[4] Matthias Barton, son of Thomas Barton, born in 1762, died Jan. 11, 1809; married Esther Cox, daughter of Tench Cox. No issue. Admitted to the bar in 1778. Elected from Lancaster County to the Legislature 1793, 1794, and 1795. In 1796, elected to the Senate of Pennsylvania, re-elected 1800. He was a man of high attainments and ability and of superior social qualities.

[5] Julianna Susanna Barton, daughter of Thomas Barton, married John Moore White, of New Jersey, son of Major White, a merchant of Philadelphia. His mother was the daughter of Alexander Moore, of Bridgeton, N. J. He removed to Woodbury, New Jersey, in 1808, where he practised law. Appointed attorney-general of the State in 1833 and judge of the Supreme Court in 1838. He died in 1860. His father, Major White, died of wounds received at the Battle of Germantown, and was an aid to General Sullivan. He was buried in the Mennonite burying-ground at Kulpsville, Montgomery Co., Pa. He was known as "Beau White," on account of his dress and appearance. They had one child, Esther White, who died 16 years of age.

[6] Richard Peters Barton, son of Thomas Barton, died Jan. 10, 1821; married Martha Walker, daughter of Dr. Walker, of Kingston, in Dinwiddie County, Virginia. He removed to the valley of Virginia and lived on a handsome estate about six miles south of Winchester, Virginia. He had three sons.

William Barton, son of Rev. Thomas Barton and Esther Rittenhouse, married Elizabeth Rhea (vide supra). They had 9 children. Of these:

[1] John Rhea Barton, M.D., born at Lancaster, Pa., died Jan. 1, 1871; married (1) Annie Frazer; married (2) Susan Ridgway, daughter of Jacob Ridgway and widow of Dr. Rotch, of New Bedford; a leading physician of Philadelphia, excelled as a surgeon. Of his children, Francis Barton married Emily Chase, of Boston; issue, Emily Barton. Alice Barton married Edward S. Willing; issue, 4 children; of these, Ava L. Willing married John Jacob Astor; issue, Vincent Astor.

[2] William P. C. Barton, son of William Barton, born Nov. 17, 1786; married Esther Rittenhouse Sergeant, daughter of Jonathan Dickinson Sergeant, a member of the Philadelphia bar and granddaughter of the distinguished David Rittenhouse. Graduated from Princeton College in 1805; graduated in medicine, University of Pennsylvania, in 1808. He practised medicine in Philadelphia and was surgeon in the Pennsylvania Hospital. Appointed surgeon in the navy and organized and became chief of the bureau of medicine and surgery in the navy. He had a great deal of sea duty and was stationed several times at the Navy Yard in Philadelphia and at other stations. Appointed professor of botany in the University of Pennsylvania and professor of materia medica and botany in the Jefferson Medical College. Member of the American Philosophical Society, honorary member and surgeon of the First Troop Philadelphia City Cavalry, etc. In an address before the Alumni Association of the Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia, March 11, 1871, S. D. Gross, M.D., LL.D., professor of surgery and president of the association, said of Dr. William P. C. Barton, "He was in all respects a remarkable man, highly educated, learned in his profession, a graceful lecturer, an able writer, and one of the most accomplished botanists in America." He had 14 children. Of these 10 died young or unmarried. He died in Philadelphia Feb. 29, 1856.

Elizabeth Sergeant Barton, a daughter of Dr. William P. C. Barton, born April 28, 1815, died Aug. 23, 1885; married April 28, 1840, Samuel Abbot, of Boston, born Oct. 10, 1807, died Oct. 4, 1873. Issue, 6 children; 5 died young or unmarried. The remaining child is George Maurice Abbot, born Aug. 14, 1846, in Philadelphia; married Oct. 12, 1876, Fanny Watson, daughter of James A Farnum. Issue, one child, Elizabeth Sergeant Abbot.

Julia Barton, daughter of Dr. William P. C. Barton, born in 1817, died June 26, 1884; married Dr. I. Dickinson Miller, medical director, U. S. Navy. They had 3 children. Of these, Edward Rittenhouse Miller married Gertrude Roberts, of Germantown. No issue.

HOWELL, OF FANCY HILL.

The "Fancy Hill" property, for more than two centuries in the possession of the family, was known by this name for many years before Colonel Joshua Ladd Howell built the house which those of the older generation still remember as the old homestead. The house was built in 1805 and was destroyed by fire in 1909. Prior to its destruction it, as well as most of the property which in former times comprised the plantation, had been sold out of the family, and a few hundred acres of pine woods are all that now remain of what was once a large estate.

Situate on the New Jersey shore of the Delaware, opposite the lower part of Philadelphia, on the bank above Howell's Cove, the house commanded an extensive view of the river. A long, low, brick house with high-ceilinged halls, airy rooms, and carved mantels, it was a fine specimen of the old colonial mansion. Between the house and the river lay the garden and lawn. Many of the shrubs and plants were originally brought from England and planted at "Candor Hall," from whence they were removed to "Fancy Hill;" much of the furniture and many of the ornaments had come from England in the early days. Here Colonel Howell entertained the members of the Gloucester Fox-hunting Club, the officers of the navy whose ships from time to time lay off the cove, and his military friends of the War of 1812. Captain Lawrence, of the ill-fated "Chesapeake," in remembrance of the hospitality enjoyed at Fancy Hill, shortly before his last voyage sent a portrait of himself which still remains in the possession of the family. Tales still told recount the notable gatherings at the colonel's hospitable board; letters still preserved describe events happening throughout the world in those stirring days, told to the master of Fancy Hill by the actors themselves. The hedges of box-wood, the orchards, shaded walks, and old-fashioned gardens had their origin in the formative period of the republic.

In the cove below the house were conducted for many years the fisheries which in former times constituted an important and valuable adjunct to the property. North of the cove were the West Point fisheries, originally the property of the Ladds, but later acquired by Colonel Howell. The fisheries were sold when the property was divided and eventually disposed of, in the latter part of the last century.

The ancestor of the family in America was John Howell, who in 1697 emigrated from Aberistwith, Cardiganshire, Wales, and settled near the centre of Philadelphia. He was accompanied by three children, Jacob, Evan, and Sarah. Like so many of the early settlers in and around Philadelphia, he was a member of the Society of Friends.

Jacob Howell, son of the emigrant, removed to Chester in 1707, where he engaged in the business of tanning. In 1709 he married Sarah, daughter of Randal and Sarah Vernon. The Vernons were members of the Society of Friends, and Randal Vernon was a man of prominence both in the affairs of the society and in provincial matters. Emigrating to this country in 1682, shortly before William Penn, Vernon's name frequently appears among the records, and in 1687 he served as a member of the Provincial Assembly. Jacob Howell was successful in business, and in 1722 was rated as one of the largest tax-payers in Chester. He was treasurer of the Chester County Meeting, a recommended minister of the society, and during years actively employed in its service.

Jacob and Sarah Vernon Howell had a son John, their third child. Born in 1713, he married January 25, 1733, Katharine Ladd, and after his marriage settled in Woodbury, N. J. His wife was the daughter of John Ladd, who with other Friends arrived at Burlington, N. J., in 1678.

John Ladd was one of the Council of Proprietors and assisted William Penn in laying out the city of Philadelphia. Soon after his arrival he built "Candor Hall," a mile northeast of Woodbury, and gradually became the owner of large tracts of land in Gloucester County. A considerable part of his holdings came into the Howell family by marriage and purchase. In view of the connection between the Howell and Carpenter families, it is a curious coincidence that his son Samuel purchased from the widow of Samuel Carpenter, in 1714, 400 acres of land south of Timber Creek and fronting on the Delaware River (including the present hamlet of Westville), and that his grandson sold the West Point Fishery to Colonel Joshua Ladd Howell in 1811. One of Ladd's sons left several hundred acres to his nephew John Ladd Howell, with provision that he should take 1,600 acres more after the death of the testator's widow. While no attempt has been made to compute the real estate holdings of John Ladd and his sons, they included many thousands of acres, and the family was one of the oldest and best known in that part of the State called West New Jersey.

John and Katharine Ladd Howell had a son, John Ladd Howell, born March 15, 1739, who was apprenticed to his uncle Joshua Howell, a merchant in Philadelphia. In April, 1760, he was one of "His Majesty's justices of the peace in West New Jersey." At the opening of the Revolution he had become a merchant of prominence in Philadelphia, and at various times during the war he was commissary of purchases for the Continental Army. In 1776 he was directed by the Committee of Safety to inspect the powder-mills which supplied the Revolutionary forces, and in 1778 and 1779 under direction of the Board of War was engaged in collecting and forwarding supplies. In 1779 he apparently acted as aide-de-camp to General Ellis with the rank of colonel, and in 1780 was judge advocate in various courts-martial. He was with the army on numerous occasions; on the march of Colonel St. Clair towards Canada (as far as Albany), at Dover, Middletown, Head of Elk, Sassafras River, Valley Forge, and Philadelphia. In 1780 he established his residence at Candor Hall, where he lived till the time of his death in 1785. His wife, Frances Paschall, of Darby, was the daughter of Dr. John Paschall and Frances Hodges, the former being descended from Thomas Paschall, who came from Bristol, England, in 1681-1682, bringing with him a grant of 500 acres of land, which he located on Cobb's Creek near what is now Paschallville, and who, in 1691, was one of the twelve members of the Council of Philadelphia.

John Ladd and Frances Paschall Howell had a son, Joshua Ladd Howell, born in Philadelphia in 1762. As above stated, the family moved to "Candor Hall" about 1780, and from then till his father's death in 1785 he assisted the latter in the management of his large estate. In 1786 he married Anna Blackwood, daughter of Samuel Blackwood and Abigail Clement. Samuel Blackwood was the son of John Blackwood, who emigrated from Scotland in the early part of 1700 and established mills at the head of Timber Creek in Gloucester County, N. J., later acquiring various properties, including the tract near where the town of Blackwood now stands. Samuel Blackwood was sheriff of Gloucester County in 1767, surrogate in 1758 and 1767, and justice of the peace in 1772. Through Abigail Clement the family is descended from the families of Clement, Harrison, Huddleston, and other well-known lines. In 1793 Joshua Ladd Howell cleared out what is now known as Howell's Cove, on the east bank of the Delaware below Philadelphia, and started the Howell's Cove fishery. In 1805 he built the place at Fancy Hill and in 1811 purchased the West Point fishery just above Fancy Hill. In addition to the farms at "Candor Hall" and "Fancy Hill," the farms at Westville, Eagle Point, and elsewhere, he took up large tracts on the Maurice River. His business affairs, together with his interests in political, military, and social matters, fully occupied his time. He was a strong Federalist and took an active part in politics. His military career covered the period from 1793 to 1818, during which time he held various commands, being colonel of the Second Regiment, Gloucester Brigade, of New Jersey Militia, at the time of his death. In the War of 1812 he was on duty at Cape May and other points in his State. He was a member of the Gloucester Fox-hunting Club, founded in 1766, one of the earliest organizations of its kind in the country. Anna Blackwood, Colonel Howell's wife, has left an interesting account of her recollections of the Revolution. She was a child at the time, but clearly remembered the Hessians' passing through Haddonfield to attack Fort Mercer, led by Count Donop; she remembered also Lafayette, who was stationed at Haddonfield with Morgan's Rifle Corps, and Count Pulaski. British and Hessians on several occasions quartered in her mother's home, told her of the war, and on the evacuation of Philadelphia, when the British forces halted at Haddonfield for two days, she saw Clinton, Cornwallis, and Erskine. She particularly remembered a Scotch colonel who was at that time quartered at her home, and who allowed her to play with his accoutrements and made much of her.

Richard Washington Howell, one of the children of Colonel Howell and Anna Blackwood, was born at "Candor Hall" in 1799, and married Mary T. Carpenter, daughter of Edward Carpenter of Carpenter's Landing, in 1830. After his marriage Mr. Howell moved to Camden and engaged in the practice of law. He was warden of St. Paul's Church, president of the Common Council of Camden during the years 1851, 1852, and 1853, and an eminent member of his profession. He died in 1859. His wife, through whom the families of Carpenter and Howell became connected, survived him for many years. With the passing of their generation "Fancy Hill" and other properties in New Jersey were divided and sold.

175. JAMES STRATTON CARPENTER[6] (Edward Carpenter[5], Thomas Carpenter[4], Preston Carpenter[3], Samuel Carpenter, 2d[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), born in Glassborough, Gloucester Co., N. J., Oct. 18, 1807; died Jan. 31, 1872; married Oct. 12, 1832, CAMILLA JULIA SANDERSON, born Oct., 1815, died May 19, 1897, daughter of John Sanderson, author of "The Lives of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence," etc., and Sophie Carré his wife.

JAMES S. CARPENTER studied medicine with Dr. Joseph Fithian, of Woodbury, N. J. He graduated M.D. at the Univ. of Penna., and in 1830 settled in Pottsville, Pa., then a new settlement in the coal region of Schuylkill County, Pa., where he soon acquired a lucrative practice. In 1835 he visited Europe in company with his father-in-law and studied in the hospitals of Paris. Returning home in 1837, he resumed the practice of his profession in Pottsville, which he continued with great success until his death in 1872. His reputation for great skill extended far beyond the limits of his practice, and his personal magnetism, genial manners, social qualities, and hospitality endeared him to all who came within their influence.

THE SANDERSON FAMILY.

Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, was organized in 1750 from a part of Lancaster County, and it was settled by Scotch and English, who began in 1740–42 to take up lands to which the Indians' title had not been fully extinguished. Among these were Alexander Sanderson and his family, who located about 1744 near the present town of Carlisle in Middleton Township, Cumberland County.

The tradition is that they emigrated from Carlisle, County of Cumberland, England, and were connected with an ancient line of the name belonging to Durham. A seal handed down in the family had engraved upon it a coat of arms, and is said to have originally belonged to Robert Sanderson, Bishop of Lincoln, 1587–1663, who was an intimate friend of Charles I. He was descended from Alexander de Bidduc alias Sanderson, of County Durham, England, who lived about 1330, the arms being the same as those displayed on the seal.

Arms—paly of six, argent and azure, on a bend sable or three armlets. Crest—On a mont vert a talbot sable eared or spotted of the last. Motto—Sans dieu rien.

The records in Pennsylvania show, under the head of Warrantees of Land, in Lancaster County, Penna., Alexander Sanderson, 200 acres, date of survey Sept. 19, 1746; George Sanderson (son), 200 acres, date of survey April 30, 1745. In the first list of taxables in Middleton Township, Cumberland Co., for 1751 (Penna. Archives, 3d Series, vol. 24, pp. 527, 529), appear the names of Alexander Sanderson and George Sanderson.

Alexander Sanderson had a wife named Jean and a number of children. He died in 1760. His will was signed Feb. 20, 1760, and proved Dec. 11, 1760.

In the list of taxables in Middleton Township in 1762 we find the names of George Sanderson, Sr., Robert Sanderson, Jean Sanderson (the widow of Alexander, who is taxed for 200 acres), George Sanderson, Jr., Alexander Sanderson, Jr. The letters of the Rev. Thomas Barton show that the Indians were very troublesome in this section after 1755, and many atrocities and murders were committed by them on the scattered and practically unprotected settlers.

George Sanderson was the eldest son of Alexander, and his wife was Jane. They had two sons and four daughters. George died in 1797, his will being signed Nov. 11, 1795, proved May 22, 1797. Robert, the eldest son, was born in England in 1736, died 1803, will signed Oct. 16, 1802, proved March 10, 1803. His wife was named Mary. They had three sons, George, Alexander, and William, who was married and had children, and two daughters, Martha McClain, with three children, and Jane Hawling. The Sanderson family must have held considerable property, as nineteen of them are on the list as warrantees of land taken up from 1745 to 1797.

During the Revolution Robert Sanderson and his son William held commissions in the Cumberland County Militia and saw service. They must have been men of good standing and reputatation, or they would not have been placed as captains in command of companies raised in the neighborhood. Robert Sanderson was captain of the 8th Company, 3d Battalion, Cumberland County Militia, commissioned July 31, 1777. He was also in active service May, 1778, and July, 1778. (Penna. Archives, 2d Series, vol. 14, p. 427; vol. 15, pp. 602, 607, 624.) William Sanderson, son of Robert Sanderson, was captain of the 3d Company, 7th Battalion, Cumberland County Associators, commissioned July 31, 1777, again in May, 1778, and in April, 1779. (Penna. Archives, 2d Series, vol. 14, pp. 412, 436, 438, 451, also vol. 15, pp. 578, 624.) He was commissioned May 10, 1780, major of the 5th Battalion (vol. 14, p. 461).

William Sanderson appears in a list for the levying of State taxes in 1799, in Tyrone Township, as having 400 acres of land, 5 horses, 10 cattle and 1 negro. He married Agnes McClellan, whose mother was a Buchanan, and she is said to be descended from the Douglas of Scotland, a very intellectual and well-educated woman. The latter part of her life was spent in Alabama, with an only daughter, Matilda, who married Dr. May, of that section. Her sons were John, James H., and Joseph McClellan. The latter married and had issue, among whom was a son Robert McClellan and a daughter Emma Sanderson. James H. assisted his brother John in writing "The Signers."

REV. SAMUEL TONKIN CARPENTER
(1810–1864)

John Sanderson, through whom our descent comes, was born in 1783, near Carlisle, Cumberland Co., Penna.; died in Philadelphia April 5, 1844; educated by a private tutor; studied law, but devoted himself finally to literature, and became an associate instructor in the Clermont Seminary, the principal being John Thomas Carré. John Sanderson married Carré's daughter Sophie Carré in 1805, and they had ten children. Sanderson went abroad in 1835 on account of his health, and when he returned was made professor of Latin and Greek in the Philadelphia High School, where he remained until his death. In 1820 he published the first two volumes of "The Signers of the Declaration of Independence," a work requiring much research, being assisted by his brother James H. Sanderson. Afterwards published in seven volumes by Robert Waln, Jr., it has passed through several editions. In 1833 he published "Sketches in Paris," republished in London under the title of "The American in Paris" (1838), and other works. He was considered an authority in classic literature. Sanderson was brilliant in his conversation, most interesting in his writings, remarkable for his genial manners, and loved by his associates. He is buried in the Presbyterian cemetery at Pottsville, Pa.

The Carrés, into which family he married, had an eventful history. John Thomas Carré was a native of France, and at an early age went to the island of San Domingo, where he was appointed a surveyor for the king (Louis XVI) in the parishes of Borgne and Plaisance, dependencies of Cape Français. He married Anne Beatrice Chicaneu, daughter of Madam Chicaneu, widow of Mr. Chicaneu, formerly an engineer at San Domingo. By this marriage he became possessed of a large tract of land. Here he established an extensive coffee plantation of about fifty thousand coffee plants and the necessary buildings, with eventually about sixty negro slaves. In December, 1793, the negroes in that vicinity revolted and killed nearly all of the whites. A neighbor was pursued and killed in his house, but his own negroes, having been kindly treated, protected his family. Later he found it necessary to retreat to the coast, leaving everything,—the crops, a select library of 5,400 volumes, a large, commodious dwelling-house, and other buildings. The houses were burned and everything destroyed. Carré went to Philadelphia in September, 1794, with three of his children and three servants, and remained there until December, 1798, when he embarked again for Cape Français. He found the island under Toussaint L'Ouverture, the negro commander. Mr. Carré accepted the position of secretary of the American Legation, to get the advantage of an official status. The French fleet arrived there soon after, and, fearing the negroes would burn the town, he with others went aboard an American vessel, having only the clothes they wore. The town was burned and all of their property was destroyed. He then embarked, with those belonging to him, on an American ship May 11, 1799, and arrived in New York June 9, 1799, and soon took up his residence in Philadelphia, where he remarried.

John Sanderson married Sophie Carré and had ten children. Of these:

[2] Matilda married Joseph Price, of Delaware, and had John, Sophie, Margaret, James, Joseph, Matilda, Jennie, Camilla, Alfred, Harry, Cornelia, and Marion.

176. Samuel Tonkin Carpenter[6] (Edward Carpenter[5], Thomas Carpenter[4], Preston Carpenter[3], Samuel Carpenter, 2d[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), born in Glassborough, N. J., Nov. 25, 1810; married, first, May 26, 1841, Frances Champlain, of Derby, Conn., born Jan. 8, 1819, died Jan.

4, 1845, daughter of Adam Champlain and Henrietta Blaksley his wife; married, secondly, June 2, 1852, EMILIE D. THOMPSON, of Wilmington, Del., born Aug. 31, 1830, died Feb. 28, 1897, daughter of Richard Thompson and Elizabeth S. Denny his wife.

SAMUEL TONKIN CARPENTER was educated at Kenyon College, Ohio; studied in the Episcopal Seminary at Alexandria, ordained deacon and to the priesthood by Bishop Mead, of Virginia; rector of the Episcopal Church at Smyrna and also at Dover, Delaware, and at Litchfield, Conn. Appointed chaplain in the U. S. Army during the Civil War; died Dec. 6, 1864, of fever contracted in the hospitals at Cincinnati in line of duty while visiting the sick. He was interred in the new cemetery of Trinity Church, Swedesboro, N. J.

Howey and Isabella Stratton his wife, of "Pleasant Meadows," Gloucester Co., N. J.

EDWARD CARPENTER, 2D, during his early years lived with his mother and grandfather at Woodbury and Carpenter's Landing. The latter, now called Mantua, was then a place of active business in cord-wood, lumber, and ship timber, employing many sloops and small vessels in the trade. He resided a short time in Glassborough, subsequently a few years at Chesterfield, Kent County, Maryland; removed to Philadelphia in 1843, where, with a short interval, he continued to reside until his death in 1889. He studied law, but devoted himself to matters relating to real estate, which he successfully pursued for many years. He was a prominent churchman, one of the founders of the Church of the Mediator, Philadelphia, a member of numerous vestries, delegate to the Diocesan Convention, and in his later years a vestryman of Trinity Church, West Philadelphia. He was studious in his tastes and of extensive information, and interesting and attractive personally, with agreeable manners.

THE WASHBURN FAMILY.

The Washburns emigrated in the time of Charles I in the great exodus of 1643, and settled in the southwestern corner of Connecticut, in Fairfield County. About 1725, when the English Church was gaining a foot-hold in Connecticut, a small congregation was gathered in the village of Newtown under the guidance of the Rev. John Beach. This corner of the colony held back from the Revolutionary movement. Beach wrote to the "Society for the Propagation of the Gospel" thus: "Newtown and the Church of England part of Reading are I believe the only portions of New England that have refused to comply with the doings of the Congress." At Reading the notorious association of Loyalists, with some one hundred members, had its head-quarters. Among the names black-listed for Toryism were the Washburns. A David Washburn was particularly irrepressible in his devotion to king and church, and was sentenced by the Revolutionists to be hung, but was exchanged with a cartel of patriots. Nathan Washbon (as the name was then spelled) was a physician and a Tory, like most of that profession then, probably because of their education in British schools.

Independence winning out, the stubborn minority that had declined to renounce inherited allegiances was frowned upon and oppressed. Many of them fled to Canada or Nova Scotia, while others moved out into the wilderness seclusion of Western New York. Of these the Washbons, Zeba and Zenas, settled in the Unadilla country in the Butternut Valley and reared large families. Daniel Washburn was the son of Zenas and Mary Cope Washburn.

LOUIS HENRY CARPENTER, BRIGADIER-GENERAL, U. S. ARMY

General Carpenter entered the army at the beginning of the Civil War as a private in the 6th United States Cavalry; promoted second lieutenant, 6th Cavalry, July 17, 1862, and first lieutenant Sept. 28, 1864. Was brevetted from first lieutenant to lieutenant-colonel for gallant and meritorious conduct. Served in the campaigns of the Peninsula, Fredericksburg, and Gettysburg. Was on Stoneman's raid to the rear of Lee's army at the battle of Chancellorsville. Appointed aide-de-camp to Major-General Philip H. Sheridan, and participated in that capacity in the campaigns of the Wilderness, Siege of Petersburg, and the Shenandoah Valley, also in Sheridan's raid around Richmond and to Trevillian Station. Commanded a regiment of volunteers toward the end of the war with the rank of colonel.

July 28, 1866, he was appointed captain in the 10th Cavalry (Regular Army), and served in thirteen years of continuous Indian wars on the plains, taking part in many scouts and combats.

Brevetted colonel for gallant conduct in an engagement with Cheyenne and Sioux Indians in 1868. Mentioned in official reports of the battle of Gettysburg and in an order issued by General Sheridan concerning the combat on the Beaver Creek, Kansas. Given the Medal of Honor for the forced march to the relief of Colonel Forsyth on the Arickaree Fork of the Republican River, Colorado, and for the combat on the Beaver, in the campaign of 1868. Commanded Fort Robinson, Nebraska, 1883, 1885, and Fort Myer, Washington, D. C., 1887–1901, as major, 5th Cavalry.

Director of cavalry instruction at Fort Riley, Kansas, as lieutenant-colonel 7th Cavalry, 1892–1897. President of the Board to Revise the Cavalry Tactics for the Army. Promoted colonel 5th cavalry in 1897. Commanding the regiment and post of Fort Sam Houston, at San Antonio, Texas.

714. WILLIAM DORR, born June 26, 1879.
715. LLOYD PRESTON, born March 28, 1884.

THE DORR FAMILY.

Edward Dorr was the first of the name in this country. He came to New England about 1670, it is said from the west of England, where families of the name have long been settled in Dorsetshire. The records show that Edward Dorr was at Pemaquid (Bristol), Maine, July 22, 1674. In the same year he is noted as taking the oath of allegiance in Boston, and in 1677 purchased some land at the north end of Boston. He acquired later considerable property in Roxbury, Leicester, and Woodstock, and removed to Roxbury, date uncertain. In 1718 he was town clerk, in 1721 moderator, and in 1723 one of the selectmen of the town. Edward Dorr married about 1679 Elizabeth Hawley, daughter of Thomas Hawley and Dorothy Lamb, née Harbottle, widow of Thomas Lamb. She was born at Roxbury, 1656, and died there Dec. 7, 1719. Mr. Dorr married, secondly, the widow Elizabeth Clap, née Dickerman, who died Jan. 30, 1732. Edward was born about 1648, and died in Roxbury Feb. 9, 1733, in the 86th year of his age.

In the fourth generation Edward Dorr was born at Roxbury Oct. 4, 1757, son of Edward Dorr and Abigail Gridley, and died at Salisbury, Mass., March 27, 1844. He married July 14, 1782, Ruth Dalton, of Salisbury, and was a shipwright by trade, and an active member of the Congregational Church for many years, being chosen deacon July 27, 1797. A few years before his death, he joined the Protestant Episcopal Church. In the Revolution Dorr enlisted in John Merritt's company as a private, marched to Cambridge, and served altogether three years. He filled many offices in his town and county, and was considered very efficient as a magistrate.

Edward Dorr and Ruth Dalton had seven children. The descent is through Benjamin, who was born at Salisbury March 22, 1796, died at Philadelphia Sept. 18, 1869. He married July 12, 1827, Esther Kettell Odin, of Boston. Graduated at Dartmouth College 1817, studied law in the office of Hon. Amasa Paine, at Troy, N. Y., but decided to go into the ministry, graduating at the General Theological Seminary; ordained deacon in 1820, priest in 1823. After being rector of Lansingburg and Waterford and then at Utica, N. Y., he became secretary and general agent for the Domestic Committee of the Board of Missions, and then received a call to become rector of old Christ Church, Philadelphia, to succeed Bishop White. This call he accepted, and was instituted May 4, 1837. Received the degree of D.D. from the University of Pennsylvania; was made trustee of the university 1839. Was elected Bishop of Maryland 1839, but declined. Member of the American Philosophical Society 1841. Author of many books, chiefly on church subjects. Died in Philadelphia Sept. 18, 1869.

Dr. Dorr had six children:

[1] MARY WARREN, born in Boston June 22, 1828; married Oct. 31, 1854, WILLIAM LEHMAN SCHAEFFER, JR., and had issue.

[2] WALTER ALLEN, born at Utica Sept. 5, 1833; died Nov. 12, 1834.

[3] ESTHER ODIN, born in Utica July 4, 1835; married Dec. 9, 1856, WILLIAM HEWITT WEBB, and had issue.

[4] WILLIAM WHITE, born in Philadelphia Oct. 31, 1837; killed at Spottsylvania Court House May 10, 1864, as captain 121st P. V., Wadsworth's Division, 5th Corps.

[5] HARRIET ODIN, born in Philadelphia July 22, 1842; married JAMES EDWARD CARPENTER, ESQ., of Philadelphia, and had issue (vide supra).

[6] BENJAMIN DALTON, born in Philadelphia April 18, 1846; admitted to Philadelphia bar 1870; married May 29, 1888, EMMA LOUISE ASHTON, daughter of Dr. Samuel K. Ashton, and had issue.

By the marriages with the Daltons and Odins, the Dorr family came into the descent from Increase Mather, Chief-Justice Lynde, the Rev. Dr. Walter, the Digbys, and other lines of distinguished ancestry in New England.

DALTON DORR.

385. SARAH CAROLINE CARPENTER[7] (Edward Carpenter, 2d[6], Edward Carpenter[5], Thomas Carpenter[4], Preston Carpenter[3], Samuel Carpenter, 2d[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), born at "Pleasant Meadows," Gloucester Co., N. J., Jan. 18, 1843; died at York Harbor, Me., Aug. 31, 1904; married Jan. 18, 1865, ANDREW WHEELER, of Philadelphia, born Sept. 6, 1832, died Nov. 21, 1903, son of Charles Wheeler, Esq., and Eliza Bowman his wife. Charles Wheeler died June 16, 1852.

ANDREW WHEELER was a prominent iron merchant of Philadelphia, a member of the firm of Morris, Wheeler and Co., president of the Morris-Tasker Co. Iron Works, treasurer of the American Iron and Steel Association, director of the Central National Bank, Delaware Mutual Insurance Co., Pottstown Iron Co., member of the Board of Trade. Vestryman of St. Luke's Church, Philadelphia, delegate to the Diocesan Episcopal Convention. He was an early member of the Union League.

ANDREW WHEELER was descended from the Swedes who settled on the Delaware before the advent of William Penn.

THE WHEELER FAMILY.

The ancestor of the Wheeler family in Philadelphia came to this country with the Swedes who settled on the Delaware before the advent of William Penn.

The name does not appear on an early list of the Swedish settlers in 1648, and the first mention to be found is that of John Wheeler (written Johan Hwiler), who signs a protest, with twenty-one others, against the arbitrary and tyrannical conduct of the Governor of New Sweden, which was handed in to Governor Printz, July 27, 1653. John Wheeler must have been some time in the country to be called upon to join in signing such a paper, and it would be reasonable to assume that he arrived about 1650. The name Wheeler, rendered Hwiler, Wihler, and in other forms, is said to be of English origin, and the ancestor had more than likely sought service in Sweden during the wars of Gustavus Adolphus.

John Wheeler appears again July 29, 1661, with fourteen Swedes, who are made free citizens and denizens of Maryland, in a paper signed by Philip Calvert, lieutenant of the Province of Maryland. After a sojourn there, Wheeler probably returned to the banks of the Delaware. (Maryland Archives, vol. iii, page 429.)

In the records of the court at Upland there is "March ye 12th, 1677–8, upon the petition of Lasse Andrews, on behalf of John Wheeler and Andrees Wheeler, desiring a grant to take up for them both 300 acres of Land on ye Schuylkill. The Court granted to ye said John & Andrees liberty to take up 300 acres of Land, they seating and improving ye said Land, according to his Honour ye Governor's orders and regulations."

John Wheeler probably married after his arrival on the Delaware, and had a son named Andrew, both appearing in the above transaction.

In the list prepared by Carl Christapherson Springer and sent to John Theim, secretary and postmaster at Göthsberg, Sweden, May 31, 1693, of the Swedes then on the Delaware, occurs the name of "Anders Wihler," with four in his family. He evidently married some years before and had children, but no mention is made of John Wheeler (the elder), who must have died at an earlier date. It also appears in the records of the commissioners of property that John Roberts bought in 1699 of Andrew Wheeler, a Swede, a tract of land in Merion (the courses are given, some of them following the Schuylkill) containing 60 acres, being part of a survey made by Richard Noble, the 24th of 3d month, 1681, by virtue of a warrant from the court at Upland dated 1st month, 1677, pursuant to the petition of Lasse Andrews on behalf of John and Andrew Wheeler for 300 acres, "and the said John Wheeler being dead, Andrew is his sole heir." This is a part of the land in the Roberts place at Bala, for which they now hold the deed. The records show that Lasse or Lawrence Andrews in his will dated 5th mo. 17, 1689, gives to Michael Neilson and Andrew Wheeler a certain house and land in Moyamensing. Michael Neilson by deed dated May 13, 1702, transfers all of his claim to this property to Andrew Wheeler. He thus became owner of a tract of land of 28 acres upland and 65¾ acres meadow.

The Rev. Andrew Rudman in 1697–98 made a list of families belonging to the parish of Gloria Dei Church of Philadelphia, giving their residences. We read therein: "From the Church down the River, at the Hollander's Creek (near Moyamensing), Andrew Wheeler. His wife Catherine. Their children [1] John 7 years, Andrew 5, Lawrence 4, Anna 1½."

Andrew Wheeler, by will dated March 17, 1719–20, proved March 20, 1719–20, leaves all of his property to his wife Anna Maria Wheeler and his children Andrew[2], John, Samuel[1], Mary, and Ann.

He was married twice, (1) to Catherine, and (2) to Anna Maria, Nov. 23, 1704. (See manuscript of T. Stewardson, Hist. Society of Penna.) By the first marriage he had [1] John, [2] Andrew, [3] Lawrence, and [4] Ann. By the 2d marriage: [1] Mary and [2] Samuel. Lawrence must have died before the will was made, as that shows all of the children living, by both marriages.

Andrew[2] died intestate. The tombstone over the grave of Samuel Wheeler[2] in Christ Church-yard gives the date of his birth and death, and, in addition, "In Memoriam," Samuel Wheeler[1], born Sept. 30, 1715, died 1742, and of Andrew Wheeler, died Sept. 10, 1732. The latter evidently refers to Andrew Wheeler[2]. The two last are not buried here, but probably at Gloria Dei Church.

Samuel Wheeler[1], the son of Andrew Wheeler[1], born Sept. 30, 1715, died 1742, aged 27 years. His wife was named Ann, and they had two children, [1]Ann, who died in infancy, and a son Samuel[2], born June 20, 1742, after the death of his father.

SAMUEL WHEELER[2], son of Samuel Wheeler[1], born at Weccaco, Philadelphia, June 20, 1742, died May 10, 1820, aged 78 years. Buried in Christ Church-yard. Ironmaster. During the Revolution he served in the Continental army. His reputation as a skilled worker in iron reached General Washington, who had him make a chain which was placed across the Hudson River at West Point to prevent the passage of British ships. This was a success and did good service. Wheeler made a cannon out of bars of iron, by welding them, which was used at the Battle of Brandywine with such effect as to excite the wonder and admiration of the American officers. He also made many improvements in mechanics, in hay-scales, hoisting-machines, screws, lanterns for light-houses, and in a new successful method of laying stones for light-houses. He constructed the handsome iron gates to old Christ Church, Philadelphia. After the war he was elected a member of the House of Representatives in the State Legislature for the County of Montgomery, where he had removed his family for safety. At the time of his death, he was the oldest justice of the peace in the County of Philadelphia, a member of the American Philosophical Society, and a vestryman of Gloria Dei and Christ Church.

SAMUEL WHEELER[2] married (1) Nov. 28, 1765, ELIZABETH ANN FLOWER, daughter of Enoch Flower and Ann Jones. Issue: [1] Enoch, born April 1, 1767, died Feb. 11, 1843; [2] Mary, born Nov. 14, 1768, died Dec. 14, 1815; [3] Elizabeth, born Nov. 15, 1771, died Aug. 29, 1774; [4] Ann, born Sept. 30, 1774, died Oct. 17, 1774; [5] Elizabeth Flower, born Nov. 8, 1776, died Jan. 8, 1829. Married (2) Oct. 20, 1779, Elizabeth Jones, died Jan. 30, 1826, daughter of John Jones and Sarah Mifflin. Issue:

[3] JOHN JONES, born 1787; died Dec. 3, 1857; married Aug. 27, 1807, HENRIETTA MARIA HOWELL, born 1789, died May 26, 1858. Issue: 9 children.

[4] Charles, born March 15, 1788; died June 16, 1858; married ELIZA BOWMAN. (Vide post.)

[5] ANNE F., born 1790; died about 1879, in Philadelphia, unmarried.

[6] JONATHAN JONES, born May 29, 1792, in Philadelphia; died March 2, 1846, at Laguayra, Ven.; married Oct. 22, 1813, MARY TRANK, born Sept. 28, 1790, died Oct. 28, 1877. Issue: 7 children.

[8] JAMES, died in infancy.

Of these, the descent we are interested in is through Charles Wheeler, born March 15, 1788, in Montgomery County, Pa.; died June 16, 1858, in Philadelphia; married Sept. 14, 1822, Eliza Bowman, of Wilkesbarre, born Oct. 25, 1793, died May 23, 1848, at Philadelphia, daughter of Samuel Bowman and Eleanor Ledlie. Charles Wheeler graduated at Yale College 1808, studied law in the office of Charles Chauncey, Esq., admitted to the bar in 1811. He was held by his associates with the highest regard and confidence. "His learning in the law was remarkable for extent and accuracy." He was a communicant and vestryman of Christ Church, and was for twenty years a member of the standing committee of the diocese. His wife, Eliza Bowman, was the daughter of Capt. Samuel Bowman, who was an officer in the Revolutionary War. He came from Lexington, Mass., and was in that fight, the capture of Burgoyne, and many other engagements, and was detailed as a special guard over Major Andre, twenty-four hours before his execution, and accompanied him to the gallows. He died at Wilkesbarre, June 25, 1818. The children of Charles Wheeler and Eliza Bowman were:

[1] ELLEN BOWMAN, born Nov. 30, 1823, unmarried, residing in Philadelphia.

[2] ELIZABETH JONES, born Aug. 27, 1825, at Philadelphia; died Sept. 16, 1877, at Bryn Mawr, Pa.; unmarried.

THE MOSELEY FAMILY.

The Moseleys of Newburyport, Mass., are descended from John Maudesley or Moseley, who came from Lancastershire, England, in 1630, on the brig "Mary and John," Capt. Squibb, master, to America. Another account claims that he crossed the ocean on the brig "James" in 1635. The first is probably correct.

He settled in Mattapan, a part of Dorchester. The name was spelled Maudesley and in other forms, and was very ancient in England, occurring in the Domesday Book in 1080, and to be traced through the following generations. John Moseley died in Dorchester, Mass., Aug. 29, 1661, leaving three children. Thomas, the oldest, died Oct. 22, 1706, and was buried in the cemetery at Dorchester. He was the father of nine children. Of these Ebenezer[1] was born in Dorchester Sept. 4, 1673, and died there Sept. 19, 1740, and is said to have been one of the first in this part of the country to engage in the smelting and manufacture of iron. He had four children, and the second, Samuel, was born Aug. 15, 1708. Graduated from Harvard College in 1729. Was ordained May 15, 1734, pastor of the Second Church in Windham, Connecticut, "in the part set off in 1786 as the town of Hampton." Died July 26, 1791. He was an eminent Christian, able divine, and excellent scholar, given to hospitality and of much influence.

He was twice married and had twelve children. Ebenezer Moseley[2], the second son, was born Feb. 19, 1741. Graduated from Yale College in 1763. Having studied for the ministry, was licensed June 19, 1765. Married Sept. 14, 1773, Martha Strong, a sister of Caleb Strong, one of the early United States Senators from Massachusetts, and Governor of the State for eleven years. In connection with General Israel Putnam and Governor Trumbull, he did much in the struggle for independence in arousing the patriotic spirit. Although a clergyman, he entered the army, and was made captain in a company of Putnam's Regiment, and participated in the Battle of Bunker Hill. He then became colonel of the 5th Regiment and was active in the military service. After the war he was elected frequently to the Legislature and was prominent as a citizen. He died March 20, 1825, and was buried in the family lot at Hampton, Conn. His wife died Aug. 12, 1827, leaving four children.

The third child, Ebenezer Moseley[3], was born Nov. 21, 1781. Graduated from Yale College in 1802. Selecting the profession of the law, he settled in Newburyport, Mass., in 1805, and soon became very successful with an extensive practice. He was elected several times to the Massachusetts Legislature, and in 1813–14 served as colonel of the 6th Regiment, Massachusetts Militia. He occupied many positions of trust and responsibility; was one of the incorporators of the Institute for Savings in 1820 and of the Mutual Insurance Company. He was prominent in welcoming Lafayette to Newburyport in 1824. Died August 28, 1854. He married June 17, 1810, Mary Ann Oxnard, of Portland, Maine, of a distinguished family and connections. She was born Jan. 31, 1787, died March 9, 1840. Her father was a sympathizer with the Tory party in the Revolution, and in consequence was proscribed and his property confiscated.

Edward Strong Moseley was the eldest of the six children of Ebenezer Moseley[3], and entered Yale College in 1829, but resigned in the last term of the Junior year, in good standing. He commenced in the counting room of a shipping merchant in Boston, Mr. Benj. A. Gould, and then made three voyages as supercargo between 1834 and 1837. He married Feb. 5, 1839, Charlotte Augusta Chapman, daughter of the Rev. George Thomas Chapman, D.D., a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church, then at Newark, N. J. After the death of Mr. Gould, Mr. Moseley became an extensive ship-owner in Newburyport, a director in many corporations, trustee of a number of estates, and widely known in business circles. He was connected with many benevolent institutions and societies, was a member of the Massachusetts branch of the Society of the Cincinnati. In 1890 the honorary degree of M.A. was conferred on him by Yale College, as of the graduates of 1833. He was chosen a director in the Mechanics' Bank in 1847 and president from 1861 to his death, trustee of the Institute of Savings in 1853 and president from 1861 until he resigned in 1899. He did much by his influence and contributions for the Newburyport Public Library, in which he was very much interested. He gained a reputation for sound conservative judgment, integrity, and general character, and was certainly one of the leaders and of the most prominent of the citizens of Newburyport. His wife died Nov. 13, 1893, and he died at his home April 25, 1900. Three sons and two daughters survived them.

[1] Edward Augustus Moseley, of Washington, D. C., the secretary of the Interstate Commerce Commission. (Died since in Washington, D. C., April 18, 1911.) Married Catherine Montague Prescott, sister of Harriet Prescott Spofford, the writer; had issue.

[4] Frederick Strong Moseley, note broker of Boston; married (2) Helen Dalton Carpenter (vide supra).

THE FISHBOURNE BRANCH

DESCENT

From HANNAH CARPENTER, daughter of SAMUEL CARPENTER, 1ST, Through "The FISHBOURNE FAMILY."

(See No. 2, "Carpenter Line.")

1. HANNAH CARPENTER[2], daughter of SAMUEL CARPENTER and his wife HANNAH HARDIMAN, born in Philadelphia, March 3, 1686; died July 25, 1728; married Jan. 8, 1701, in Philadelphia, WILLIAM FISHBOURNE, born June 25, 1677, in Talbot County, Maryland, died May 27, 1742, in Philadelphia, son of Ralph Fishbourne and his wife Sarah Lewis, daughter of William Lewis. He settled in Philadelphia before 1700 and became a merchant. His store was located on King Street, now called Water Street, below the wharf and stores of SAMUEL CARPENTER, as shown in the painting of the city by Peter Cooper, dated about 1715, in the possession of the Philadelphia Library. He was justice of the peace for Philadelphia County, Dec. 15, 1719, June 14, 1722, May 12, 1725, Aug. 25, 1726, and Sept. 2, 1727; mayor of the city October, 1719, Oct. 4, 1720, Oct. 3, 1721; member of the Governor's Provincial Council 1723–1731; city treasurer 1725–1726.

He wrote a narrative of events concerning the city of Philadelphia, its progress, and the settlement of the colony, which he entitled "Some Few and Short Hints of the Settlement of the Province of Pennsylvania to the year 1739," a pamphlet now rare and much valued by collectors.

In 1723 WILLIAM FISHBOURNE, alderman, with George Fitzwater and John Warden, James Logan being Mayor, was requested by the Council to employ persons immediately to open High Street to the new ferry.

It is remarkable that HANNAH FISHBOURNE, the first wife of WILLIAM FISHBOURNE, died July 25, 1728, the next day after the death of her mother, HANNAH CARPENTER, the widow of SAMUEL CARPENTER, 1ST, who died July 24, 1728, eighty-three years of age.

WILLIAM FISHBOURNE married, secondly, JANE, daughter of Edward Roberts. He died May 27, 1742. After his death, his widow married, secondly, John Galloway, and had one daughter, Jane, who married Joseph Shippen in Christ Church Sept. 29, 1768, and had ten children.

ISSUE BY FIRST WIFE (SURNAMED FISHBOURNE):

2. ABRAHAM, born Oct. 18, 1702; died July 28, 1703.

12. JOHN, born Aug. 26, 1742; died May 17, 1743.

6. WILLIAM FISHBOURNE[3] (Hannah[2], Samuel[1]), born Dec. 2, 1715; died Sept. 6, 1777; married Nov. 8, 1749, MARY TALLMAN, said to have been the daughter of Benjamin Tallman, of Mansfield, Burlington Co., N. J., who was the son of John Tallman of Long Island, grandson of Peter Tallman of Rhode Island.

ISSUE (SURNAMED FISHBOURNE):

13. HANNAH.
14. ELIZABETH, born Sept. 1, 1752; married THOMAS WHARTON, JR. (2d wife), Dec. 7, 1774.
15. SARAH, born 1756; married Feb. 1, 1775, GEORGE EMLEN.
16. THOMAS.
17. BENJAMIN, born Jan. 4, 1759; married Dec. 10, 1783, ANNE WINST, of Georgia.
18. MARY, born Feb. 9, 1760; married Jan. 3, 1787, SAMUEL POWEL GRIFFITTS, M.D.
19. WILLIAM, born Sept., 1762; died Feb. 12, 1763.

8. HANNAH LLOYD[4] (Hannah Fishbourne[3], Hannah[2], Samuel[1]), born April 17, 1734; married Oct. 15, 1751, JAMES PEMBERTON, born Aug. 26, 1723, died Feb. 9, 1808, son of Israel Pemberton and his wife Rachel, daughter of Charles Read. She died April 17, 1764.

JAMES PEMBERTON, after he had received his education, visited Europe in 1748, and spent some time in travel. He became largely interested as a merchant in Philadelphia and engaged in an extensive business, and was influential among the Friends. When military measures were being considered in the Assembly in 1756, he and four others resigned their seats, as this was incompatible with their religious principles. He published in Philadelphia, 1757, a pamphlet defending the course and belief of "the people called Quakers." PEMBERTON was one of the founders of the Pennsylvania Hospital, one of the managers and the secretary of the Board from 1759 to 1772. He was one of those imprisoned in the Freemason's Lodge in Philadelphia and thence exiled to Virginia during the Revolution. His town house was at Second Street and Lodge Alley. He had a country seat called "The Plantations," which was purchased in 1758, formerly belonging to Chief-Justice John Kinsey, the present site of the U. S. Naval Asylum, on the east bank of the Schuylkill. He also inherited "The Evergreens," on the opposite side of the Gray's Ferry Road. He married three times: (2) March 22, 1768, Sarah, daughter of Daniel Smith, of Burlington, N. J., who died Nov. 28, 1770; (3) July 12, 1775, Mrs. Phœbe (Lewis) Morton, widow of Samuel Morton and daughter of Robert and Mary Lewis, born March 11, 1738, died Aug. 22, 1812.

The Pembertons were located at an early period as lords of the manor of Pemberton, in the parish of Wegan, Lancashire, England,—from at least the time of Richard I. The Pennsylvania line is traced to William Pemberton, of Wegan, Lancaster County, born about 1580. Ralph Pemberton, with his son Phineas Pemberton, the latter's wife, and three children, came to Pennsylvania on the ship "Submission," from Liverpool, 7th mo. 5, 1682. Arrived at Choptank, Maryland, 9th mo. 2, 1682, and then proceeded by land to Pennsylvania. Phineas was born Jan. 30, 1650, at Wegan, Lancaster Co., and died in Bucks County, Pa., March 1, 1702. He purchased a tract of 500 acres of land 11th mo. 17, 1683, located on the Delaware opposite Biles Island, and built a dwelling, calling it "Grove's Place." He took an active part in public affairs, member of the Provincial Council of Pennsylvania, member of the Assembly, and was interested in matters pertaining to Bucks County, where he resided.

He married Jan. 1, 1676, in Lancaster Co., England, Phœbe Harrison. She died 8th mo. 30, 1696. They had 9 children, of whom Israel was born Feb. 20, 1685, at Grove's Place; died Jan. 19, 1754; married April 12, 1710, Rachel Read, daughter of Charles Read, merchant of Philadelphia. She was born 1691, died Feb. 24, 1765. They had 10 children. The descent is through their son JAMES PEMBERTON (vide supra). Israel was of great prominence among the Friends; was nineteen years in the Assembly; in 1729 chosen elder. His mansion was the scene of great hospitality.

ISSUE (SURNAMED PEMBERTON):

20. PHINEAS, born Feb. 4, 1753; d. s. p. May 20, 1778.
21. RACHEL, born Feb. 4, 1754; married April 13, 1775, THOMAS PARKE, M.D.
22. HANNAH, born Oct. 27, 1755; d. s. p. Sept. 4, 1788; married Oct. 14, 1784, ROBERT MORTON, born Dec. 30, 1761, died Aug. 17, 1786, son of Samuel Morton by his wife Phœbe, daughter of Robert Lewis (her father's third wife).
23. SARAH, born Nov. 14, 1756; died July 24, 1819, unmarried.
24. JAMES, born Feb. 27, 1758; died June 17, 1758.
25. MARY, born March 12, 1759; died Oct. 11, 1765.

14. ELIZABETH FISHBOURNE[4] (William[3], Hannah[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), born Sept. 1, 1752; died in Philadelphia, April 24, 1826; married THOMAS WHARTON, JR. (second wife), Dec. 7, 1774.

His first wife was Susannah, daughter of Thomas Lloyd, grandson of the president of the Council, by whom he had 5 children. She was buried in Friends Burial Ground, Philadelphia, Oct. 24, 1772. THOMAS WHARTON, JR., died at Lancaster, Pa., May 23, 1778. He was born in 1735 and brought up in Chester. In 1755 he was in Philadelphia, apprenticed to Reese Meredith. He became a merchant, one of the principal importers in Philadelphia, and owned a country seat called "Twickenham" in Montgomery County. In 1760 his name appears on the list of the Schuylkill Fishing Club. He warmly supported the cause of the colonies, was one of the signers of the Non-importation Resolutions of 1765, together with others of his family. He was prominent in the call for convening the Assembly in extra session, and, when this was refused, in calling a Provincial Convention. Thomas Wharton, Sr., and THOMAS WHARTON, JR., were present as deputies representing Philadelphia. THOMAS WHARTON, JR., became a member of the Committee of Safety, and, July 24, 1776, president of the Council of Safety, which had temporary charge of the government. He was elected by the Assembly president of the Supreme Executive Council (inaugurated March 5, 1777), and served with great honor and credit in this responsible position. He had the powers of a governor and was known as GOVERNOR WHARTON. Probably worn out by exertion, care, and anxiety, he died rather suddenly at Lancaster, May 28, 1778, and was buried in the Lutheran Church at that place.*

ISSUE BY SECOND WIFE (SURNAMED WHARTON):

26. MARY, born Sept. 17, 1775; died June, 1799, unmarried, in Philadelphia.
27. THOMAS FISHBOURNE, born Nov. 10, 1776; died Jan., 1865, unmarried, in Philadelphia.
28. FISHBOURNE, born Aug. 10, 1778; married (1) May 10, 1804, SUSAN SHOEMAKER; married (2) Jan. 26, 1832, her sister, MARY ANN SHOEMAKER.

15. SARAH FISHBOURNE[4] (William[3], Hannah[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), born in 1756; married Feb. 1, 1775, GEORGE EMLEN, born April 25, 1741, died Nov. 23, 1812, son of George Emlen by his wife Ann Reckless. Mrs. George Emlen died Aug. 29, 1823, in Bellefonte, Pa.

GEORGE EMLEN, the first settler in America of this family, is said to have been born in the town of Shepton-Mallet, in Somersetshire, England. After the death of his parents he came to America, and was among the early settlers of Philadelphia. The first record concerning him is that of his marriage Nov. 12, 1685. He was on the first tax list for Philadelphia County in 1693, assessed at £150.

* See "The Wharton Family."

George Emlen married, first, Eleanor Allen, daughter of Nathaniel Allen. Three children were born, but all died young. He married, secondly, June 5, 1694, Hannah Garret, daughter of William and Anne (Kirk) Garret. They had 8 children, of whom George, 2d, the oldest child, born July 7, 1695, became a brewer, "a vocation followed by some of the leading men in the colony." Married April 24, 1717, Mary Heath, daughter of Robert and Susannah Heath. She died June, 1777; he died Oct., 1754. They had 3 children. George Emlen, 3d, the elder, born Aug. 21, 1718, succeeded his father in the brewing business, and had a town house on Chestnut Street. He erected a country seat in the White Marsh Valley above Chestnut Hill, known as the Emlen House, where Washington had his head-quarters at one time in 1777. He signed the Non-importation Resolutions. Married Dec. 25, 1740, Anne Reckless, daughter of Joseph and Mary Reckless, of Chesterfield, N. J. Died Jan. 3, 1776. His widow died Feb. 4, 1816. George, 4th, the eldest of their children, married Sarah Fishbourne.

Samuel Emlen, the son of Joshua Emlen and Deborah Powel, was one of the most distinguished leaders of the Society of Friends. He made tours as a minister, and for preaching and religious purposes, through Virginia, Ireland, and England, and with others made great efforts to bring about a cessation of hostilities during the Revolution.

George Emlen, 4th, who married Sarah Fishbourne, was well known as a merchant, with a town house and the country seat which had belonged to his father in the White Marsh Valley. He evidently lived in easy circumstances, and is mentioned as the owner of a "chariot" or "post chaise."

Sarah Fishbourne, his wife, is spoken of by "Sally Wister," in her journal: "I think Sally Emlen one of the most beautiful women I ever saw, agreeable, affable, sensible in the true sense of the words. Her conversation is so very lively and diverting, that even were her personal attractions less than they are, she could not fail of being beloved."—See article on Emlen Family by F. Willing Leach in the North American.

Sarah Fishbourne married George Emlen.

SAMUEL POWEL GRIFFITTS, M.D.
(1759–1826)
Distinguished Physician

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY

Dr. Samuel Powel Griffitts was related to a family which came to this country from the city of Cork, Ireland. Thomas Griffitts was the son of George and Frances Griffitts, of Cork, and is supposed to have been an uncle of William Griffitts, the father of Samuel Powel Griffitts. Having joined the Society of Friends, he emigrated to Jamaica, West Indies, and thence to Philadelphia about 1716. He became a merchant and engaged in the lumber business with Isaac Norris, whose daughter Mary he married in 1717. He was keeper of the Great Seal 1732–1734, mayor of Philadelphia 1729, 1733, 1737, judge of Supreme Court 1739 to 1743, when he resigned. Oct. 27, 1733, he became a member of the Governor's Council. He died in Philadelphia in 1746. The will was probated Jan. 16, 1746. He had 4 children, but they left no issue who survived, and his daughter Hannah died Aug. 24, 1817, his sole heiress, devising her estate to her kinsmen Joseph Parker Norris and Dr. Samuel Powel Griffitts.

Dr. Samuel Powel Griffitts was the youngest son of William Griffitts, born 1724, in Wales, died Aug. 25, 1762, in Philadelphia. He married April 16, 1752, in Philadelphia, Abigail, daughter of Samuel Powel, born 1735, died Nov. 16, 1797.

Dr. Samuel Powel Griffitts graduated A.B. 1780, M.D. Univ. of Pa. 1781; studied medicine in Paris, London, and Edinburgh; member of the American Philosophical Society 1785; professor of materia medica at the University of Pennsylvania 1791–1796; one of the founders of the College of Physicians, Philadelphia, vice-president 1818.

29. ANNE EMLEN[5] (Sarah Fishbourne Emlen[4], William[3], Hannah[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), born July 6, 1777; died Feb. 4, 1851; married at Powelton, Aug. 29, 1801, CHARLES WILLING HARE, born Westover, Va., April 23, 1778, died in Philadelphia April 15, 1827, son of Robert Hare by his wife Margaret, daughter of Charles Willing.

He was admitted to the bar in Philadelphia Dec. 7, 1799, and became eminent in the legal profession; elected professor of law at the University of Pennsylvania in 1817; elected a member of the American Philosophical Society July 21, 1815.

Robert Hare arrived in Philadelphia from England June 4, 1773. He was born Jan. 28, 1752, at Woolwich, in the County of Kent. His father was Richard Hare, of Limehouse, London, who was born in 1700, and was of the ancient family of Hares of Stow Bardolph, in the County of Norfolk, England. Their coat of arms were: Arms—gules, two bars and a chief indented or; crest, a demi-lion rampant, or holding a cross crosslet fitchée gules. Richard Hare was engaged in the business of brewing porter, and was also a justice of the peace for Middlesex, a position of no small distinction in England. Robert Hare, the founder of the family in America, in his will, proved at Philadelphia in 1811, makes mention of surviving brothers and sisters in England, and leaves them each 5 guineas to purchase mourning rings, and leaves to his eldest sister Martha "my cornelian seal set in gold." Robert Hare possessed a liberal education and brought with him £1500 which his father had given him. Young Hare embarked as a brewer about 1774, and located at the corner of Callowhill and New Market Streets, the latter street being midway between Front and Second. For years he was in partnership with Godfrey Twells, under the name of Hare & Twells. Hare was taken up in the best society. He was one of the founders of the City Troop. At 23 he married Nov. 16, 1775, Margaret Willing, daughter of Charles Willing. She brought with her a dowry of $9000. During the Revolution Hare's sympathies were with the colonists, and when Howe occupied Philadelphia in the winter of 1778, the Hares withdrew to Westover, Va., the historic home of Colonel Wm. Byrd, his brother-in-law, where his eldest child, CHARLES WILLING HARE, was born April 23, 1778.

A younger son, Prof. Robert Hare, born Jan. 17, 1781, became a celebrated chemist and physician. In 1818 he was called to the chair of chemistry in the Medical Department, University of Pennsylvania, and remained there until 1847. He made many discoveries and inventions, among others the compound or oxyhydrogen blowpipe, and received from the American Academy of Arts and Sciences the Rumford medal. Dr. Hare contributed papers on various subjects to the Transactions of the American Philosophical Society and to scientific literature. Died May 15, 1858. He had two sons, Judge John Innes Clark Hare and John Powel Hare.*

33. HANNAH EMLEN[5] (Sarah Fishbourne Emlen[4], William[3], Hannah[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), born Feb. 6, 1790; died Nov. 11, 1869; married April 6, 1820, JOSEPH MICKLE FOX, born Oct. 25, 1790, died Feb. 12, 1848, son of Samuel Mickle Fox by his wife Sarah Pleasants.

JOSEPH M. FOX studied law and was admitted to the Philadelphia bar Sept. 7, 1812. He was practising his profession in Bellefonte, Centre County, Pa., when married, but shortly after removed to Meadville, Pa. He purchased from the trustees under his father's will twelve tracts comprising thirteen thousand acres in the western part of the State. In 1827 he with his wife and son settled on one of these tracts, at the junction of the Allegheny and Clarion Rivers, where was established a home about which the town of Foxburg afterwards grew. JOSEPH M. FOX was elected State senator in 1829.

James Fox, the founder of the family in America, belonged to a company of emigrants from Plymouth, Devonshire, Eng., known as "the Plymouth Friends." Among them was Francis Rawle, his son of the same name and six servants, James Fox, his family and eight servants; the latter included John Richard and Justinian Fox, who had no doubt bound themselves to serve for a period of time to pay the expenses of the passage. They embarked on the ship "Desire," and arrived at Philadelphia June 23, 1686. The Foxes belonged to St. Germains, Cornwall, and Rawle was of an ancient family long seated in the same county at St. Juliot. On March 13, 1685, before leaving England, Fox and Rawle had for themselves and their associates purchased 5000 acres of land of Wm Penn. It was the purpose of these leaders to have the land together, and organize an industrial settlement for woollen manufacture. The 5000 acres, with 327 acres added, were laid out at what is now known as Plymouth Township, Montgomery Co., Pa. With these associates Fox and Rawle took up their residence on the land. A Friends meeting was established at the home of James Fox, which has continued to the present day, and is known as "Plymouth Meeting." The colony was too young for a woollen industry, and the scheme was abandoned. Fox and Rawle removed to Philadelphia.

The parents of James Fox were Francis Fox and his wife Dorothy Kekewich, members of the Society of Friends and living at St. Germains, Cornwall. James Fox married Elizabeth Record and settled at Plymouth, Devonshire, where he was engaged in manufacturing cloth. He was a member of the Pennsylvania Assembly 1688, 1693, 1699, and died in Philadelphia Sept. 19, 1699.

Justinian Fox, one of the Plymouth Friends, married Elizabeth, daughter of Joseph and Mary Yard, and had seven children. Of these Joseph Fox became a very prominent and influential man in Philadelphia. He died Dec. 10, 1779, aged 70 years. He married Sept. 25, 1746, Elizabeth Mickle, born 1729, died Jan. 1, 1805, daughter of Samuel and Thomazine (Marshall) Mickle. Samuel Mickle was a merchant of good standing in the city, member of Common Council from 1732 until his death in 1765, was the son of Archibald Mickle, who came to Philadelphia in 1683 from near Lisburn, County Antrim, Ireland. Joseph Fox served a long time as a representative in the Assembly,—from 1753 to October, 1772, continuously. In 1764, 1765, and again in 1769, he was chosen speaker, succeeding Isaac Norris, 2d, in 1764, and held many important positions, exercising great influence. Was one of those who signed the Non-importation Resolutions and was very active in the patriot cause during the Revolution. He was popular socially, and was a member of the Fort St. Davids Fishing Company, afterward merged into the State in Schuylkill.

Joseph and Elizabeth (Mickle) Fox had 13 children, many of whom died young. Thomazine Mickle Fox, born June 15, 1748, married George Roberts. George Fox, born Nov. 27, 1759, married (1) Mary Pemberton, (2) Mary Dickinson. Samuel Mickle Fox, born Oct. 4, 1763, married Sarah Pleasants. Elizabeth Hill Fox, born Oct. 14, 1771, married Joseph Parker Norris.

The descent which concerns us is through Samuel Mickle Fox, born Oct. 4, 1763, died April 30, 1808, married Nov. 27, 1788, Sarah Pleasants, daughter of Samuel and Mary (Pemberton) Pleasants. He was one of the incorporators of the Bank of Pennsylvania in 1793, and in 1796 he became its president, which office he held until his death. He purchased land in the western section of the State, part of which afterwards became the centre of the petroleum industry. JOSEPH MICKLE FOX, son of Samuel Mickle Fox and Sarah Pleasants, married HANNAH EMLEN, and had:*

Graduated at Princeton College 1805, read law in the office of William Rawle, admitted to the Philadelphia bar 1811, and was a successful and prominent lawyer. Member of the Second Troop Philadelphia City Cavalry Oct. 17, 1808, honorary member March 22, 1813. Member of the lower house, Pennsylvania Legislature, 1815, and served two or more terms. Elected many years to both branches of the City Councils, president of Select Council 1826 to 1832. Mayor of Philadelphia 1841, 1843.

John Scott, who came to New York about 1700, was the first of the family to settle in this country. He was a Scotchman and the third son of Sir John Scott, first baronet of Ancrum. The Scotts of Ancrum were descendants of the Scotts of Balweery, traceable to Sir Michael Scott, of the County of Fife, in the reign of King William, 1165–1214.†

For Sir John Scott, first baronet of Ancrum, of County Roxburgh: Arms—as above, a malet az. for diff.; crest, a lion's head erased gu. Motto—Tace aut face.

The first record concerning John Scott is in the office of the Secretary of State of New York at Albany. It shows that "he was received and allowed a freeman and citizen" of New York, March 2, 1702. He was commissioned March 1, 1710, by Gov. Robert Hunter, lieutenant of Captain Weeme's Company of Fusileers. Lieutenant Scott was commander of Fort Hunter, erected in 1711, on the Mohawk River. He became a large land-owner in this region, some of it granted for military services and other tracts purchased from the Indians. He married Magdalena Vincent, daughter of John Vincent and granddaughter of Adrian Vincent, a native of Holland, coming to New Amsterdam as early as July 16, 1645. Scott died June, 1725. The Philadelphia Scotts are descended from his oldest son, John Scott, Jr. John Scott, Jr., born 1702, married Marian Morin, youngest daughter of Petrus Morin, from, originally, La Rochelle, France, of Huguenot stock. John and Marian had a son, John Morin Scott[1], born in New York 1730. Graduate of Yale College 1746, was admitted to the New York bar Jan. 23, 1752, and became one of the successful lawyers of New York. He took an active part in the colonial cause during the Revolution, was commissioned brigadier-general of the New York militia June 9, 1776, and participated in the actions about New York, including the battle of Long Island. He afterwards filled many important positions, including secretary of state for New York. Married Helena Rutgers, daughter of Petrus and Helena (née Hoogland) Rutgers, descendant of Rutgers Jacobson Van Schoen du Wordt, who sailed from the Texel Oct. 1, 1636, for New Netherland, and also of Joris Jansen de Rapalje and his wife Catalina Trico, who settled at Fort Orange (now Albany) in 1623.

John Morin Scott[1] died Sept. 14, 1784. Lewis Allaire Scott, the only son of General John Morin Scott, born Feb. 11, 1759, married Jan. 18, 1775, in Philadelphia, Julianna Sitgreaves, daughter of William and Susannah Sitgreaves. He died March 17, 1798. Upon the death of her husband the widow removed to her native city, Philadelphia. Their only son was JOHN MORIN SCOTT, 2D, who married MARY EMLEN.*

62. MARGARETTA HARE[6] (Anne Emlen Hare[5], Sarah Fishbourne Emlen[4], William Fishbourne[3], Hannah[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), born Nov. 15, 1810; died March 25, 1849; married April 28, 1831, ISRAEL PEMBERTON HUTCHINSON, born May 10, 1788, died May 9, 1866.

The ancestor of the Hutchinson family in this part of the country was John Hutchinson, a member of the Society of Friends, who came to the province from England prior to 1702 and settled in Falls Township, Bucks County. The earliest mention of him is Dec. 17, 1702, when he signs as a witness the marriage certificate of Joseph Kirkbride, Jr., and Sarah Stacy. He married May 1, 1706, Phœbe Kirkbride, born in Bucks County Jan. 7, 1686–7. Her father was an influential man, and one of the wealthiest denizens of Bucks County. His landed possessions at his death amounted to 13,000 acres. Phœbe Hutchinson died about 1724. John Hutchinson married, secondly, May 24, 1726, Sarah Burgess, daughter of Samuel Burgess. His death occurred in 1745. John Hutchinson was the father of 11 children, 6 by the first wife and 5 by the second.

The Hutchinsons of Philadelphia are descended from Randall Hutchinson, the fifth child of John Hutchinson. He was born Oct. 1, 1720, and lived on a plantation at Lower Makefield Township, Bucks County. Married, first, Elizabeth Harvey, daughter of Matthias Harvey, Jr., a landed proprietor of Bucks County; married, secondly, about 1749, Catherine Rickey, born Oct. 20, 1720. She survived her husband, who died in 1769. The first wife had three children, the second wife four. Three of these, Matthias, James, and Mahlon, left issue.

James, the eldest son of the second wife, born in 1752, was the "first to identify himself with Philadelphia," and the descent through him is of interest to us in this connection. He studied medicine, and in the Revolutionary War was appointed surgeon's mate July 31, 1778, promoted surgeon Feb. 1, 1779, and surgeon-general of Pennsylvania. He made a distinguished record as a physician, and in addition took great interest in measures proposed for the good of the country, including some concerning the currency. In 1779 he became a trustee of the University of Pennsylvania, but resigned the office in two years. April 16, 1779, he was elected a member of the American Philosophical Society and was its secretary until his death. His residence was on Second Street between Walnut and Spruce. Washington notes in his diary: "Sept. 6, 1787, dined at Dr. Hutchinson's." In 1781 he purchased the house and lands on the Schuylkill formerly belonging to Joseph Galloway. In 1791 Dr. Hutchinson was made professor of chemistry in the University of Pennsylvania. He died Sept. 5, 1793, a victim to the epidemic of yellow fever which ravaged Philadelphia at that time. He married, first, Feb. 18, 1779, Lydia Biddle, daughter of John and Sarah (née Owen) Biddle, sister of Colonel Clement Biddle, of the Revolution. She died Sept. 4, 1785. Married, secondly, Dec. 2, 1786, Sidney Evans Howell, daughter of Joseph and Sidney (née Evans) Howell, who survived her husband many years, and died in Philadelphia Aug. 26, 1838. The first wife had a son, named James Hutchinson, who graduated A.B. Univ. of Penna. 1798, and in medicine about 1803. Served for a time in the Pennsylvania Hospital. He was unmarried. We do not find the record of his birth and death. The second wife had two sons, Randall and Israel Pemberton, and both married and had issue. Randall Hutchinson had two children who died in infancy,—one, James Pemberton Hutchinson, born Sept. 16, 1816, died Feb. 11, 1819, the other, Catherine Helen Hutchinson, born Oct. 23, 1818, died Aug. 15, 1820, and a third child, named Sydney, who died unmarried.

ISRAEL PEMBERTON HUTCHINSON was born May 10, 1788. In 1816 he was appointed U. S. consul to Lisbon, Portugal, which office he held for many years. He resided at Cintra, near Lisbon, and was engaged also in mercantile pursuits. Having accumulated a large fortune, he returned to Philadelphia and resided there until his death. He was director of the Farmer and Mechanic's Bank and of the Pennsylvania Company for the Insurance on Lives and Granting Annuities.*

He married MARGARETTA HARE and had—

The Starrs are descended from Captain Starr, of an English family, who served as captain of infantry with Cromwell in the civil war against Charles I. When peace was established, he settled in the Province of Ulster, Ireland. Captain Starr had one son, John, who married and had 9 children. Of these, 5 sons came to America about 1712 and settled in Pennsylvania, belonging to the Society of Friends. Isaac Starr, the father of James (fourth generation from Isaac, the youngest of the 5 brothers), was born near Wilmington, Delaware. COLONEL JAMES STARR graduated A.B. Harvard College 1857, A.M. 1860. Read law in the office of Peter McCall. Graduated LL.B. Law Department Univ. of Penna. June, 1860, and in October was admitted to the bar in Philadelphia. In the Civil War he enlisted April 25, 1861, in the 17th Pennsylvania Volunteers for three months' service, and served under General Patterson at Harper's Ferry, Va. Commissioned captain 6th Pa. Cavalry, known as Rush's Lancers, Aug. 22, 1861, participating in the campaigns of the Army of the Potomac. Promoted major March, 1864, and commanded his regiment frequently. May 7, 1864, was severely wounded at Todd's Tavern, Va., in the advance made after the Battle of the Wilderness. He was commended by Sheridan and Merritt, and won distinction as a soldier, being brevetted lieutenant-colonel and colonel for gallant and meritorious conduct. Mustered out of service honorably Oct. 14, 1864. He returned to Philadelphia and resumed the practice of law, in which he continued until his death, Sept. 1, 1881, serving for a short period as assistant attorney-general of the State at Harrisburg. He was much admired for his high character as a gentleman, and his courage and ability as a soldier.

THE WHARTON BRANCH

DESCENT THROUGH THE WHARTON FAMILY

From HANNAH CARPENTER, daughter of JOHN CARPENTER

(See No. 14, Carpenter Line.)

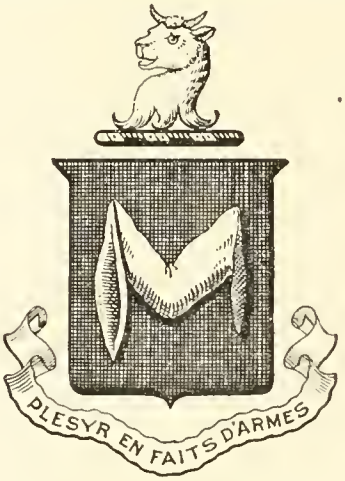
1. HANNAH, daughter of JOHN CARPENTER by his wife ANN HOSKINS, granddaughter of SAMUEL CARPENTER, THE FIRST, born Nov. 23, 1711, died July 14, 1751, married March 5, 1729, in Philadelphia, JOSEPH WHARTON, born in Philadelphia Aug. 4, 1707, died in Philadelphia July 27, 1776.



THE WHARTON ARMS, WESTMORELAND CO., ENGLAND

The father of JOSEPH WHARTON was Thomas Wharton, born Oct. 16, 1664, died July 13, 1718. Thomas Wharton was the son of Richard Wharton of Kellorth, descended from an ancient family located in the parish of Orton, Westmorlandshire, England, who came to this country, arriving at Philadelphia about 1683. He married Jan. 20, 1688, Rachel Thomas, born Sept., 1664, in Monmouthshire, Wales, died 1747.

JOSEPH WHARTON was the youngest of eight children. He was a successful merchant, acquired a considerable fortune, retired from active business, and lived for years in his country mansion called "Walnut Grove," near the Delaware River below the city, located about the present site of Fifth Street and Washington Avenue. Here was the scene of the famous "Meschianza," a grand fête given by the British officers in honor of their general Sir William Howe. This occurred in May, 1778, during the Revolution, and soon after the death of JOSEPH WHARTON, who died July 27, 1776. The house was removed in 1862. The site is now occupied by "the Wharton School-house."

JOSEPH WHARTON married, secondly, June 7, 1752, Hannah, widow of John Ogden, and daughter of Robert Owens by his wife Susanna Hudson, and had by the second wife seven children, who do not belong to this descent.

The coat of arms of the Wharton family is· Arms—sable, a maunch argent; crest, a bull's head erased argent, armed or.

12. BENJAMIN, born Feb. 12, 1749; died Sept. 8, 1754.

2. THOMAS WHARTON[4] (Hannah Wharton[3], John[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), born Jan. 15, 1730; died near Philadelphia in the winter of 1782. Married Nov. 16, 1752, at Philadelphia, RACHEL MEDCALF, born Nov. 27, 1729, at Gloucester, N. J., daughter of Jacob Medcalf by his wife Hannah Hudson.

He was a successful merchant of large means and influence. He was at first very much opposed to the oppressive measures of the British government, and was a signer of the Non-importation Resolutions of 1765. He was opposed still more to the resort to arms, and soon became an object of suspicion. In August, 1777, he was arrested with several other Friends, who, on their refusal to sign a parole, were exiled to Virginia. He was allowed to return to Philadelphia in April, 1778, but was, however, proscribed for his opposition to the Revolution, and "lost his estate under the Confiscation Act of Pennsylvania." *

Several letters written by PRESTON CARPENTER to his cousin THOMAS WHARTON before the Revolution, from Salem, N. J., to Philadelphia, on business affairs, are in the papers of the Carpenter family. PRESTON CARPENTER was the son of SAMUEL CARPENTER, 2D.

21. WILLIAM HUDSON, born June 12, 1769; bu. Sept. 13, 1781.

3. SAMUEL WHARTON[4] (Hannah Wharton[3], John[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), born May 3, 1732; married SARAH LEWIS, daughter of Stephen Lewis by his wife Rebecca Hussey.

"He was one of the signers of the Non-importation Resolutions of 1765, a member of the City Councils of Philadelphia, of the Committee of Safety of the Revolution, and of the Colonial and State Legislatures." He was a merchant and partner in the firm of "Baynton, Wharton and Morgan." At one time the Indians destroyed nearly £40,000 worth of goods belonging to them, and as an indemnification the chiefs of the Six Nations agreed to make over a large tract of land. This land bordered on the Ohio River above the Little Kanawha, included now in West Virginia. MR. WHARTON was sent to England to have this confirmed, and for a time everything seemed favorable, and a day was appointed to attend at court and have the grant confirmed. In the interim some correspondence of MR. WHARTON with Franklin had been discovered, and he was forced to flee for his life to France, where he joined Franklin.

He returned to Philadelphia in 1780; Feb. 9, 1781, he took the oath of allegiance to the State, member of the Continental Congress 1782–3. In 1784 he was appointed a justice of the peace for the District of Southwark, having retired to a country seat located in that suburb. His will was admitted to probate March 26, 1800.*

26. MARTHA, married SAMUEL B. SHAW.
27. RACHEL, died, unmarried.

4. JOSEPH WHARTON, JR.[4] (Hannah Wharton[3], John[2], Samuel Carpenter[1]), born March 21, 1733; married June 18, 1760, SARAH TALLMAN, daughter of Job and Sarah Tallman, of Burlington, N. J., born Aug. 25, 1740, died before her husband.

He was at first successful in business, but losses during the time of the Revolution and a series of reverses caused him to retire. He died Dec. 25, 1816. It is said that he went to England about 1775, and while there wrote a number of letters on the attitude of Great Britain to the Colonies, and these, published in some papers, attracted so much attention that WHARTON was forced to leave the country hurriedly to insure his safety.

THE MEREDITH BRANCH

DESCENT

From Martha Carpenter, daughter of John Carpenter, son of Samuel Carpenter, 1st, Through "The Meredith Family."

(See No. 15, "Carpenter Line.")

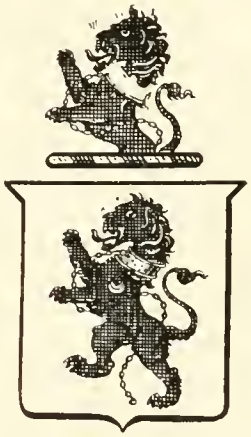
1. Martha Carpenter, daughter of John Carpenter and Anne Hoskins his wife, married May 23, 1738, Reese Meredith, son of Reese Meredith, of Landegley, Radnorshire, Wales, died Nov. 17, 1778. His wife died Sept. 26, 1769.



THE MEREDITH ARMS, RADNOR, WALES

Reese Meredith was a native of Landegley, Radnorshire, born about 1705. His father, Reese Meredith, was a woollen merchant, grandson of Richard Meredith, justice of the peace and high sheriff of Radnorshire, of an ancient line in that section of Wales. After the death of his father in 1729, Reese Meredith came to Philadelphia (in February, 1730), and eventually established an extensive mercantile business, which was successful and lucrative. Later he took into partnership his son Samuel and son-in-law George Clymer, the firm being known as "Meredith & Sons." Reese Meredith became an influential and much-esteemed citizen and a prominent member of the "Society of Friends."

His town residence was located on the corner of Second and Walnut Streets, and he owned a country seat, called "Green Hills," of many acres on the west bank of the Schuylkill. In 1755 he made the acquaintance of George Washington, when the latter was in Philadelphia on business concerning the Indians, as an officer in the service of the Colony of Virginia. REESE MEREDITH invited Washington to dine with him, and formed a friendship which lasted until MEREDITH's death, and was inherited to a considerable extent by his son Samuel.

In 1572, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, a coat of arms was confirmed to Edward Meredith, son of Griffith Meredith, and grandson of Thomas Meredith, of Radnorshire, as having been the arms of the senior line for many generations.

THE MEREDITH ARMS.

Arms: argent, a lion rampant sable, gorged with a plain collar and chain or (charged in the shoulder with a crescent for the junior line); crest, a demi-lion sable, gorged with a ducal coronet, with chain attached and reflexed over back, or.

2. SAMUEL, born 1741; died Feb. 10, 1817; married May 19, 1772, MARGARET CADWALADER.
3. ANNE; died in 1787; married in 1770, HENRY HILL.
4. ELIZABETH; died Feb. 24, 1815; married March 18, 1765, GEORGE CLYMER.

2. SAMUEL MEREDITH[4] (Reese[3], John Carpenter[2], Samuel[1]), born 1741; died Feb. 10, 1817; married May 19, 1772, MARGARET CADWALADER, born 1748, died at "Belmont," Sept. 20, 1820, daughter of the Counc'llor Dr. Thomas Cadwalader by his wife Hannah, daughter of Thomas Lambert, of New Jersey.

SAMUEL MEREDITH was educated at Dr. Allison's Academy and became a partner in business with his father and brother-in-law George Clymer. He signed the non-importation resolutions Oct. 25, 1765, and served as a major in the 3d Battalion of Associators in 1775 under Colonel John Cadwalader. In December, 1776, he was made lieutenant-colonel, and participated in the battle of Princeton, and, as brigadier-general in the Pennsylvania militia, was present at the battles of Brandywine and Germantown. He resigned in August, 1778, and was subsequently member of the Assembly for several years and member of the Congress from 1786 to 1788. At the organization of the general government, Washington appointed him the first Treasurer of the United States. He held the office for more than twelve years. The following is a copy of a letter from Alexander Hamilton, Secretary of the Treasury, congratulating SAMUEL MEREDITH on his appointment.

Treasurer's office,
New York, Sept. 13, 1789.

Dear Sir:

Permit me to congratulate you, on your appointment as Treasurer of the United States, and to assure you of the pleasure I feel in anticipating your co-operation with me in a station, in which a character like yours is truly valuable.

With Sincere Esteem I am Sir
Your obdt. Servant,
ALEXANDER HAMILTON,
Secretary of the Treasury.

To SAMUEL MEREDITH
Treasurer of the United States

General Meredith resided in a large mansion on the north side of Chestnut Street above Fifth Street, in Philadelphia, and had the country place called "Green Hills" in Philadelphia County, which he inherited from his father, and "Otter Hall," near Trenton, N. J. He retired about 1801, to live at "Belmont," near Pleasant Mount, Wayne County, Penna., where for many years his friends were entertained with great hospitality. He owned 75,000 acres in Wayne County and 67,000 acres in Lackawanna and Wyoming, and with George Clymer held altogether nearly a million acres in Pennsylvania, New York, West Virginia, and Kentucky. He died at "Belmont," Feb. 10, 1817. A monument has been erected to his memory by the State of Pennsylvania at Pleasant Mount, Pa.

General Meredith and his wife are buried near the old manor house at "Belmont," which was burned down about ten years ago. No portrait of him is known to be in existence.

ISSUE of Samuel and Margaret Meredith:

5. Martha, born 1773; married June 25, 1796, John Read.
6. Elizabeth, born 1775; died Nov. 18, 1826, unmarried.
7. Anne, born Sept. 3, 1776; married, 1797, Samuel Dickinson.
8. Thomas[1], born 1778; died young.
9. Thomas[2], born 1779; married, 1822, Sarah Gibson.
10. Margaret, born 1781; died March 29, 1824, unmarried.
11. Maria, born 1783; died Sept. 25, 1854, near Carbondale, Pa., unmarried.

3. Anne Meredith[4] (Reese[3], John Carpenter[2], Samuel[1]), married in 1770, Henry Hill, born Sept. 18, 1732, died Sept. 15, 1798, son of Dr. Richard Hill and his wife Deborah Moore.

Dr. Richard Hill was the nephew of the Richard Hill who married Hannah Lloyd, and was born at South River, Maryland, Sept. 18, 1698, practised medicine and was engaged in business there. Becoming involved he removed in 1740 to Funchal in the Island of Madeira, and accumulated a fortune in an extensive wine trade. He returned to America and died in Philadelphia, Jan. 29, 1762. Henry Hill was educated in Scotland and afterwards became a partner with his father in Madeira. He removed to Philadelphia about 1763, and represented the family firms of Hill, Bisset & Co. and Hill, Lamar and Bisset, of Madeira. He lived in easy circumstances, and built for his town residence the large house on Fourth Street between Union Street and Cypress Alley. After his death it was purchased by Dr. Philip Syng Physick, since occupied by the doctor and his descendants. His country place, called "Wilton," was situated below Philadelphia, in what is now known as "the Neck." Another country seat was at Roxboro. Hill actively supported the Colonial cause during the Revolution, was one of the original members of the City Troop, and was made colonel of the 4th Pennsylvania Regiment in Nov., 1776. He served several years in the Assembly, and died Sept. 15, 1798, of yellow fever. His wife died in 1787.

Note.—See "Hill Family," by John Jay Smith.

ISSUE (surnamed Hill):

12. Hannah, died young.

4. Elizabeth Meredith[4] (Reese[3], John Carpenter[2], Samuel[1]), died Feb. 24, 1815; married March 18, 1765, George Clymer, born in Philadelphia, June 10, 1739, died Jan. 23, 1813, son of Christopher Clymer and his wife Deborah Fitzwater.

Richard Clymer, the grandfather of George Clymer, was a shipping merchant. His children were Christopher and William. Christopher married Deborah, daughter of George Fitzwater, in 1734, and had one child, GEORGE CLYMER. George Fitzwater was a merchant, son of Thomas Fitzwater, who married Elizabeth Palmer in 1684. His son George married Mary, daughter of Abraham Hardiman, brother of Hannah Carpenter. Hannah, another daughter, married Gilbert Falconer, and Deborah married George Claypole.

The Carpenters signed the marriage certificates of the three daughters of Abraham Hardiman as near relatives. The nearest of kin who signed the marriage certificate of George and Mary Fitzwater were Thomas Fitzwater, his brother, John Palmer, his half-brother, Samuel and Hannah Carpenter, Samuel and John, their sons, Hannah, their daughter, and her husband William Fishbourne, Hannah Hardiman, the bride's sister, Thomas Mitchell, Thomas Iredell and Rebecca his wife, Sarah Story, Catherine Jones, and Susanna Woodworth. Thomas Mitchell married Sarah, daughter of John and Sarah Denny. Samuel Carpenter and Hannah his wife sign the marriage certificate as "nearest relatives after the bride's mother."

Thomas Iredell emigrated from England to Philadelphia in 1703. His wife was Rebecca Williams. They were married March 9, 1705. The Hardimans and Hannah Carpenter and her children sign as near relatives.

The children of George Fitzwater and Mary Hardiman his wife were: [1] Hannah, married William Coleman; [2] Deborah, married Christopher Clymer; [3] Elizabeth, married James House; [4] Martha, married James Morris; [5] Mary, married Francis Richardson; [6] Sarah, married Isaac Griffith. A seventh daughter married —— Hogg. William Coleman was the son of William Coleman, a merchant and an intimate friend of Dr. Benjamin Franklin. He married Hannah Fitzwater in 1737 and died in 1769. He had no children, but brought up his nephew GEORGE CLYMER and left him a large portion of his property.

George Fitzwater, a man of large wealth, died in 1750.

GEORGE CLYMER lost both his parents before he was a year old, and was taken to live with his Uncle and Aunt Coleman, June 1, 1740. As has been shown, his wife was a distant cousin through the Hardimans. He was a successful merchant, in partnership with his father-in-law Reese Meredith and brother-in-law in the firm of "Meredith and Sons." His town residence stood on Chestnut Street near Seventh.

Oct. 25, 1765, CLYMER and Samuel Meredith attended the great meeting at the State House and signed the "non-importation" resolutions. CLYMER was a member of the Common Council of Philadelphia in 1770 and retired in 1775, alderman April 27, 1772. Governor Penn appointed him "justice of the peace." He was a member of the committee, John Dickinson, chairman, who issued the call for the first Continental Congress, which met at "Carpenter's Hall," Sept. 5, 1774. GEORGE CLYMER accepted a captaincy in the 3d Battalion of Associators, "the silk stockings," under Col. John Cadwalader, in which his brother-in-law, Samuel Meredith, was major and subsequently lieutenant-colonel. In this command he saw some service. July 10, 1776, he was a delegate to the Continental Congress and signed the Declaration of Independence. In 1777 he was in the Assembly and March 12, 1777, was elected to Congress. In 1780 he with Robert Morris, John Nixon, and others organized the Bank of Pennsylvania, for the purpose of furnishing the army with supplies. He retired from Congress Nov., 1782, having rendered much valuable service. Served in the Pennsylvania Assembly 1785–86–87 and 1788. Was the first president of the Academy of Fine Arts. He was elected again to Congress Oct., 1788, but soon after withdrew entirely from public life. He died at the residence of his son Henry Clymer near Morrisville, Bucks Co., Penna., Jan. 23, 1813, 74 years of age, and was buried in the Friends Burial Ground, corner of Hanover and Montgomery Streets, Trenton, N. J.

GEORGE CLYMER married ELIZABETH MEREDITH.

George Ross.

THE READ ARMS

JOHN READ graduated A.B. Princeton College 1787; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1791. In 1797 he was appointed, by President Adams, U. S. agent for British claims; member of City Councils of Philadelphia 1809–15, Assembly of Pennsylvania 1815–1817, Senate of Pennsylvania 1817; president of the Bank of Philadelphia from 1819 to 1841, when he removed to Trenton, N. J. He was senior warden of Christ Church, Philadelphia, 1801–1817, and of St. James' 1817–1841. Died in Trenton, N. J., aged 85 years.

The first ancestor of the Read family in this country was Colonel John Read, born in Dublin in 1688. His father was an English gentleman of large means, the fifth in descent from Thomas Read, lord of the manors of Barton Court and Beedon in Berkshire and high sheriff of Berks in 1581, descended from Edward Rede, lord of the manor of Beedon and high sheriff of Berks in 1439, also in 1451. For services to the Crown in the Civil War, Sir Compton Read was created a baronet by Charles II. A younger son went to Dublin during these troubles, and from him descended the American line.

GEORGE READ, OF DELAWARE
(1733–1798)
Signer of the Declaration of Independence

N.Y. PUBLIC LIBRARY

John Read lost his fiancée by sudden death, and, seeking an entire change, crossed the ocean to Maryland. He purchased lands in that section and likewise in Delaware, erected a fine mansion in Cecil County, Maryland, and assisted in the founding of Charlestown at the head of Chesapeake Bay. He married Mary Howell in 1711 and had 3 sons and 1 daughter. The daughter, Mary, married Gunning Bedford, and the sons, George, Thomas, and James, all became men of eminence.

Commodore Thomas Read was a distinguished naval officer in the Revolution, and Colonel James Read was promoted from first lieutenant to colonel for gallant services at the battles of Trenton, Princeton, Brandywine, and Germantown, and afterwards rendered valuable service in the navy.

The line that concerns us is through the senior son, George Read, born Sept. 17, 1733. In 1754 he removed to Newcastle, Del., and on Jan. 11, 1763, married Gertrude, daughter of the Rev. George Ross, who emigrated from Rosshire in Scotland in 1705. George Read was a member of the first Congress which met in Philadelphia in 1774. He signed the Declaration of Independence when there was no hope of a reconciliation with England, and was the author of the first Constitution of Delaware in 1776. Had been a member of the Assembly 12 years and was vice-president of the State. After the adoption of the Constitution he was elected U. S. Senator from Delaware, and re-elected thereto. Resigned in 1792 and accepted the office of Chief Justice of Delaware, which he held until his death, Sept. 21, 1798.

He lived in a handsome colonial mansion at Newcastle, Del., and had three sons and one daughter. The sons were men of distinguished merit and record. Of these, JOHN READ removed to Philadelphia in 1789 and married MARTHA MEREDITH in 1796.

THE READ ARMS.

Arms: gules, a saltire between 4 garbs or; crest, a falcon rising ppr., standing on the stump of a tree vert, belled and fessed.

26. MARGARET MEREDITH, born April 7, 1806; died March 13, 1854, unmarried.

7. ANNE MEREDITH[5] (Samuel[4], Reese[3], John Carpenter[2], Samuel[1]), born Sept. 3, 1776, in Philadelphia; died June 25, 1857, at Trenton, N. J.; married 1796, SAMUEL DICKINSON, born Aug. 11, 1770, in Philadelphia, died Nov. 6, 1837, in Trenton, N. J., son of General Philemon Dickinson by his wife Mary Cadwalader, and nephew of the celebrated John Dickinson.

SAMUEL DICKINSON studied law with Edward Tilghman, and was admitted to the bar in 1792, but never practised. He was one of the trustees of the large estate of his father-in-law, General Samuel Meredith, resided at Trenton, N. J., and died at "the Hermitage," Nov. 6, 1837.

The common ancestor of the Dickinson family in this part of America was Charles Dickinson, who died in London in 1653. He left three sons, all of whom belonged to the Society of Friends and came to Virginia in 1650. English ancestors of this family were distinguished as soldiers, and it is known that for many generations they belonged to a class highly respected in the community. Of the three brothers who went to Virginia, Walter Dickinson removed in 1659 to Talbot County, on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, and settled there on a plantation known as "Crosia Doré." This place has remained in the possession of the Dickinson family for over 250 years.

Samuel Dickinson, the grandson of Walter Dickinson, was educated as a lawyer, and in 1740 removed from Maryland to Delaware, where he purchased a large estate in Kent County near Dover. This place was added to and other purchases made until he became one of the largest land-owners in the State. He was appointed judge of the County Court, and died in 1760. He married Mary Cadwalader, the sister of Dr. Thomas Cadwalader, of Trenton.

Philemon Dickinson was one of his sons, born April 5, 1739. He graduated at the College of Philadelphia, and read law with his brother, the famous and distinguished John Dickinson, who was born Nov. 2, 1732, and married July 19, 1770, Mary Norris, granddaughter of Isaac Norris. Both of the brothers signed the non-importation resolutions. Philemon Dickinson married July 14, 1767, Mary Cadwalader, the daughter of Dr. Thomas Cadwalader, born 1745, died May, 1781. He took an active part in the Revolution. In August, 1775, he was made colonel in the New Jersey troops, and was appointed brigadier-general Oct. 19, 1775. In September, 1776, he joined Washington at Perth Amboy, and in the campaign of "the Jersey" participated in the battle of Monmouth and other engagements. Jan. 6, 1777, he was appointed major-general in the New Jersey troops. He was one of the delegates to the Continental Congress in 1781. In October, 1783, he was elected a member of the Council of New Jersey and served as vice-president. General Dickinson was chosen in 1790 as a member of the U. S. Senate from New Jersey, to fill the unexpired term of William Paterson, ending March 4, 1793. He died at "the Hermitage," near Trenton, Feb. 4, 1809.

His son SAMUEL DICKINSON, born Aug. 11, 1770, married, 1796, ANNE MEREDITH.

THE DICKINSON ARMS.

These arms were confirmed in England to Edward Dickinson, of Staffordshire, in 1614.

Arms: azure, a fesse, between two lions passant, erminois; crest, a demi-lion per pale erminois et azure.
